CAMP DIX, Wrightstown, N. J., Oct. 11.—While rain spoiled the plans for the spectacular opening of the Liberty Loan campaign at Camp Dix this morning, it did not prevent the men of the new army from adding their financial bit to the cause. Honor of being the first command in the camp to start the subscriptions goes to Battery B. Three Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery, Captain Edward L. Fox.

There are many wealthy recruits in the new army here, and it was rumored this afternoon that the subscriptions of seven of them would total over $100,000. Headquarters, however, has forbidden the publication of individual subscriptions.

Platoons of soldiers playing Pom-Pom, a sort of ring-around-a-rosey game to make their muscles easy for bayonet work, other platoons practicing charges, and still others practicing boxing are new features of work to which infantrymen at Camp Dix were introduced today. The bayonet drills were the most spirited and businesslike yet witnessed on the parade grounds. The boxing work, officers point out, will not only train a soldier to think quickly and take better care of himself in a tight place but the uppercuts and jabs with the gloves correspond to lunges and parries with the bayonet and are calculated to add quickness to this work.

MANY SOLDIERS QUALIFY.

Only 325 at Camp Mills So Far Found Unfit.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP MILLS, HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Oct. 11.—J. W. Griffinger, Division Surgeon of the Forty-second (Rainbow) Division, encamped here, announced today that the physicians of the division estimate that when their examination of the men in the division is concluded not more than 400 will be rejected of the 27,000 in the division. Up to date 325 have been recommended as unfit for service. The staff of physicians under Major Louis Conner, who have been examining the men at Camp Mills for heart or lung trouble, completed their work today and submitted their recommendations for discharge to Division Surgeon Griffinger. The surgeons under Major Grahame Hammond, who have been examining the men for nervous troubles, have also finished their work. Of those discharged up to date, fifty have been released because they have been found to be tubercular, seventy-five because of nervous troubles, and the rest for defective eyesight, hearing, and other reasons.

HIKE FOR PLATTSBURG MEN.

Both Regiments Will Leave the Camp Today for Field Manoeuvres.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The New York and New England infantry training regiments, having finished rifle practice, tonight were ordered to leave camp early in the morning for an eight-mile hike and field manoeuvres. The regiments will return to camp soon after retreat, and in the evening will attend the camp theatre, where Captain Mann of the French mission, who arrived here tonight, and Lieutenant Henri Poire of the Eighth French Light Infantry, who is here as an assistant instructor, will deliver lectures.

Raymond Irving Shipman of the Fifth Battery, Field Artillery Training Regiment, of 325 West Seventy-sixth Street, was discharged today in order that he might accept a commission as Second Lieutenant in the First New York Cavalry Regiment, U. S. N. G., of which he was a Sergeant when he entered the training camp.

Marc Aloysius Lagen of 3 West Forty-seventh Street, who asked for and received his discharge last week, returned to camp today and asked to have the order rescinded. The request was granted.

SEVERE TRAINING AT CAMPS.

Men Will Follow Course Suggested by What Pershing Learned.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Courses for the great military schools at divisional training camps have been marked out as carefully as are those of high schools or colleges. The whole scheme of the sixteen weeks' course is based on what General Pershing and his officers already have learned on the other side. It will be varied as new lessons are learned at the fighting front. The plan is calculated to produce infantry divisions uniformly organized, equipped, and trained.

It will cut down materially the training time abroad. The first division to graduate from the home training school and reach France will need but a few weeks additional instruction to fit it for duty at the front.

For the first five weeks the men will learn all about the mechanism of the rifle, how to keep it clean, how to load, sight, and fire; the theories of windage, elevation, and the like. With the sixth week they will begin spending sixteen hours a week battering away at targets of all sorts. While one platoon or company is firing the others will be at work estimating distances to train their eyes, studying the use of fire control instruments, range finders, and observers' glasses.

Selection of men for special duties will not be made until the eleventh week. Platoons then will be picked over and the bombers, rifle grenadiers, snipers, sketchers, signalers, runners, observers, estimators, and light machine gun men will be selected. Each man will go to the work which he is best fitted to perform.

NATIONAL ARMY MEN ARE WELL EQUIPPED

13,000,000 Articles Distributed to the 431,180 Soldiers Who Were in Camps Up to Oct. 2.

BAKER LAUDS BUSINESS MEN

Asserts They Have Made Deliveries Which a Few Weeks Ago Seemed Impossible.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The first detailed statement showing the clothing and sleeping equipment furnished to the sixteen national army cantonments, as issued by Secretary of War Baker today, shows that nearly 13,000,000 articles have been provided. The total number of men in these cantonments is 431,180.

The figures given out tonight show that the men are in need of bed sacks, woolen breeches, cotton coats, woolen coats, overcoats, and heavy woolen stockings. For the 431,180 men only 12,975 heavy woolen stockings have been provided to date, but more than 1,000,000 light wool stockings have been distributed. The number of articles sent to the sixteen cantonments are as follows:

Secretary Baker's Tribute.

"Shipments of clothing," said the Secretary's announcement, "are keeping pace with the filling up of the cantonments. The manufacturing industry of the country has made wonderful response to the demands of the War Department. Deliveries have been made that seemed impossible a few weeks ago. It should be considered that, with the outbreak of war, the manufacturing establishments of this country had no large reserves, owing to domestic consumption and large foreign orders. These industries were organized quickly for our own needs: additional looms, spindles and other facilities have been provided, and there has been a remarkable mobilization in manufacturing.

"The United States was dependent practically upon its own resources in the equipment of a new army. It was impossible to call upon the nations associated with us, although previous to our entry into the war other countries might avail themselves of American goods. The United States, with limited reserves and an initial lack of extraordinary facilities, has made a remarkable record, when all difficulties are considered. We have not only equipped the army at home, but have fitted out an expeditionary force within the short period of six months. Our industries are now surprisingly mobilized and their future output promises to be steady and ample."

The detailed figures show that the 29,555, up to Oct. 2, received: bed sacks, 15,000; blankets, 63,965; cotton breeches, 30,030; woolen breeches, 36,865; cotton coats, 10,000; woolen coats, 25,029; Summer drawers, 66,210; Winter drawers, 90,673; hats, 51,358; leggings, 54,558; overcoats, 27,390; flannel shirts, 19,515; cotton stockings 125,110; light woolen stockings, 85,684; cotton undershirts, 73,870; woolen undershirts, 81,558; shoes, 78,687.

At Camp Meade, where there are 20,330, these articles were distributed: bed sacks, 30,000; blankets, 80,532; cotton breeches, 16,006; woolen breeches, 21,295; cotton coats, 16,961; woolen coats, 24,188; Summer drawers, 50,817; Winter drawers, 116,911; hats, 42,062 leggings, 24,111; overcoats, 22,034; flannel shirts, 53,996; cotton stockings, 66,878; light woolen stockings, 41,458; cotton undershirts, 48,315; woolen undershirts, 77,695; shoes, 36,642.

The 33,090 men at Camp Devens have received: bed sacks, 37,863; blankets, 120,889; cotton breeches, 15,477; woolen breeches, 42,118; cotton coats, 14,255; woolen coats, 22,126; Summer drawers, 46,759; Winter drawers, 111,388; hats, 30,705; leggings, 37,952; overcoats, 15,948; flannel shirts 70,273; cotton stockings, 90,633; light wool stockings, 85,224; cotton undershirts, 45,190; woolen undershirts, 169,658; shoes, 75,726.

The articles distributed at Camp Dix, N. J., where 19,363 are in training, are bed sacks, 25,200; blankets, 62,935; cotton breeches, 11,140; woolen breeches, 12,093; cotton coats, 13,196; woolen coats, 2,594; Summer drawers, 42,292; Winter drawers, 52,503; hats, 28,161; leggins 28,-162; overcoats, 22,584; flannel shirts, 83,548; cotton stockings, 83,764; light wool stockings, 83,846; cotton undershirts, 48,162; woolen undershirts, 70,340; shoes, 26,489

Camp Funston, in Kansas, has the greatest quota of men of any of the camps, its number being 39,533. Camp Lewis, in Washington State, is second with 30,171, and Camp Devens, Massachusetts, third, with 33,090. Camp Foster, Michigan, has the smallest number, 16,198.

APPRECIATE SOLDIER BIBLES

General Hoyle Thanks Society on Behalf of the Men.

Major Gen. E. D. Hoyle, U. S. A., Commander of the Department of the East, attended a special meeting yesterday of the American Bible Society, at Astor Place, and thanked the members for their efforts to carry the Scriptures to nearly 2,000,000 soldiers and sailors. The society had distributed 700,000 of its first million copies free, and at the request of William Sloane, Chairman of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A., is arranging to give another million books free at a cost to the society of $400,000.

President Wood, in presenting the first 100,000 of the new issue to the representatives of the army and navy, said he was sure that the men of the service would appreciate the khaki-bound volumes in a different way than had one young soldier at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I., who had written to a friend as follows:

"Thanks for the Bible. It is printed on nice, thin paper and is excellent for rolling the 'makings' of a cigarette. In fact, I have smoked through the Testament as far as the Second Corinthians."

"Let us hope that he also read before he smoked," added the President. General Hoyle said:

"I can testify of my own knowledge that the majority of the men of the army highly value the gift of these books of Scripture and that their distribution is doing and will do more good in the service."

Chaplain W. Z. Isaacs, the oldest Chaplain in the navy, declared that more than 50 per cent. of the men at the Brooklyn Navy Yard read their copies of the Testament regularly before retiring.

Rainbow Division Needs Knit Goods.

The National League for Woman's Service, at 267 Madison Avenue, has issued another appeal for knit goods for the soldiers of the Rainbow Division at Mineola, L. I. Although the league has already received many thousands of articles, it was pointed out that thousands of soldiers would be without the necessary garments if the women of New York do not start to knit now and send their sweaters, mufflers, or helmets to the organization. If there are any women who cannot knit, the league will accept a money contribution and purchase the goods for the boys.

THANKED BY LADY ABERDEEN

British War Relief Association Hears of Work Abroad.

Lady Aberdeen spoke yesterday afternoon before the British War Relief Association at its headquarters, 542 Fifth Avenue, and told of the voluntary aid detachments of England and the work the hospitals in which she has been interested. The association has sent a great number of cases of surgical supplies and knitted garments to these hospitals. Lady Aberdeen thanked them for their work.

Since the beginning of the war Lady Aberdeen has had supervision of the hospital in Dublin Castle, which, at her request, King George opened to the wounded. At the close of her talk she read several poems which have been dedicated to women who have lost their sons and husbands. Lord Aberdeen was also present. He will visit Fort Wadsworth this morning to see the battery drill of the Eighth Coast Artillery as the guest of Captain Samuel T. Stewart of Company 26.

Cardinal Declares It Will Benefit the Young Men Morally as Well as Physically.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Cardinal Gibbons, in a letter to H. H. Sheets, Secretary of the National Association for Universal Military Training, strongly indorses the fundamental principles of an amendment to the draft law proposed by the association. The amendment provides that all male persons, residents of the United States, who are 19 years of age and not more than 31 years at the time the proposed amendment becomes a law, and who were not registered pursuant to the draft law, shall be registered at such a time and place as the President may direct, provided that none of the men affected by the law as amended shall be called for actual military service before reaching the age of 21 years.

The letter of the Cardinal follows:

Dear Mr. Sheets:

In reply to your letter of yesterday I wish to state that I am in sympathy with the efforts of the association in striving to bring about legislation which will provide for some military training of young men of the ages of 19 and 20.

It will benefit them morally as well as physically, and help to prepare them for their various avocations, or, if necessity arises, for the sterner needs of war.

Very faithfully yours,
J. CARDINAL GIBBONS,

are shown in at least twenty-five distinct models, each reflecting in its fluency of line a quality of tailoring that comes from the skilful use of a needle and not from the careful manipulation of an iron

¶ Today, when everything that goes into a suit—from buttons to woolens—is on the upward trend, the elimination of the middleman in the marketing of clothes means more than would seem at first thought. By wearing Saks' clothes you get more value in the tailoring and more worth in the woolens than is possible in most clothing marketed in New York. Saks' Clothes are Saks-Made in the Saks' Tailoring Shops, the usual profit of the middleman finding expression in our woolens and tailoring, which is one reason why Saks' suits at $23 and $25 are popular in price, but 'way above par in cut and finish.

Overchecks; Twin, Single and Triple stripings; Plain colors including blues and blacks; Fancy Cheviots and mixtures are to be found in our present assortments

The models—Double-Breasters and Single-Breasters with anywhere from two to four buttons, and pockets aslant, patch, Welt, or regular, each and every model exhibiting an individuality of line and a quality of tailoring seldom if ever before seen in suits at a popular price. And don't forget, this is only possible because

ROADS IN NEW FIGHT FOR HIGHER RATES

WILL PLEAD BIG LOSSES

Official Points Out That Value of Stock Has Declined a Billion in Year.

The railroads are laying plans to reopen before the Interstate Commerce Commission their case for higher freight rates. A number of conferences of railroad executives have recently taken place at which the reopening of the case has been discussed, and it will be a subject of consideration at a meeting of executives of the Eastern trunk lines in New York today.

It is believed certain that the Eastern railroads will renew their plea for higher rates, and it is probable that the Western and Southern roads will join in. Applications for rates are presented by the three classification districts separately; in the last rate case they joined in the presentation of a request for a general increase of 15 per cent. in freight rates. In a decision handed down on June 29 last the Interstate Commerce Commission refused th 15 per cent. increase, but granted increases amounting to about 5 per cent. of the gross revenue of the carriers.

The commission stated that if the roads felt at any time that they could present a stronger case the petition for higher rates might be renewed. Since the action of the commission the incomes of the Western and Southern district roads have not fallen to the extent in which the net earnings of the Eastern roads have dropped. While the revenues of the roads in the congested region between Chicago and the Atlantic seaboard have risen, the expenses have risen faster. It is the belief of the Eastern managers that they can present to the commission a stronger case for relief than they did in the early Summer. At that time the strongest point made by the railroads was that the expenses for 1917 would increase by 00,000,000. The disposition of the Commissioners was to wait and see. The Eastern managers believe events have proved their case.

The new demands of the railway brotherhoods for more pay for passenger crews will undoubtedly be a factor to be considered in the new presentation of the roads' petition.

No information was available yesterday as to the exact increase the roads would ask for. The schedules prepared for the last rate case will hardly hold, because of the fact that the adjustment of the proposed schedules was disturbed by the increases granted by the commission.

The financial position of the Eastern roads is shown by the fact that while the net income of all the roads for this year up to July, was $19,000,000 less than for the same period of 1916, the Eastern railroads' net income was less by $40,000,000 than in 1916. The Pennsylvania and the New York Central, which do about 40 per cent. of the carrier business in the Eastern territory, and about 20 per cent. of that of the entire country, show a decline in net earnings of almost $35,000,000 for the first eight months of 1917. For the New York Central, the increase in gross income was $19,034,715, but at the same time expenses increased $43,225,925, leaving a disadvantageous difference of $24,190,810. For the Pennsylvania, the gross income increased for the eight months by $23,375,504, but expenses increased $33,977,103, leaving a decline in net earnings of $10,601,908.

At the same time, some of the Southern and Western roads are experiencing prosperity. The net earnings of the Southern Railway for the last year were $3,000,000 above the previous record earnings of 1916. The plea for more income will be based largely, it is expected, on the ground that it is essential to the national defense that the railroads be able to keep up full service.

A President of a large Eastern system said last night:

"The first lines of communication for this country at war are the railroads from the Mississippi Valley to the Atlantic seaboard; the second are the steamships from New York to French ports, the third are the railroads from the French ports to the front. This country must keep up the first line; it must treat the railroads with some of the consideration and care being given to other industries essential to the national defense."

In addition to the campaign for higher rates, the railroads will appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission to induce State railroad commissions to allow to go into effect for intrastate traffic the rates the commission fixed last June for interstate business.

Wage increases amounting to $62,000,000 have been due to the Adamson law. Other wage increases have totaled about $58,000,000. Railroad managers say that the increases granted in June have just about taken care of this wage increase, allowing no offset for the increases of $300,000,000 which, they say, have been added to 1917 expenses.

Despite the statements of some of the shippers and some officials that the railroads are earning enough money, transportation officials point to the stock market as an indication that the railroads cannot get money with which to make needed improvements and extensions.

A railroad official yesterday compiled a list of nineteen large railroads, and the selling price of their stock yesterday and a year ago, showing a net decline in market values of securities of almost $1,000,000,000 on outstanding stock of $3,500,000,000 par value. This is the table:

| | Outstanding Stock. | *High, 1916. | *Oct. 11, 1917. | *Decline. | Depreciat'n. |

The decline in the price of railroad securities is due, it was pointed out, to the fact that investors have refused to buy because they could make greater earnings in industrials. For instance, the Southern Railway made as much money or more than a year ago, yet its stock sold yesterday for 27, whereas a year ago yesterday it sold at 30.

"There is no mystery in the decline in railroad earnings in this period of national prosperity," said a spokesman for the carriers yesterday. "The railroads are doing war business at war-time costs, but are being paid peace prices. This problem could be solved overnight if the Government would get behind the railroads and support them in the same way it is supporting agriculture, coal mining, steel making, and other basic industries."

| | 1916. | 1917. | Changes. |
| Rev. | $1,697,000,000 | $1,898,000,000 | +$201,000,000 |
| Exp. | 1,147,000,000 | 1,354,000,000 | + 207,000,000 |
| Net op. inc. | 550,000,000 | 544,000,000 | — 6,000,000 |
| Net inc | 474,000,000 | 455,000,000 | — 19,000,000 |

In other words, for the first half of 1917 the gross receipts of the roads were $200,000,000 greater than in the first half of 1916, while the net earnings were $19,000,000 less.

TRAINMEN TO ASK INCREASE.

The railroads of the Eastern Classification Territory have been notified by the railway brotherhoods that demands for increased wages for passenger crews will be presented to the managers on Dec. 1, to become effective as of Jan. 1, 1918. The union representatives will meet in Ottawa on Oct. 16 to decide on the details of the fight for higher pay. It is believed by railroad men that they will demand an advance of 20 per cent., which is about what the freight train crews got by the Adamson law.

The provisions of the Adamson law gave less to the passenger men than to the freight men, and it was predicted at the time of its passage and often in the negotiations following that the passenger men would make a move for higher wages, to restore the old ratio of earnings. The fight of the brotherhoods in 1916 for more money was in behalf of the freight crews alone, but the passenger crew were pledged to strike in conjunction with the freight crews to get the increase demanded at that time.

The movement of the passenger men for more pay is of much smaller consequence than the movement of freight men in 1916, which resulted in the Adamson law. There are about 360,000 freight trainmen and about one-fourth that number of passenger men. The payrolls of the freight men on all the railroads in 1916 was $300,000,000, while that of the passenger crews was about $75,000,000. The Adamson law gave to the brotherhoods increases totaling about $60,000,000 a year.

TEACHERS NOW JOIN LONG-DAY PROTEST

Decide to Act After Excited Activity Among 10,000 High School Students.

POLICE DISPERSE MEETINGS

Boys of Commerce School Strike—Committee Presents Grievances to Board of Aldermen.

Several hundred teachers of De Witt Clinton High School, Amsterdam Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, who are dissatisfied with the lengthened school day, attended a meeting of the Teachers' Council in the auditorium of the school building yesterday afternoon and by unanimous vote authorized the Chairman to appoint a committee to draw up their grievances in detail for presentation to the Board of Education.

The entrance of the teachers into the situation followed a day of excitement among the 10,000 students of De Witt Clinton High School, Wadleigh High School, and High School of Commerce, several hundred of whom struck as a protest against lengthening the school day about an hour and a half. A delegation of students visited the Board of Aldermen and told their grievances to the Public Welfare Committee. Two demonstrations in front of De Witt Clinton High School were dispersed by the police and several of the youngsters were taken to the Children's Court.

In addition to the protest against the longer school day, A. Henry Schneer, a teacher in De Witt Clinton High School, declared at the Teachers' Council meeting that he was opposed to the great amount of clerical work that teachers must do, and pointed out as typical that he had been asked within a half hour one day to attend to ten clerical matters which would have taken many hours had he undertaken to give them his personal attention. A committee was appointed to look into the matter of minimizing the clerical work of teachers.

William G. Willcox, President of the Board of Education, said last night that the student protest against the longer school day was in the hands of the Board of Superintendents, which is to report at the next meeting on Oct. 24.

The day's activities began with several hundred boys of the High School of Commerce, Sixty-fifth Street, near Broadway, establishing pickets to urge their comrades to strike. The boys said that 200 joined the strike but at the office of Dr. Arthur M. Wolfson it was said that not more than 100 students stayed out. The boys adjourned to De Witt Clinton High School and soon 500 shouting, struggling students had gathered and informal meetings were under way, but the police dispersed them, and the boys marched to Broadway and down to Forty-second Street bent on a holiday.

Many students at the High School of Commerce and De Witt Clinton live on the east side and work after school hours. They say that a school day lasting until 3:30 followed by military training in an armory until 5:30 three times a week prevents them from taking after-school employment. They also say they cannot stand the physical strain of training till 5:30, which keeps them from home till 6 o'clock, after which they must have dinner and attend to home school work.

It was said yesterday that there had been a considerable decrease in attendance at the three schools which have the lengthened day. One report said that De Witt Clinton school had 1,000 fewer pupils this year than last, due chiefly to the increased hours.

"That a measure so astounding as the lengthening of the high school day should have been introduced without in any way consulting the teachers and pupils affected is incredible," said one of the Faculty of De Witt Clinton yesterday. Chairman Willcox, when asked about it, said the Board of Superintendents thought a longer school day was a good thing, as it provided time in which the pupils might do the work formerly done at home. This opinion was shared by Dr. Stuart H. Rowe, Principal of Wadleigh High School, Seventh Avenue and 115th Street. Dr. Rowe said, however, that there was some substance to the protests of the students who complained that the long school day kept them out of the afternoon sunlight. He added that at a meeting of the Wadleigh High School Republic yesterday afternoon his students decided not to strike, but to submit their grievances to the authorities for rectification.

Anna Lederer, a student at Wadleigh, accompanied by the Misses Eleaner Tieman, Isadora Powell, Natalie Tiebout, Grace J. Manlova, Ruth Bean, and Violet Parks and committees of boys from Commerce and De Witt Clinton, told the Aldermanic Committee on Public Welfare yesterday that the new conditions are a distinct hardship. Chairman Willcox of the Board of Education, who was present, said he was not aware that the dissatisfaction was so general, and promised a full investigation.

Dr. Francis J. Paul, Principal of De Witt Clinton High School, said the strike had not affected his school. He pointed to the well-filled schoolrooms to back up his assertion. He thought that not more than fifteen De Witt Clinton boys had responded to the pleas to join the School of Commerce strikers. The dissatisfaction of the high school students began when they returned to school this term and found an hour added to their day. Committees from the three high schools affected met at De Witt Clinton last Wednesday and adopted a resolution of protest to the Board of Education.

SHOWS MODEL OF CONDUITS

Electrical Exhibit Has Cross-Section of City Wire System.

A cross-section of a New York street 70 feet wide and 25 feet deep, showing every kind of conduit of underground New York City, and on a larger scale than ever before presented, was completed and placed on exhibition at the Electrical Show at Grand Central Palace yesterday. It took twenty men a week to build the massive model. One purpose is to illustrate the amount of copper and lead under the streets of the city for electrical and other connections, especially in view of the enhanced value of these metals owing to the war.

An estimate given out by the exposition management placed the amount of copper in this nerve system of the city hidden away under the streets at 30,000,000 pounds, valued at $7,800,000, and lead at 60,000,000 pounds, valued at $4,800,000. Principal features shown in the cross-section are: Street railway conduits, sewer manholes, gas and water mains, electric service substation-distributing station conduits, and splicing chambers with their water draining systems.

Make a rapid-fire machine job

And in doing it, you multiply the effectiveness of the human unit two-fold — threefold — even fourfold, depending on the kind of work.

No matter what it is in figures—

Proving Postings; Balancing Accounts; Footing Trial Balance; Extending and Footing Invoices; Figuring Pay Roll, Cost, Inventory, Estimates; Taking off Discounts; Adding and Figuring Fractions

—the Comptometer will make a quick, easy, and dependably accurate job of it at a worth while saving in time and labor.

SPEED combined with ACCURACY—that's the explanation.

One-motion, direct key action of the Comptometer accounts for its phenomenal speed; the Controlled-key (which allows no slighted keystroke to pass unnoticed) safeguards accuracy.

Right now, when the burden is so heavy, is the time to break away from slow methods that mean unnecessary labor and expense.

Why not call in a Comptometer man and let him demonstrate, by a practical test, just what it will mean to make ALL your figure work a rapid-fire machine job.

No cost—no obligation—only the opportunity to show you.

LA FOLLETTE ASKS RIGHT TO BE HEARD

Seeks to Defend St. Paul Assertions, Including That About Lusitania Ammunition.

CALLS SOME REPORTS FALSE

But Tells Committee The New York Times Account of His Speech Was Accurate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. — Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin has written to the Senate Special Committee appointed to investigate his alleged seditious utterances before the Non-Partisan League at St. Paul, demanding the right to be heard and to defend himself against the movement to expel him from the Senate.

The Wisconsin Senator laid before the committee an official transcript of his speech. In addition the committee today received from the Minnesota Public Safety Commission three other transcripts of the speech, taken by different stenographers. The committee spent several hours examining the transcripts. It found numerous variations as to phraseology, but was unable to discover any substantial difference affecting the meaning.

In substance, Senator La Follette denied saying the United States had no cause for war, denounced some press reports of his speech as "grossly false," and certified to the accuracy of the record regarding his statement that ex-Secretary of State Bryan knew of ammunition being in the Lusitania's cargo. He asked to examine any witnesses called by the committee.

Senator La Follette's letter, addressed to Senator Pomerene, Chairman of the investigating committee, follows:

Text of La Follette's Letter.

Washington, Oct. 11, 1917.

My Dear Senator: Since my letter to you of the 5th inst. I have received a transcript of the speech referred to by you in your letter to me of that date. The transcript I have received is from the notes of the official reporter of the Non-Partisan League, who was present to report the proceedings.

I have compared the transcript received by me with the committee print which you furnished to me. The fact is, as both transcripts show, I spoke extemporaneously. I had with me a few notes on the Revenue bill, upon which I expected to speak more fully than I did. But the digressions caused by questions and suggestions from the audience led me to put my notes aside. I desire to aid the members of the committee in their investigation to the end that they may have as nearly as possible the same understanding of all that transpired in the St. Paul meeting as they would have if the members of the committee had been personally present. I am, therefore, furnishing the committee with the transcript of what I said, according to the notes of the official reporter of the Non-Partisan League, omitting therefrom merely extraneous matter involving the comments and explanations of the reporter.

There were two interruptions from the audience not shown in the transcript of the official report of the Non-Partisan League, but which I recall and which are also shown by other reports of the proceedings. Thinking that these might have significance in your consideration of the subject matter of the speech, I here refer to them. One is the question from the audience, "How about the Lusitania." Of course, all that I said upon that subject was said because of this interruption. I had no intention of referring to it. THE NEW YORK TIMES report of the meeting and other press reports show this to be as here stated, and it accords with my recollection.

The transcript of the official report of the Non-Partisan League is, of course, at your service if you desire the same.

The second interruption which I note as not appearing in the text of the transcript furnished me shows that the expression, "Shame on Congress," came from the audience and that I replied as shown in the context of the speech. This so appears in the print of the speech furnished by you at Page 11, Line 3. With these interruptions, the transcript of the speech I am herewith submitting is substantially correct, so far as I can now recall.

You did not indicate what particular portion of the speech you had under consideration, and I have gone over it generally, to make certain that it is substantially correct. As you will observe by comparing the two texts of the speech, there are many differences between them. If any of these differences have any significance for the purpose of your investigation and you desire to direct my attention to any particular language in either text, I will be glad to give it further consideration.

I assume that the wholly false reports sent out by the press generally to the effect that I stated in various forms, "We had no grievance," is receiving no credence from you, since that is contrary to the text of the speech you furnished me. I shall be very glad, however, if your investigation is sufficiently broad to take in an inquiry into the causes which led to the publication generally of these grossly false statements by the press.

Permit me to say that, if it is the purpose of the committee to make an investigation as to any statement of fact in the speech, then I request that the committee advise me what statement of fact is so called into question and in what respect its correctness is questioned.

Furthermore, if any issues of fact are to be raised by testimony concerning any statements in the speech, then I ask to be accorded the right to question any one so testifying, and that I be permitted to call witnesses to meet the testimony which may be so offered.

If the speech is to be otherwise questioned or my right to make it considered by the committee, then I respectfully request that I be so advised by the committee, and that I be given an opportunity to be heard thereon in person and by counsel.

Very respectfully yours,
ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE.

Lansing's Data Delayed.

The data which Secretary of State Lansing has promised to furnish to the committee to aid it in clearing up the facts about the Lusitania was not entirely ready today. The committee is anxious to settle the question of veracity raised between Senator La Follette and Mr. Bryan regarding the Lusitania. The committee will meet again tomorrow, when it is expected to receive the data. It hopes also to have before it Mr. Bryan's reply to its request for a statement regarding the Lusitania case. Mr. Bryan has publicly denied Mr. La Follette's assertion affecting him.

Public hearings probably will not be held by the committee. Chairman Pomerene pointed out today that the committee's power was limited, first, as to the accuracy of the speech, now regarded as settled, and, second, as to statements of fact therein, under investigation.

DE SAULLES CASE HEARD.

Grand Jury Investigates Shooting and Indictment Is Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, Oct. 11.—The Nassau County Grand Jury heard witnesses today regarding the circumstances surrounding the shooting of John L. De Saulles, by his wife, Blanca De Saulles, at his home in Westbury, on Aug. 4. An indictment is expected when the Grand Jury meets again next Monday.

Henry A. Uterhart, counsel for Mrs. De Saulles, who is in the County Jail, said today that he has made repeated requests through James Gordon Battle, to the De Saulles family, for permission to allow little Jack De Saulles to visit his mother, but the requests, according to Mr. Uterhart, have been refused. Mrs. De Saulles has not seen her son since Aug. 28, he said.

Among the witnesses who have been subpoenaed are Mrs. Caroline Degenet, sister of the slain man; Marshall Ward, a witness of the shooting; Sheriff Seeman, Constable Thorne, who arrested Mrs. De Saulles; Dr. Harry M. Warner, who performed the autopsy; Julius Hadanck, the De Saulles' butler; Noe Cagladeau, Mrs. De Saulles' butler at her home, "Crossways," and Susan Monteau, Mrs. De Saulles' maid.

BRACE OF HOME RUNS BRINGS GLORY TO BENNY KAUFF AS GIANTS TIE SERIES

KAUFF'S HOMERS WIN FOR GIANTS

...ight. Nothing could be more satisfying than to see the White Sox sluggers held at bay by the great pitching of Schupp. Nothing but this could give them so much of a thrill as to see Benny Kauff hammer his way through the swift, teasing curves of Red Faber. The unrelenting rush of McGraw's men has broken up the harmony and team play of Rowland's club. They cannot play with the machinelike smoothness which characterized their play in Chicago because the Giants now have the jump on them, just as they had the jump on the Giants before McGraw's men got under way.

27,746 See the Game.

Yesterday's crowd was a disappointment, for the official attendance was 27,746, where 36,000 could have been jammed into the park. The Giants great comeback of Tuesday, it was believed, would rouse New Yorkers in interest and send them to the Polo Grounds in droves. The threatening weather of yesterday morning and the free-for-all system of admission probably kept many away. There seems to be a mistaken idea that with 25,000 admissions on sale the day of each game there is great crowding and jamming at the gates. This system, however, works to the advantage of the crowd, for there is no more inconvenience in getting a seat in the lower stands or bleachers than at a Saturday or holiday game. If any stayed away because they thought they couldn't get a seat they made a wrong guess. Yesterday's game ended those in which the players share, and the players are disappointed because their share isn't larger.

Excitement reached a high mark at yesterday's contest, and it is doubtful if the series will offer more thrilling situations than those which developed in this game. Both Schupp and Faber were in trouble often and pulled out with remarkable support from their teammates. Schupp's most dangerous predicament came in the fifth inning, the only session in the game when the Sox were able to bunch two hits off him. Gandil opened with a slashing single to left, and Buck Weaver rapped a hot bouncer down to Fletcher at short. Fletcher made a quick toss to Herzog, forcing Gandil, while Herzog made a rapid wide throw to first to get Weaver. Holke had to stretch himself far out of position, but he made a remarkable one-handed catch with his gloved hand and completed the double play. It was then Schalk slapped a single through second which might have resulted in serious trouble if the lightning fast double had not swept the bases clean of White Sox runners.

Looked Like a Pitchers' Duel.

For three innings Faber and Schupp pitched remarkable ball, and it looked as if the battle was going to settle into a pitchers' duel pure and simple. In the Sox portion of the third Schupp fanned John Collins and McMullin in succession, leaving Schalk high and dry on first, which he had reached by virtue of a single.

George Burns, the first Giant to face Faber in the fourth, struck out. The big powerful flinger from Cascade, Ia., was going great guns and he was shooting over a fast breaking curve which was playing hide-and-seek with the Giants' bats. Herzog sent a roller to Eddie Collins and died at first. Then Kauff appeared on the horizon.

Benny thus far in the series had been a joke for the noisy group of Chicago fans. Benny had received a lot of notoriety in Chicago because of his many suits of loud clothes and his fancy shoes. The Woodland Bards were joshing Benny for being a Broadway dude. The first ball that Faber flipped at Benny carromed off for a foul, and his next offering was a ball. Faber held Benny rather cheaply and hadn't even an inkling that little Benjamin was about to become a human howitzer. The White Sox pitcher made the mistake of his life when he whizzed the next ball over just where Benny likes 'em. It was waist high and was sailing serenely down the centre aisle.

Every ounce of strength that Benny had went into that wide sweep which carried his bat across to meet the spinning sphere. With a pop like a firecracker the ball set sail for centre field. Happy Felsch misjudged the smash and ran in the wrong direction as he backed toward the fence. When he quickly spun around to try for the catch the ball went high over his head and rolled to the roll of canvas in front of the center field fence.

"Dig for Home, Benny!"

George Gibson was coaching at third and McGraw was at first. As Benny galloped past his manager, he just caught a few words to the effect that he could run as fast and as hard as he pleased. When Benny was circling the middle bag, Felsch was still trying to get the ball from under the canvas. Gibson at third was dancing up and down waving both arms for Benny to come on. Benny never ran so fast in his life as he was going when he passed third base. Gibson yelled for him to dig for home as fast as he could as he flashed past, and all of the 27,000 fans in the stands were yelling the same thing to Benny at the same time. Every mother's son was up on his feet waving hats, handkerchiefs, and banners as Benny crossed the plate with that jubilant run. The grounds fairly rumbled under the outburst of enthusiasm.

While McAuliffe, the Giants' bat boy, was the first to reach Benny as he crossed the plate, and he gave him a slap on the back as he reached the bench. From the Giants' dugout rushed all the players and Benny was soon lost in their arms, while dozens of slaps were bounding off his back. Manager McGraw stood like a statue at first base with a grin on his face a yard wide. He was a happy manager, was McGraw, for his confidence in little Benny had been no idle dream.

Far out over the centre field bleachers the men perched high on the elevated poles and signal towers waved their hats and the whistles on the elevated trains began to shriek. The tooting of whistles was taken up by the craft on the Harlem and it is many a day since the inhabitants of Coogan's Bluff have been so happily and thoroughly disturbed.

Benny Wallows in Glory.

Benny's chest swelled up like a pouter pigeon's. There was nothing in the whole world which could have tickled the little fellow so much as this demonstration. But in the midst of all this emotional demonstration Benny's mind was somewhere else. He was thinking about what the natives would say away out in Middleton, Ohio, Benny's home town, when the villagers gathered around the grocery store, waiting to hear what the town's hero was doing in New York. For all the boisterous hurrah which thundered in his ears when he registered that home run Benny would rather have been back hearing the shouts of the Middleton boys.

Red Faber was still groggy from his tremendous rap when the Giants came to bat in the fifth inning. Fletcher poked forth a single, and Davy Robertson came up. McGraw called Robbie over to one side and whispered something in his ear. Davy went up and took a drawbridge swing at the ball, which made it appear as if McGraw had given orders to drive the ball over in the Harlem River.

That's just where the foxy McGraw fooled the White Sox. On the next ball that Faber pitched Davy crossed all the calculations of the White Sox infield by depositing a tantalizing little bunt along third-base line. He was on first base and Fletcher at second before the Sox infielders returned to consciousness. Holke bunted to Faber, who fielded the ball and was about to toss to McMullin for a force-out play, but, to his utter dismay, he found that third was uncovered. It was then too late to flip the ball to first and there wasn't an unpopulated spot on any of the corners.

Here's a situation which would have taken the heart out of nine pitchers out of ten, but Faber ground his teeth and settled down to work. Bill Rariden, a bad hitter in a pinch, was up and Faber pitched as he never pitched before. Rariden slapped a vicious bouncer at Faber, who stood as firm as a rock and took the ball on the bound. He fired it home and caught Fletcher as he was racing over the plate. Then Schalk whirled quickly about, making a marvelous smart throw, and doubled up Rariden at first.

Crowd Joshes the White Sox.

The crowd now began to josh the White Sox. They called Rowland and his men bush-leaguers, and they told the Chicago leader to go back to the Three-Eye League, where he came from. Chicago slipped back rapidly on the chute to destruction after that. Fletcher got a hit off McMullin's hands in the seventh and went around to third when the fast-weakening Faber uncorked a wild throw which bounded off Schalk's shin guards and rolled over to the boxes. Holke got a pass which was almost another wild pitch, and while Eddie Collins was arranging for the demise of Rariden at first, Fletcher counted with the Giants' third run.

Faber was all through after that, and Rowland sent in Swede Risberg to hit for him in the eighth, while the famous Chicago relief flinger, Dave Danforth, tried his wares on the New York batsmen. Danforth is credited with having a shine ball, which is almost as tricky as Cicotte's, and the Giants were anxious to get a look at it. Benny Kauff was more anxious than the others to see it, and before the inning was over Benny had given himself an eye full of Danforth's best and had plastered it beyond recognition.

Burns was troubled with Danforth's twists and he fanned, but Charley Herzog stung a single to left and Kauff occupied the centre of the picture again. "Do it again" yelled the crowd in the grand stand, and Benny settled himself at the plate as if he meant to carry out this suggestion if such a thing was possible. This time Benny's big swing of the bat caught the ball after the club had crossed the plate, and he pulled the ball on a rocket flight into the right-field stand. Half a hundred fans jumped up in the vicinity of where they thought the ball would drop and tried to grab it. The lucky fan who caught it was offered $15 for it and sold the souvenir ball. It was bought by F. W. Becker, who will have it mounted and will sell it at auction, the proceeds to go to the American Boys Athletic League.

Benny's second circuit clout didn't necessitate all that fleet leg work that his other drive demanded, so Benjamin took his own sweet time in circling the bases this time, while Herzog trotted home a few feet ahead of him. Every step that Benny took as he jogged around on his happy trip was accompanied by a volley of cheers and yells which must have rattled the windows on Eighth Avenue as far south as 125th Street.

Schupp's Work Superb.

Thus did the Giants take the fourth game of the series and pull up on even terms with the Sox after surmounting the greatest obstacles that the Sox could put in their path. Schupp's performance was a work of art, especially for the manner in which he twirled when the White Sox decorated the bases. In four innings the first Chicago batter singled, and in the ninth Collins, the first batsman up, got Schupp's only pass. Yet Ferdie was so effective in the pinches that only one of these, Collins, got as far as third base.

The Giants went West right after the game a much happier party than they were on the journey back to New York last Monday. The White Sox, enveloped in gloom, started back an hour later than the Giants, and the Woodland Bards, the band of Chicago rooters, were glum and silent. The White Sox thought that they saw a victory of four straight games ahead, but this only proved a mirage when the Giants got under way. McGraw's men are going now at top speed, and the antagonistic attitude of the Chicago fans should not bother them at Comiskey Park on Saturday as they did last week. McGraw's men now figure that they have an even chance to win the series, and it is with that idea firmly stamped upon their minds that they will enter the fifth game of the fray tomorrow.

MATTY STILL HERO OF CROWD.

Ovation for Former Giant Precedes One Given to Benny Kauff.

As world's series crowds go, that which saw the triumph of the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday was the smallest that has been gathered there in many a year. The official attendance was 27,746, some 5,000 less than that for the first game here and lower by several thousand than the attendance at a world's series game in this city since 1905. Just why it was so is inexplicable. There was every incentive for the people to see the contest after the sterling play of the McGraw men on Wednesday, and those who stayed away for one reason or another missed a game that furnished repeated moments of tense interest. It was noticeable an hour before the game started that the seats were not filling rapidly, and when 2 o'clock arrived the bleachers were far from filled, and the grand stand at either end showed many inviting seats without any one to take them.

At the outset, during the first three innings in fact, the gathering was dull. Now and then there was a ripple of applause, but it was only short lived, and it took more than the ordinary incidents of a world's series struggle to rouse the crowd from its lethargy. There was a real burst of cheering, for instance, when Christy Mathewson, the hero of bygone world's series contests when he was a member of the Giants, came into the grounds. He was spotted by the fans before he had traversed very far down the aisle near the press, and the ovation which was given to him was more wholehearted and spontaneous than that which greeted the actual participants in this world's series, the Giants and the White Sox.

It was not until Benny Kauff slashed his home-run drive down to the little green Lush in centre field that the crowd really awoke, and then it took on a life that was in marked contrast to the lack of interest displayed in the earlier innings. It was as if the men were waiting to see the Giants prove that the victory of the day before had been no flash in the pan. Once this became certainty the lung power of the 27,000 persons was opened wide. There was a wee bit of sympathy for Kauff in this series. Benny has undoubtedly tried, and there was the desire to forgive his shortcomings with the willow because there was always in evidence his willingness to try with all his might.

As he came to bat in the fourth inning a whisper swept across the arena, "Now is the time for Kauff to make a home run," and a second later the thought breathed as a forlorn hope became a reality. There is something in the crash of bat and ball that tells the story of a long hit while the ball is still setting out on its journey. As Kauff swung viciously the crowd sensed on the instant the quality of the hit, and, as if it had been the shock from a galvanic battery, every spectator in the big arena came up on tiptoe, his voice booming out a joyful shout that mingled into a perfect bedlam of sound. It was just the incentive that the crowd needed, and thereafter the Giants were high favorites.

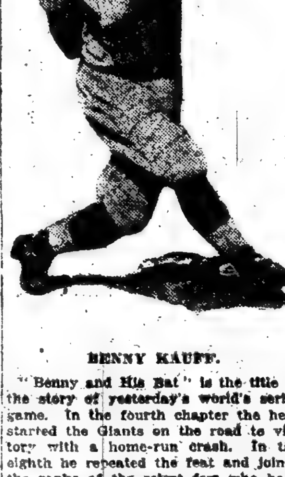
There was no crowding on trains that carried people to the park or at the entrance itself. For some reason the gates were not thrown open until nearly 11 o'clock, nearly two hours later than is customary for world series games, and by that time there was a gathering of several thousand fans. The first came along about 8 o'clock and from then on until the gates were opened the throng was steadily augmented by new arrivals. The first crush of people was soon within the park, and when 12 o'clock came there were some 12,000 spectators already seated. Soon after this the Giants made their appearance on the field and about 1 o'clock the White Sox came forth for the limbering up practice.

Once again it was an orderly crowd that had assembled and for the most part it was one which showed its good sportsmanship. There was some booing and hooting of the White Sox players, especially Eddie Collins, but he set the stage for it when he was caught off second after having sent a stinging double to left. There was, however, nothing to compare with the treatment of the Giants when in the Windy City. The Sox were sufficiently up in the air and the crowd did not feel called upon to ride them with such harshness as if the game had been close.

Here and there were some strident voices that persisted in calling out advice as to how the game should be played. One loyal New York rooter kept advising Schupp. When J. Collins was at bat in the sixth inning this fan earnestly besought the Giant twirler to "make him hit it," which was just the thing Collins proceeded to do. "There," remarked a nearby fan, "now that he has done that, what else would you like to have him do?"

Just how much the series appeals to one man is told by the 9,000-mile journey which he took to see the series. He was L. F. Shaw, a mining man from Alaska, and he remarked after the triumph of the Giants that yesterday's game was worth the trip. He was one of the early arrivals in the line which formed to get tickets. Another of the long-distance group of travelers was Israel Stein of Detroit, who confidently remarked that he would see the finish of the series in Chicago.

The Liberty Loan Committee had not overlooked the Polo Grounds, and here and there people circulated importuning the crowd to buy bonds. Benny Kauff is the owner of two bonds, each of $50, for his home runs of yesterday; but Benny won't know about it until he comes back from Chicago. Clara Kimball Young offered a bond for each home run and announced that she would present Benny with two when he came home.



BENNY KAUFF.

"Benny and His Bat" is the title of the story of yesterday's world's series game. In the fourth chapter the hero started the Giants on the road to victory with a home-run crash. In the eighth he repeated the feat and joined the ranks of the select few who have attained two home runs in one championship contest.

DETAILED ACCOUNT OF GAME BY INNINGS

Deciding Tally, as in Previous Games, Comes in the Fourth, When Kauff Hits Home Run.

SCHUPP AVENGES DEFEAT

Young Pitcher Allows Only One Man to Reach Third During Nine Brilliant Innings.

There was not even a Mayor or a Mayoralty candidate in the stands or on the field to make the opening of the fourth game of the world series unusual. In fact, the contesting parties went through their preliminary paces without outward show or knowledge that the capacious stands were slowly filling up. Charles Rigler of the National League had charge of the struggle from behind the plate; Billy Evans of the American League was at first base, Silk O'Loughlin of the American League at second, and William Klem of the National League at third. Ferdinand Schupp and Urban Faber were the first and last choices of each manager. The game opened with only a faint palaver between the leaders.

First Inning.

WHITE SOX—Schupp's initial offering cut the plate for a strike. John Collins then fouled one into the stand, and on the next delivery bounded the ball into Heinie Zimmerman's hands and the first out was recorded. McMullin looked at only one ball, which again came over the heart of the plate, before he drove the ball with savage speed to the left of Zimmermann. Heinie grabbed at the passing pellet, but it hit a pebble and bounded off his wrist, and McMullin got credit for the first hit of the game. Eddie Collins got no welcome from the fans as he took his place in front of Schupp. The Chicago Captain was in no great hurry to help along McMullin, who was prancing off first. Eddie allowed a strike to be called, stepped away from one wide of the plate, foul tipped a low curve and then stood aside while Schupp curved another over the corner, which Umpire Rigler called a third strike. Collins immediately registered a protest, insisting that the ball was too far inside, but Rigler was adamant, and Eddie was forced to accept the strike-out edict. The crowd yelled delightedly at the discomfort of Collins. The first offering to Jackson was wide of the plate, but the next came over, and Jackson, who had signaled the hit and run, slashed at the ball, but it rolled harmlessly into Herzog's hands, and Jackson was tossed out at first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

GIANTS—George Burns waited not upon the pleasure of Faber, but pounced upon the first pitched ball of the Chicago hurler and lifted it in a long loop to the waiting hands of Oscar Felsch in deep right field. Felsch had to make a long run, which excited the crowd into cheers of anticipations, but Felsch cut short the cheers by arriving in time. Faber shoved a sharp breaking curve past Herzog for a strike and started another in that general direction, but the Giant Captain got his bat in the way. The ball hastened past Faber and seemed started for the outfield, but Eddie Collins raced over, picked the ball up and while still off balance threw to Gandil in time to cut down Herzog. Collins made a play which would have brought oceans of cheers in Chicago, but only a few ripples of applause were heard here. For the thirteenth time during the series Kauff advanced to the plate, foul tipped a delivery of Faber for a strike and then shoved a nice bounder to McMullin. It was the thirteenth hitless attempt of the little centrefielder, but his time was coming, and mighty soon thereafter. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning.

WHITE SOX—Schupp tried to tease Felsh into offering at a bad ball, but gave up this quickly and shoved the next one across the plate. Felsch met it squarely for a grass cutter which plunked into Fletcher's hands with the speed of a rifle bullet. Fletcher held the ball and threw to Holke before he felt the sting left by the flying ball. Gandil refused to offer at one too far inside the plate, fouled off one and then bounded into Schupp's hands, and the out to Holke was only a matter of course. Weaver made a vicious stab at a ball too close to him to be hit, watched a wide one pass by, foul tipped a third one and made another futile attempt to hit an offering which sailed so high over his head Rariden had to jump for it. The crowd laughed at Weaver's foolishness in front of the puzzling Schupp. No runs, no hits, no errors.

GIANTS—Still suffering in the throes of a pitiable batting slump Zimmerman watched a strike float by and then drove a bounder to Eddie Collins, which Eddie accepted gracefully and faultlessly. Fletcher made two savage swings at the ball and succeeded in fouling each before he connected squarely. The ball hopped toward third but failed to elude the vigilant McMullin, and Fletcher came to an untimely end at first base. Because of his blistering batting in Wednesday's game Robertson had to respond to prolonged cheers as he faced Faber for the first time. Davy had done so well plowing into the first ball served by Cicotte that he was allowed to take a chance at Faber's bender. Davy pulled too far and the hard-driven ball landed a few feet foul in the right field grand stand. With visions of a home run Robertson lunged at the second pitch, but it was so high it bounded out of Schalk's glove. On Davy's third swing he dropped the ball into Faber's outstretched hands and was out to Gandil. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Inning.

WHITE SOX—Schupp had no great respect for Schalk since he shoved the first offering across the centre of the plate and Schalk allowed it to go by. Schupp succeeded so well he started another strike over, but Schalk fouled off this one. Again Schupp elected to make the little Chicago catcher hit the ball and hit it he did. Schalk sent the ball on a line to left field for a clean single. Faber was ordered to bunt and he can hardly be blamed for trying nor for the fact that his bunt looped into the hands of Schupp for an out.

Schupp placed two strikes over on John Collins before Shano was aware of what he was up there for. On the third pitch Shano leaned against the ball and sent it flying down the third base line, but it was outside and foul by inches. Schupp pitched a wide one and then Shano fouled off two more. On the second foul Schalk started to steal but was forced to retrace his steps. Another wide one came and then Shano collected his fourth foul. Since Shano was unable to drive the ball into safe territory Schupp decided it was time enough to get rid of the Sox player so he hooked over a wide curve which Collins struck at but in vain, and was retired a strike-out victim. As McMullin came to bat Schalk began to dance off first base in an attempt to worry Schupp. The young Giant pitcher paid considerable attention to Schalk but did not forget he had another task of greater proportions in taking care of McMullin. Schupp pitched one wide of the plate, then curved over a strike. McMullin fouled off the next and then made another foolish swing at the fourth pitch, which was so wide of the plate that the proverbial ten-foot pole would not have been long enough to reach it. McMullin trotted to his position, appearing as foolish as was Weaver in the second inning. No runs, one hit, no errors.

GIANTS.—Holke missed an attempt to bunt the first offering from Faber, fouled off one, and then bit at a wide pitch which Schalk dropped but recovered in time to throw out Holke at first. It was Faber's first strike-out. On the third pitched ball to Rariden, the Giant catcher lifted a high foul behind third base, which McMullin easily gathered in. Faber was using a sharp curve which apparently had the Giants completely baffled. Schupp had no better success than his predecessors, since he watched a strike go by, a ball, then struck at a low one, and followed by trying to hit another low one, which gave Faber two strike-outs for the inning and brought him the credit of not allowing a hit or run or a man to first in the three opening innings. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning.

WHITE SOX.—Since it was in the fourth inning of the first three games that the battles were decided, each team seemed unusually awake at the start of this frame. Chicago's big chance came, but was lost by heedless base running on the part of Eddie Collins. Eddie made a vicious swing at Schupp's first offering, but only foul-tipped it. On the second Eddie sent the ball spinning over third base, and by dint of fast running managed to convert the hit into a double, although Burns recovered the ball quickly and got it back to Herzog about the same time Eddie was sliding into second.

Jackson was intent upon sacrificing his teammate to third but bunted foul on his first attempt. The next offering was a pitch-out thrown in attempt to pick Collins off second, but Rariden's throw was a trifle late. Jackson again bunted foul and the sacrifice was given up. Schupp offered one too wide of the plate, and again Rariden was a trifle late trying to pick Collins off second. Jackson then wasted his part in the affair with a high infield fly to Herzog. Schupp was so deliberate in his pitching that Jackson several times walked from the box and complained that the Giant youngster was holding up the game. The umpires found differently. Felsch never took his bat off his shoulder until Schupp had worked himself into the hole of 3 and 1. Felsch fouled the next one into the right-field stand, only a few feet from fair territory, and again fouled one off.

At this point Collins, who should have been playing the game safely, especially with the count 3 and 2 on such a dangerous hitter as Felsch, wandered too far off second, and a snap throw from Schupp to Herzog found the Chicago Captain caught flat-footed and trapped between bases. He raced toward third, but Herzog's throw to Zimmerman counted Collins out. How the crowd booed when the smart little player was shown up! It was a very foolish thing on his part and undoubtedly broke up Chicago's chances, since Felsch fanned on the next pitch. No runs, no hits, no errors.

GIANTS.—Since Chicago passed up the opportunities of the fourth inning the Giants decided to utilize whatever unknown force prevails. But there were few who expected such astonishing results, and especially from the person who really accomplished the downfall of the visitors. Burns had stood with bat on shoulder while Faber curved three strikes over the plate and Herzog was retired. Eddie Collins to Gandil, when Benjamin Michael Kauff left the Giant bench with the remark that he had gone hitless thirteen times before, but no one ever made it fourteen straight over him.

Kauff was primed to do or perish in the attempt and swung so hard at the first pitched ball he almost lost his balance when he only tipped it. The second pitch was wide, and Kauff only dug his spikes deeper in the ground as he ignored the offering. Benny was set and ready for the third, which came up big as life. It was Benny's chance, and he took advantage of it by driving the ball far over Felsch's head to the centre-field fence. It was a foot race between Benny and Felsch, although each ran in opposite directions, and Benny won the race. Never had Kauff run so hard before. He rounded first as if carried on the wings of Mercury. He had Mercury distanced as he turned second. At third the flight of Time hardly could have kept up with Kauff, and he crossed the plate still going, several laps before the ball arrived from the outfield. Felsch had momentarily fumbled the ball trying to pick it up from behind a bush in the outfield, and this fumble gave Benny the necessary time to complete the circuit without molestation.

It was the first hit off Faber of the game, but it was a blow which caused more cheers, greater enthusiasm and brought enough help to the Giants to practically decide the issue. It knocked the confidence out of Faber, and left Benny lionized. It was Benny's first hit of the series, but it more than made up for his lack of punishment prior to the occasion. Zimmerman tried to emulate Kauff, but his best effort was another roller to Collins. One run, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

WHITE SOX.—Gandil was not disheartened by the home run of Kauff; in fact, he was just the opposite since he smashed the first offering from Schupp into left centre field for a single. Weaver refused to sacrifice, and missed his first swing at the ball. He still insisted in trying to tear the cover off the ball on the second pitch, and only got into trouble thereby, since the ball bounded to Herzog, who made a quick toss to Fletcher, forcing out Gandil at second, and Fletcher threw to Holke at first in time to double up Weaver at that station. Again the cheers were prolonged, since it was the first double play of the New York games. Had Weaver sacrificed the result might have been different, as Schalk waited until he got Schupp in the hole with three balls and two strikes, and then got his second single of the game, the ball scooting past Fletcher near second base. This single, as in the case of Gandil's, was wasted. Faber rolled the second offering back to Schupp, and Schupp converted it into an out by a toss to Holke. No runs, two hits, no errors.

GIANTS.—Having gained a run through the prodigious wallop by Kauff, McGraw tried out a bunting schedule, and it worked almost as well. Fletcher walked into the first ball pitched and shoved it into the safe territory in right field for a single. Robertson waved the umpire away from his line of vision around second base, then fouled one trying to bunt. On the next pitch Robertson laid down a perfect bunt along the third-base line and beat Faber's throw to first, while Fletcher jogged to second. It was a hit for Robertson.

Holke also was ordered to bunt, and he was equally successful since he dropped the ball along the third-base line. Faber again fielded the ball and turned to throw to third in hope of forcing out Fletcher, but McMullin, foolishly, had left third bag uncovered, and there was no one there to throw to. Faber turned and threw to first, trying to head off Holke, but the ball arrived too late, and Holke got credit for a hit, and the bases were loaded since Robertson had scampered to second.

In the precarious condition the White Sox infield gathered in close to the catcher, and Faber prepared to do his level best against Rariden. The Giant catcher allowed two wide ones to pass by, fouled off another, then bounded the next to Faber, who made a hurried throw to Schalk at the plate, which forced out Fletcher. Schalk had to jump for the plate and turn completely around to make a throw to Gandil, but he accomplished this feat and Rariden was doubled up at first.

It seemed Faber had pulled out of extreme difficulties, especially with Schupp advancing to the plate, and there was a sigh of relief from the Chicago fielders. However, Schupp crossed the wisest of the wise by batting the fifth pitch of Faber just beyond the reach of Eddie Collins for a single, which carried Robertson over the plate. Holke tried to follow Robertson, even against the shouts of George Gibson, coaching at third, and was cut down on a sharp throw by Felsch. Gibson did everything but grab Holke as the youngster rounded third, but Holke was so intent on scoring he paid no attention to anyone, notwithstanding he had no chance whatever of beating the short throw of Felsch. One run, four hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

WHITE SOX.—Schupp had renewed confidence as he began this session. He shot the first pitch to John Collins, across the plate for a strike, wasted the second trying to tease a bite out of Shano, and saw Collins foul off the third into the stands. Umpire Rigler threw an old ball into the field for play, and Manager Rowland objected, but the objections were overruled, after a bit of repartee from Rowland and Fletcher. Shano evidently had no objections to the old ball since he plastered it on a line to left field for a single. It was the fourth straight inning in which the first Chicago batter had hit safely, and still the visitors were scoreless.

McMullin dropped a foul fly on the head of a fan in the right field stand to make the count two strikes and two balls, and then, as if sorry for the accident, allowed a third strike to be called against him. McMullin kicked vigorously at the decision of Umpire Rigler, but it was only another argument won by the umpire. Two strikes were called on Eddie Collins and a ball, when Rariden let a pitch get away from him. John Collins dashed for second base, but Rariden recovered in time to get the ball to Herzog ahead of the runner. Herzog must have touched Shano on the spikes since the ball flew out of Herzog's hands and rolled away. Umpire Evans had called John Collins out, but had to reverse his decision, and Herzog was charged with the only error of the game. Eddie Collins then flied to Burns. Jackson hit the first ball toward second base, and Herzog atoned for his error by stopping it and throwing out Jackson at first. No runs, one hit, one error.

GIANTS.—After striking at a wide pitch, which was one of three thrown in succession by Faber, George Burns managed to meet the ball squarely and sent it bounding toward second base. Eddie Collins raced over, checked the flight of the ball, but was unable to hold it, and Burns got credit for a single. Herzog passed up a wide one and bunted on the second, sacrificing Burns to second, since Faber's toss put out Herzog at first. Kauff's smile was a mile and a half wide, but his efforts were not so great since his long, high fly was gathered in by Felsch, albeit far out in centrefield. Burns had no trouble in scampering to third after the catch. For the third straight time of the game Zimmerman, hitting the first ball offered by Faber, sent a grounder to Eddie Collins, and died at first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

WHITE SOX.—Felsch was called out on strikes and promptly objected, but was overruled. Fletcher threw out Gandil on an easy grounder. Weaver raised a high fly, which Herzog caught near the pitcher's box. No runs, no hits, no errors.

GIANTS.—There may be nothing but superstition connected with the proverbial lucky seventh, but the Giants added another run in that frame and by the use of one hit added to the records by Artie Fletcher, who pounded the first offering of Faber for a single. Robertson did not get a chance to offer at the first pitch to him, since it struck the earth in front of the plate, bounded against Schalk's shin guards and rolled almost to the Giant bench. Fletcher never hesitated at second, but took two bases on the wild pitch.

Robertson dropped the next offering along the first base line and was thrown out by Faber. Fletcher held third during the demise of Robbie, although it appeared that he could have scored had he been of that mind. Faber continued wilder than a hawk and punctured Holke in the ribs, it being the first case of the series where a batsman has been hit by pitcher. Also it was the first wild pitch of the series, since the "firsts" are to be recorded.

With Rariden at bat the Chicago infielders elected to play back, hoping for a double play instead of trying to check Fletcher's flight to the plate. This did not work well, since as Holke started to steal second Rariden sent a slow roller toward second and Fletcher scored while Eddie Collins was having all he could do to field the ball and throw out Rariden at first. Schupp allowed Faber to pitch three wide of the plate and two strikes before he hit the ball to Weaver for an out at first. One run, one hit, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

WHITE SOX.—Schupp was more confident than ever with the game near an end and a three-run lead to work on. He stuck the first ball over the plate to Schalk and saw it sail to left field on a line, but right into Burns's hands for an out. Risberg was selected by Manager Rowland to bat for Faber in hopes of breaking through Schupp's puzzles. Risberg proved a patient waiter, but hardly more effective than Faber as a hitter, since with the count three balls and two strikes he raised a fly to Robertson. On the second pitched ball John Collins spanked out his second single of the game, but was left stranded at first base when McMullin lifted a towering fly to Herzog. No runs, one hit, no errors.

GIANTS. — If Benny Kauf had not enough glory from his fourth inning circuit smash, his cup of happiness certainly must have run over at the finish of this frame, which was a most disastrous round for Dave Danforth, the other "shine ball" artist of the Chicago pitching staff, who was elected to take up the burden where Faber left off. Burns gave Danforth no inkling of what was in store since George allowed a third strike to drift over the plate. Herzog, however, paved the way for future events by straightening out a wide curve for a single to centre.

Benjamin Kauff came to bat. The crowd by this time was hurrying toward the exits, aware that the Giants were triumphant. Most of the fans halted, however, when they perceived Benny at the plate in expectation of another true outburst of feeling from the little fellow's bat. These fans were repaid immensely, for once more Benny measured himself for a suit of home run armor by driving the ball into the lower tier of the right field grand stand and jogging around the bases, led by Herzog. After three hitless games, Benny had plowed into fame with two home runs in a single contest. When the excitement died down and Benny recovered from the none too gentle smashes on the back from his teammates, it was perceived that Heinie Zimmerman was up there with a look of determination. Heinie had been fooled unmercifully by Faber, but no shine Danforth was going to humiliate the pride of the Bronx. Heinie stepped into the third ball pitched and lifted it to the right field fence for a triple. Fletcher was too anxious and after fouling off two, struck wildly at a third one wide of the plate and one which Schalk only stopped, but in time to throw out Fletcher at first and hold Zim at third. Zimmerman wanted to score badly, so with Robertson at the bat the intrepid Bronxonian attempted to steal home, but was out by forty miles. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

WHITE SOX.—With only five runs needed to tie and six to win the White Sox continued to hold their heads in the air as they advanced for their last attack. Eddie Collins allowed a strike to waft by, fouled off one and then stood with his bat snuggled against his shoulder, while Schupp pitched four straight balls. Eddie Collins was the recipient of the first pass to first of the game. Schupp insisted that he had curved the last offering over the plate and yelled "murder" when Rigler allowed Collins to walk to first, but it got him nothing.

Jackson, by distributing three fouls among three wide deliveries, also managed to work the count to 3 and 2, but his best only was a grounder to Zimmerman, on which Collins went to second and Jackson was thrown out at first. Collins was allowed to steal third unmolested as Schupp breezed a strike over on Felsch, and Eddie had the distinction of being the only visiting batsmen to get that far during the game. Felsch had made a home run in most timely fashion in Chicago and the hopes of the White Sox were centered on a repetition, but this time Felsh only raised a pop foul behind third base, which Zimmerman gathered in lovingly.

Gandil believed the game might just as well be over then as anytime so he banged the first offering on the nose and saw it settle into the outstretched hands of Benny Kauff. Benny settled the game in more ways than one.

IRVIN COBB TAKES COLONEL TO GAME

SCHUPP A THOROUGHBRED

Kentuckian Discovers a Strain of Very Blue Blood in McGraw's Twirler from the South.

By IRVIN S. COBB.

I took my old friend, Colonel Fudney Corbett of Kentucky out to the ball yard with me yesterday afternoon. The Colonel came up from the Pennyrile district of our native State to do some Fall shopping at the places where they buy and sell horse flesh, and I found him standing in an areaway on Broadway and hailed him.

"Colonel," I said, "how would you like to go to the game with me today?"

"Son," said the venerable old gentleman, "I'll go with you in a minute providin' they'll give a Southern gentleman a chance to boost 'em a little when the hands run his way. But this here two-dollar limit certainly does' git on my nerves."

I explained that the game I meant was a ball game, and more than that, the fourth game of the world series.

"Well, well, well," he remarked, "you don't mean to tell me so? Still, I suspected something out of the ordinary must be goin' on—there's such a monstrous lot of people in town. I've been standin' here in this door for purty nigh half an hour waitin' fur the crowd to git by, but they kept right on comin' along in a stiddy stream. And jest look yonder at all them vehicles and things passin'! You New York folks certainly seem to be powerfully behind with your haulin'."

I had rather figured that the Polo Grounds and the multitude within them would give Colonel Corbett a slight surprise, but he hardly lifted his white eye-brows as I ushered him into the press stand, and he, sitting there, as it were, between the eyes of the great bull-headed stadium, beheld its wide curving horns filled, or almost filled with humanity. I calculated, too, that the game, with its abundant thrills and its accompaniment of rabid fans whooping their heads off, and the scene after the game when the jubilant hordes were pouring across the sward whereon for two hours the revivified Giants had been toying with the feebly-resisting forms of the Pale Socks, would evoke from the Colonel some comment. But right up to the end, he remained silent. Once or twice I caught him shaking his head in a fretful sort of fashion.

Schupp Fails to Fool Colonel.

"Colonel," I said when the last man was out in the first half of the ninth, "You don't seem to enjoy the national pastime very much."

"Well, son," he confessed, "to tell you the truth I am jest a mite disappointed."

"Why, I thought it was a corking game," I said.

"Oh, I ain't got no fault to find with the way them boys played," he said. "Almost without exception they done first rate. I was specially pleased with the performance of that young feller that done the pitchin' fur your New York boys. I heard somebody say he came from Kentucky, and he certainly deported himself as such. Blood will tell, although I can't say as I ever remember havin' heard the Schupps mentioned amongst the old families down our way. I reckin maybe it's an assumed name. I'll bet you, if the truth was known, he's got Breckinridge stock or some of the Clay strain in him. You can't fool me about a thorougbred colt, even if he is sailin' under Dutch colors.

"No, Suh, I ain't got no fault to find with the game. Judgin' by remarks let fall in my hearin', it must have given general satisfaction. It was the conduct of the crowd itself which caused me distress."

I ventured to remark that it had seemed to me a remarkably orderly crowd.

"That's just the trouble," he explained, "the crowd was too dad blamed orderly. Not a single person out of all this here big crowd tried to kill an umpire. There were four umpires to pick from, too—two big ones, one little one, and one medium-sized one. I'm feared the Yankee public is losin' its spirit.

Crowd Too Kind to Umpires.

"Why, son, down our way, as you well know, if you ain't forgot by reason of bein' away from the old State so long, we don't think a game amounts to shucks without we use up at least one umpire durin' the course of it. Generally speakin', the umpire sees the handwritin' on the wall immediately after makin' the first unfavorable decision against the home team, and he takes his foot in his hand and starts for the State line with 1,500 or so of our leadin' citizens trailin' along behind him beggin' him at the tops of their voices to stop long enough for them to knock the chinkin' out from between his ribs with their bare hands. When an umpire leaves our midst he don't never come back—not even for his valise. He sends back.

"I call to mind the last game of the season that was played in our little league jest three weeks ago. It certainly offered a mighty pleasant contrast to the conduct of this here tame crowd out here today. In the eighth innin', with the score a tie and our boys at bat, our second baseman knocked a high foul that came down right alongside the grand stand. The visitin' catcher had done run under it, and was jest fixin' to ketch it when Major Marcellus Hightower, one of our most enterprising and quick-thinkin' citizens, had the presence of mind to lean over the rail and squirt about a half pint of clear amber right in the catcher's eyes, causin' him to muff the ball. The spectators cheered the Major for fully five minutes. And yet some people will tell you that tobacco-chewin' is a vice!

"But the most thrillin' moment of all came in the ninth, when the score was still a tie and our boys were again at bat. For some reason or other our citizens had mercifully seen fit to spare the umpire up until then. Bud Oliver, our catcher, was at bat, and the umpire had the hardihood to call a strike on him. Buck turned to give the umpire a warnin' look, and the opposin' pitcher took a low down advantage of him by slammin' another one acrost the plate.

"'Two!' the umpire sings out, jest like that.

It's Different in Kentucky.

"At that instant, Buster Kilgore, our worthy and efficient City Marshal, leaps out of his seat behind the home plate, clears the grand stand fence at a bound, and in another second he has that umpire by the throat with one hand and is reachin' for his hardware with the other.

"'Two what?' says Buster in a low but deadly tone of voice. 'Two what, you cheatin' scoundrel?'

"So, in view of him bein' willin' to listen to reason, and also in view of the fact that our boys won in the tenth, the crowd spared the umpire, but I certainly hope it was a lesson to him. It ain't often that our people are so patient and forbearin' as to suffer an umpire to stay on right up until the end of the game. Generally, we chase him over into the next county. It's a dry county, too, but nine times out of ten often it serves the rascal right."

"But the judgments of the umpires today were all fair enough," I said.

"What difference does that make?" demanded Colonel Corbett. "It's the principle of the thing I'm thinkin' of. How kin a crowd at a baseball game show that they've got the best interests of the sport at heart unless they show their willin'ness to tear the haslets out of the umpire?"

I left the Colonel at his hotel, he being still in a despondent frame of mind over the sad state into which the national pastime had fallen. However, I am convinced that otherwise no fault was found locally with the outcome of the fourth game of the series, Chicago visitors being excepted.

White Sox Tricks Are Futile.

They resorted to all the traditional expedients which are deemed to be efficacious for turning the adverse tides of a ball game—the White Socks did. There was Mr. Happy Felsch traveling fully twenty feet from the plate in order to find just exactly the right sort of soil to rub on his hands and the seat of his trousers before striking at Ferdy Schupp's offerings. The ordinary earth about the home plate would not suffice; Happy had to go away over toward third base for a special variety. And even that did not do the trick.

There was Mr. McMullin, who came up in his turn, swinging three bats over his shoulder and placing them upon the ground before him and making a discriminating selection. It seemed hard after he had gone to such pains that Mr. McMullin invariably had the ill-fortune to pick out the kind of bat with which one strikes out.

There was Mr. Faber anointing the ball with just the proper amount of his salivatory essences in exactly the proper proportions and then winding up like a grandfather's clock before delivering the humid spheroid. That didn't help either. And on such occasions as Mr. Faber showed signs, under punishment, of going up into the air there was Mr. Schalk invading the diamond, and, with his arm over Mr. Faber's shoulder, giving him in a confidential whisper an excellent recipe for nut cake, or telling him where he thought he left his umbrella the other night, or asking regarding his health, or saying whatever thing it is customary for a catcher to say to a pitcher in one of these mysterious, private conferences which always they hold at a critical stage in the proceedings. Indeed, it might be said that the Chicago boys left no stone unturned.

Place in the Sun for Benny.

But naught that the Rowlandites could do was of avail, for the Giants played like ball players inspired and were not to be denied. Sustained by the impeccable work of Ferdy Schupp in the box, cheered by the conduct of Mr. Benny Kauff and Mr. Heinie Zimmerman, both of whom suddenly decided, after a long period of total eclipse, to win for themselves a place in the sun, with the result that Benny knocked two Liberty Bond home runs and Heinie graduated out of the class of the confirmed anti-batters by responding to the popular demand for a hit on his part with a three bagger—as I say, buoyed and uplifted by these things and by other contributing factors, the Giants made merry and five runs at the expense of the erstwhile haughty children of the killing pens. The members of the Stock Yards' younger set, who now have gone scoreless for twenty-two consecutive innings, were a gloom-ridden lot when the finish came, and for some time before the finish came.

In this connection I might state that, for the second time within two fateful and portentous days, it fell to the lot of one of the Collins boys to chamber a heavy cargo of deep repinings. This certainly seems to be an off-week for members of the Collins family. On Wednesday it was J. Collins, but yesterday it was E. Collins. Wednesday night E. Collins wouldn't speak to J. Collins. Last night J. Collins wouldn't speak to E. Collins.

The undoing of E. Collins came to pass in the fourth inning, which, as every game thus far in the present series has shown, is the inning when the game is lost and won. He hit a two-bagger, thus silencing for the moment the boos of the New York fans, who, for some reason, have picked on him as their chief objection. And then, having accomplished this feat, Mr. E. Collins strolled off second, and, while standing there flat-footed and entranced, giving a creditable imitation of a solid hardwood chiffonier with the casters missing, he was caught and tagged out, thus dimming what threatened to be a promising rally for the White Sox. At a late hour last night the unfortunate young man was reported to be still in his coma.

FORDHAM PREP BOYS EASY.

'Varsity Has Little Trouble in Practice Fray with School Team.

The Fordham Prep team was called upon yesterday to face the 'Varsity in the daily scrimmage. It was the first time this season that these two elevens met. Unlike former seasons, the youngsters, shorn of their veteran and heavy material, were unable to furnish much of a fight. They did, however, enable the collegians to get in a good workout for tomorrow's game with Norwich University. The prep players could not pierce the 'Varsity front, but worked several forward passes.

On the offensive the 'Varsity team covered the field three times in fifteen minutes. All of the substitutes had a trial in the lineup. Bill Erwig was still forced to romp upon the sidelines, and it looks as if he will be forced to defer his season's début until the Holy Cross game.

TEST FOR N. Y. U. 'VARSITY.

Long Scrimmage Includes Defensive and Offensive Practice.

The New York University football squad had a thorough workout yesterday. In the scrimmage, which lasted for over an hour, the 'Varsity was tested first on the defense and then on the offense. The scrubs received the ball on the regulars' ten-yard line and managed to get it over four times, but not without a stiff battle on each attempt. The regulars received the ball on their own ten-yard line, and, with the help of a strengthened line, the backfield managed in a few downs to go almost the entire length of the field. The gains were mainly made by Egan and Christopher on line bucks. The regulars repeated their former march, this time trying several forward passes, but these were mainly intercepted. When the ball had once more crossed the scrub line the scrimmage was continued in the light of a large arc light on one corner of the gymnasium.

The 'Varsity yesterday was without several of its members. Finley and Sokolower are out nursing injuries. The former has an infected knee and the latter a wrenched knee. Ex-Captain Bernstein of last year's team helped handle the scrubs. Another old-timer on the field yesterday was Tom Cusack, who in 1914 kicked a forty-three-yard drop kick in a game on Ohio Field.

COLUMBIA ELEVEN AT WORK.

Scrimmage with Naval Reserve Team Scheduled Tomorrow.

Anticipating the scrimmage with a Naval Reserve team from the Brooklyn Navy Yard tomorrow, Coach Metcalfe of Columbia announced that only signal drill would be held today. In yesterday afternoon's practice he sent the 'Varsity against the second team, and later against the freshmen, for short workouts. In the preliminary warm-up Houlahan showed good punting form, getting an average of forty yards with his long, twisting spirals. Against the second team Howard Miller, the star quarter back of the 1915 team, scored twice within ten minutes.

Galvan, the centre who used to play for Georgetown, appeared in his military drill uniform because he is on the invalid list. It has been officially reported that Raimondo, last year's quarter back, and Forsyth, a high school star, who seemed sure of a place in the yearling back field, will both be unable to play on account of heart trouble.

British Tars Lose at Soccer.

The sailor soccer players attached to H. M. S. Roxburgh made a good showing against the Overseas Wanderers at the C. C. N. Y. Stadium yesterday afternoon. On a former occasion these teams split even, but yesterday John Bull's sea dogs had to acknowledge defeat by the close score of two goals to one. It was a penalty in the second half that decided the issue.

WISTFUL A WINNER IN MUD AT LAUREL

James Butler's Star Shoot Filly Beats Good Field in Martha Washington Handicap.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 11.—A heavy track was entirely to the liking of Wistful, the Star Shoot filly that James Butler selected instead of Capra to carry his colors in the Martha Washington, the feature of the Maryland Fair Association card today. Besides Capra, Julialeon and Madame Curie were withdrawn, leaving only five to go to the post. In spite of the fact that Wistful was asked on to give weight to the four-year-old mare Dorcas, her well-known liking for the mud caused her to be well played in the mutuels. Lyke made no effort to go to the front with the Butler filly early in the race, but waited behind the pacemakers until the stretch. The daughter of Star Shoot showed a rare flight of speed when let down, and ran over Priscilla Mullens to win with something in hand. Third money went to Dorcas.

Another of the get of Star Shoot scored in the fifth race, for selling platers, at a mile and a quarter. This had been voted a good thing for Christie in advance, but this Star Shoot gelding was not equal to the long route, and after showing early speed dropped back and finished outside the money. E. K. Bryson's Sky Pilot was the horse which maintained the reputation of the Star Shoots for shining in heavy going. He went to the front in the stretch, and easily defeated the outsider No Manager, which held the place from Copper King.

A good field turned out for the steeplechase, in which top weight was carried by Rai Parr's old jumper, Shannon River. The weight proved a little too much for the old campaigner, and D. Raymond's Reddest took the lead away from him in the last lap, maintaining it to the end.

HOBART DATES REVISED.

Will Meet Hamilton College at Clinton Tomorrow.

GENEVA, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The Hobart College football schedule has been revised for the season, and is as follows:

Oct. 13—Hamilton at Clinton; 20—St. Lawrence at Geneva; 27—University of Rochester at Rochester; Nov. 3—Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy; 10—Columbia University at New York City; 17—University of Rochester at Geneva; 29, (Thanksgiving Day)—University of Buffalo at Buffalo.

Even though a rather ambitious schedule will be played, the prospects are good for a very successful season. Even with a reduced registration of the student body, an average of twenty-two men is out every day, and a fast eleven is getting into condition.

WHITE LEADS FIELD ON SHAWNEE LINKS

Establishes Mark for Invitation Tournament with a Card of 37, 38—75.

Special to The New York Times.

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Penn., Oct. 11.—Although he had been out of competitive golf practically all season Gardiner W. White, the former Flushing champion, easily led the field in the eighteen-hole qualifying round of the Shawnee Country Club Fall invitation event here today. White went out in 37 and back in 38 for a 75, which is the lowest qualifying score ever made in an amateur invitation tournament on this course. A 73 has been returned in a local handicap, while in the open two years ago Gil Nicholls, the Great Neck professional, had a 68.

Six of those to constitute the first eight are from clubs in the New York district. Besides White, C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., and Max Behr, a Baltusrol pair, had 87 each, as did Dan Healy, formerly identified with the St. Andrew's Golf Club.

White putted with a deadliness that discounted a number of wild drives in the early stages of the round. At the first he sliced his tee shot to the rough, took two more to get home, and then sank a putt half way across the green. After an iron shot to the trap going to No. 4 he again saved himself with a twenty-footer. He also sank long ones at the sixth and ninth, while on the home green he laid his spoon shot to within two clubs' length of the pin, and then brought off a downhill putt for a 2. His card follows:

Out ..........4 4 4 4 6 4 4 3 4—37
In ..........6 5 5 4 4 4 3 5 2—38—75

Those who qualified in the first four eights were as follows:

Van Vleck, Jr., Baltusrol 42, 45—87; Dan P. Healy, New York, 46, 41—87; S. H. Ivison, Cherry Valley, 45, 43—88; F. C. Hall, Montclair, 50, 43—93.

Second Eight.—G. A. Fogarty, Essex County, 46, 47—93; E. M. Sawtelle, Englewood, 47, 49—96; G. W. Statzell, Jr., Aronimink, 46, 51—97; H. B. ## MRS. BARLOW IS WINNER.

Defeats Mrs. Fox in Second Round for Berthellyn Golf Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—Playing steady and consistent golf throughout, despite soggy greens and water-soaked fairways, Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of the Merion Cricket Club scored a notable victory over Mrs. Caleb F. Fox of the home club in the second round of match play for the Berthellyn Cup, played at the Huntingdon Valley Country Club today.

Mrs. Barlow won by a margin of 3 up and 2 to play, thus reversing the result of their last meeting in the women's championship tournament at the Merion Cricket Club last Summer, when Mrs. Fox carried off the victory and, incidentally, annexed the city title thereby.

LEXINGTON MEET CLOSES.

Measles Takes 2:20 Trot, Making Three Victories for Gelding.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 11.—Lexington's Grand Circuit meeting came to a close today after ten days of successful sport. A card of four purse races was offered, three of which were won in straight heats. Measles, the winner of the 2:20 trot, became the first and only triple winner of the meeting.

Mary Rosalind Parr became a double winner when she won the 2:10 pace, the first event on the card, this giving her driver, Charles A. Valentine, the credit of winning five races, the greatest number won by any driver during the meeting. Gentry C. also joined the ranks of double race winners in the 2:12 trot, which he won handily, making a new record of 2:07¼ in the final heat.

The three-year-old trot was the only split heat race of the afternoon, being won by Harvest Tide after Bourbon Forbes had beaten her the first heat.

The best contest of the afternoon was between Mary Rosalind Parr and Tommy Direct in the second and third heats of the 2:10 pace, each heat being a rousing finish. The first heat in the three-year-old trot was also a close one, Bourbon Forbes winning by a neck. In the second heat the colts trotted the second quarter in 0:29¾.

BIG TASK FOR AL McCOY.

Brooklyn Middleweight Will Box Harry Greb on Tuesday Night.

Al McCoy, the Brooklyn middleweight, generally recognized as the titleholder in this class, has undertaken a mighty task for his next bout in this vicinity, which will be decided at the Broadway S. C. of Brooklyn next Tuesday night. McCoy has selected for his opponent Harry Greb, the sturdy Pittsburgh boxer, who has won both of his bouts since coming to New York in decisive fashion. This will be McCoy's first appearance in a metropolitan ring in many months, and it is reported that several bouts he has engaged in out of town have helped to improve his style of boxing.

BARNHILL IS VICTOR IN SIWANOY GOLF

Captures Gross Prize in Annual Metropolitan Advertising G. A. Tourney.

W. Roy Barnhill had a successful day on the links of the Siwanoy Country Club yesterday, where the members of the Metropolitan Advertising Golf Association held their annual one-day tournament. With a score of 80 for the course, he captured the gross prize and, together with W. E. Conklyn, shared second honors in a best-ball selected score competition.

The card returned by Barnhill and Conklyn showed 77 strokes, only two more in net than the card of the winning pair, C. E. Sherman and W. Z. Shafer. Eighty golfers competed for the various prizes offered, and this field furnished an interesting struggle for the awards.

Particularly in the competition for net prizes the play was interesting. Six prizes were offered, and for third, fourth, fifth, and sixth prizes the golfers tied, with net scores of 77 strokes. The leading prize went to H. M. Hobart, who returned a card of 103, 28—75. A card of 96, 20—76, gave L. B. De Veau second honors, and then in order for the following four prizes came N. B. Becker, 83, 6—77; W. E. McMillan, 89, 12—77; W. S. Giles, 97, 20—77, and R. Slothingham, 105, 28—77.

A prize was also offered for the golfer going around the course with the least number of putts, and this went to C. A. McCormick, who did the course in 29 putts, two better than W. E. Conklyn, who was second. The honors of a women's putting competition went to Mrs. W. S. Bird.

At a dinner after the golfing day the officials had their annual election of officers, and the following members were chosen: President, Don M. Parker; Vice President, Lee Maxwell; Treasurer, Arthur Moore; Secretary, Roy Dunstin.

TIES IN WOMEN'S GOLF.

Miss Lounsberry Shares Gross and Net Honors at Sleepy Hollow.

Miss Beatrice Lounsberry of the Bedford Golf and Tennis Club carried off the individual honors of the one-day golf tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, held over the links of the Sleepy Hollow Country Club yesterday morning. Miss Lounsberry shared in the principal honors of two competitions, and showed her superiority over a field of thirty of her rivals battling for points toward season prizes. In the net score Miss Lounsberry tied with Mrs. C. T. Russell of Ardsley and Mrs. A. B. Gilkies of Siwanoy, the three having a net score of 93, but on the toss of a coin fortune favored the Bedford G. and T. C. competitor, and she gained first prize, while Mrs. Russell received second.

In the competition for the best gross Miss Lounsberry tied with Mrs. F. A. Herzog of the Fairview Country Club, each golfer having a score of 96. The points toward the season cup were divided one apiece for each golfer. Mrs. Herzog's complete card showed 96, 2-94, and Miss Lounsberry's was 96, 3-93. Mrs. Russell's card was 99, 6-93.

Miske-Levinsky Bout Postponed.

The ten-round bout between Billy Miske, the St. Paul light-heavyweight, and Battling Levinsky, the local boxer, which was to have been decided this evening at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn, has again been postponed. Manager John Weismantel of the Brooklyn club last night announced that because Levinsky, who is an army boxing instructor at Ayer, Mass., could not get a furlough, the bout had been put off until Nov. 13. This is the second time the bout has been postponed, having originally been scheduled for last Tuesday night.

HOPKINS TEAM IS STRONG.

Confidence Marks Eleven After Showing Against Brown.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11.—After a hard game at Providence, where they gave the heavy Brown team the hottest early battle in years, Johns Hopkins University plays in Gettysburg this Saturday. Although largely made up of freshmen, the Hopkins squad has rarely shown fighting qualities. Brown was able to earn but one touchdown against the Black and Blue, scoring the two other touchdowns on an intercepted forward pass and a fumble. The game was characterized by hard tackling and fast open field running.

The Baltimoreans have had the advantage this Fall of a good-sized squad from the start and more daylight practice than usual. The university schedule is beginning an hour earlier now. Henry E. Brennick, of Harvard, who has the Hopkins lads in hand, set everybody learning essentials, with the result that three weeks has developed a hard tackling team, and he has incidentally uncovered three freshman stars in George Carey, Elmer Jones, and Katencamp. The first two are backfield men; Carey possesses many of the qualities that made Bobby Hoffman respected in past years, while Jones is a fighter from start to finish; Katencamp is a strong linesman. Cashell, at fullback, and Purcell at quarter, complete a well-balanced backfield.

DEER HUNTERS WARNED.

Conservation Commission Aims to Decrease Toll of Human Life.

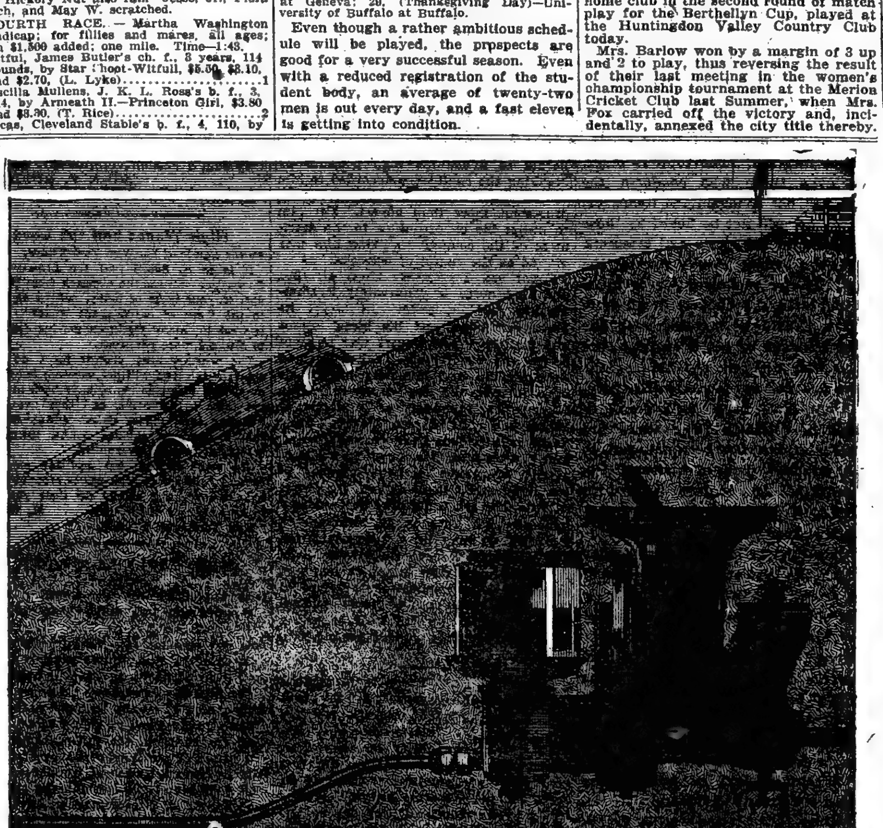
ALBANY, Oct. 11.—"Look Before You Shoot" is the warning issued by Conservation Commissioner George D. Pratt to deer hunters in the Adirondack and Catskill Mountains. It has been stamped on cloth posters, which are being tacked everywhere in the woods by game protectors and forest rangers of the commission. "Save Human Life" and "Avoid Killing Does" are the reasons given on the poster for care in shooting.

"Saving human life," Commissioner Pratt asserted at the office of the commission in Albany, "is the most important idea that I wish to impress upon the minds of sportsmen. The annual toll of lives and the number of those wounded through carelessness with firearms during each hunting season are nothing short of appalling. The saddest part of the whole business is, that practically all of it can be prevented easily, if every hunter will look before he shoots. We are putting up enough of those posters to drive that idea strongly home to every man, except the most reckless and case-hardened.

"The observance of the buck law and the preservation of does, as a means of insuring a future supply of deer, have assumed greatly added importance on account of the necessity for conserving food supply during the war. We know in the commission that a great many does are killed each year through carelessness, because some hunters do not look for horns until after they have shot. We know further, as a result of careful investigation made during the last two years, that the does are breeding absolutely normally and that the buck law is the surest safeguard of our future deer supply.

"It accordingly follows that every doe killed either in carelessness or intentionally, reduces the supply of deer in succeeding years. I want to impress upon hunters this season that it is a patriotic duty, as well as a requirement of good sportsmanship, to take extra pains to observe the buck law conscientiously.

"I should like also to impress upon hunters and the general public that the deer annually killed in New York constitute a most important item of food, which this year, particularly, should be most carefully utilized. Every deer shot should be fully consumed. If it cannot be kept on account of warm weather, it should be given away to prevent spoiling, as every pound of venison consumed saves a pound of beef, pork or other meat that can be utilized in other ways.



HOW YOU CAN SAVE GASOLINE

Tydol, the new economy gasoline, vaporizes fast. It gives best results on a leaner carburetor mixture. And you know that the leaner the mixture you use, the more miles per gallon of gasoline.

The exclusive Edwards Process, by which Tydol is refined, distinguishes it from other gasolines. Yet Tydol costs no more than sluggish gasoline.

Give Tydol a tryout today. Ask the dealer how to adjust the carburetor for the 15 to 1 economy mixture. Then watch results.

OBSTACLES TO PEACE.

Now, except for France's demand for Alsace-Lorraine, there is absolutely no impediment to peace, no question which could not be solved by negotiations or a settlement in such a way as to render superfluous the further sacrifice of blood.—Dr. von Kuehlmann's Reichstag speech.

Is the German Secretary for Foreign Affairs, then, prepared to dismiss the Kaiser, as the Kaiser dismissed Bismarck? The German Emperor and the autocracy represented in his person are impediments to peace unless the world has gravely misconceived the meaning of President Wilson's answer to the Pope. "The object of this war," said the President, "is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the menace and the actual power of a vast military establishment controlled by an irresponsible Government." It is no business of ours, he said, how the German people came under the control of this "ruthless master," "but it is our business to see to it that the history of the rest of the world is no longer left to its handling." He continued:

> We cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee of anything that is to endure unless explicitly supported by such conclusive evidence of the will and purpose of the German people themselves as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting. Without such guarantees treaties of settlement, agreements for disarmament, covenants to set up arbitration in the place of force, territorial adjustments, reconstitutions of small nations, if made with the German Government, no man, no nation could now depend on.

Dr. Michaelis, the German Chancellor, does not agree with the Foreign Secretary in the belief that Alsace-Lorraine is the only impediment to peace. In his speech to the Reichstag he said that peace is "impossible" so long as Germany's enemies demand any German soil or endeavor "to drive a wedge between the German people and their Emperor." The Pan German party, too, are up in arms against Dr. von Kuehlmann's peace program, which, by implication, of course, involves the surrender of Belgium. Count von Westarp, the Conservative leader, insists that "only a British or a German Belgium is possible after the war." We can understand, though, why the Foreign Secretary, even the Chancellor, should be silent in regard to Belgium. They know that the Germans are going to be driven out of Belgium. It is a slow process, but the French and the British gains are sure, they point unmistakably to the dislodgment of the Teutonic forces, visibly growing weaker, less capable of resistance.

We understand perfectly well, too, why the German Foreign Secretary made his speech about Alsace-Lorraine as the sole impediment to peace. While many speeches are made in the Reichstag for home consumption, this is intended for effect abroad. Dr. Kuehlmann would put into the minds of the British people and the American people that the war continues and is now waged solely because France insists upon the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine. The German Government hopes that this will cause an awakening, that the British will say, we shall say, that it is not worth while to waste further billions of dollars and millions of men merely to gratify the desire of France to recover her lost provinces, and so France will be constrained by her allies to consent to peace by negotiation.

There are two reasons why the Chancellor's speech will fail of its hoped-for effect. The one is the reason of honor, but as that would not be understood by German statesmen, it may be passed over. The other is that a peace which allows Germany to retain Alsace-Lorraine would be a peace on German terms, it would be the restoration of the status quo which the President has declared would be no acceptable basis for peace. "This agony must not be gone through with again." The retention of Alsace-Lorraine would be the symbol and proof of Germany's emergence from the war unconquered, with her autocratic rule undisturbed, her military establishment still in the hands of that "furious and brutal power," which, baffled now but unchanged of purpose, would at once begin its rebuilding for the next assault upon the peace of the world.

Yes, Dr. Kuehlmann is right, Alsace-Lorraine is an impediment to peace, will continue to be an impediment until Germany is beaten to the point where she will consent to restore the spoils she brutally seized upon forty-six years ago. She must yield those provinces to France, for Alsace and Lorraine have become an embodiment of the principle for which the Allies are fighting, the principle that "this agony must not be gone through with again," for until Germany consents to restore to France Alsace and Lorraine, which are still in heart and spirit an integral part of the French Republic, which have never been a part of the German Empire or been treated as such, the great objects of the war will not have been attained by the Allies. Restoration is not dismemberment, and peace short of that restoration would not be permanent, it would merely give Germany a breathing spell to prepare for her next attempt to realize her dream of conquest.

THE REGISTRATION.

In the last year of a Mayoralty election in this city there were only four days set apart for registration, and they were spread over more than a week. Comparisons with the daily totals of that year, however, are misleading when applied to this year's registration. With six days of registration this year, the polls are open on all save the last for five hours in the evening only. On Saturday they will be open from 7 in the morning until 10:30 at night.

There was the same complaint of slow registration in 1913 that we have heard this year. The first day's total in that year was 188,066, but the books were open fifteen hours. The total of the five hours on the first day this year was 99,304. The total for the four days in 1913 was 669,639, which should be surpassed this year, and probably will be. That would require an average of only 111,606 for each of the six days. It will be largely exceeded if every voter registers. It is not safe to wait for the last day. In spite of the increased registration as the week nears its end, there are still indications that many voters are holding back.

The election of the Fusion ticket is the desire of every citizen who would have the many administrative reforms of the last four years continued. To obtain that end every independent voter must place his name on the books before next Saturday night. If you have not already registered, you should make it your business to be at the polling place near your home at 5:30 this evening, or as soon afterward as possible.

OUR WATER FESTIVAL.

When that historic spring of fresh, sweet water which filled the well of Gerardus Hardenbrook was turned over to the citizens of New York, who had been forced previously to content themselves with the brackish water of the downtown pumps, the institution of the tea water pump as a new source of supply was duly celebrated with great spirit. No civic celebration could exceed in its proportion of enthusiasm to population that of New York seventy-five years ago next Sunday when the Croton system was completed and an ample and seemingly inexhaustible supply of good water secured. But the city grew in immensity, and the development of the Croton system could not keep pace with its requirements for water. It was not until the dry years of 1895 and 1896, however, that the danger of a water famine was thoroughly realized. Then began the term of protracted debate and experimentation which ended with the acceptance of the prodigious plan of water supply called Catskill. Commissioners were appointed by Mayor McClellan in June, 1905, and Mr. J. Waldo Smith was named Chief Engineer, a position he still deservedly holds, in August of that year. An experimental shaft was sunk at the Storm King end of the Hudson River siphon in February, 1907, and actual work of constructing the aqueduct was begun in June of that year.

Ten years later this gigantic work of engineering and construction is finished. It has cost $140,000,000, and there has been no waste. It has not been delayed by labor strikes or accidents. Its conduct from first to last has been distinguished by a high order of administrative ability, and one by one its huge problems have been solved. The dam at Ashokan is the mightiest structure of its kind in the world. The immense lake which forms the chief reservoir was made by flooding 15,000 acres of land. Nine villages, with many outlying farms, inns, schools, and churches, were removed. All property confiscated was paid for. Eleven miles of the tracks of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad were relocated. No fewer than thirty-two cemeteries were removed. How many citizens of New York have taken note of what was going on in the Hurley district, among the foothills of the Catskills, in these ten years? It is not only the completion of a great work we are celebrating now, but the devotion, unerring skill, and thoroughness of the men who did it.

In a separate reservoir near the dam the vegetable organisms in the water are oxydated. From its surface the water rises in many jets from forty to sixty feet, falling in the form of spray. The aeration plant is surrounded by trees and flowers, and the whole region, comprising 257 square miles, has been beautifully transformed. North of the Ashokan reservoir, which taps the Esopus watershed, they are constructing now the new works of the Schoharie watershed, which will supplement the Esopus supply. Each of these related systems will supply a minimum daily flow of 250,000,000 gallons. The available reserve capacity of the Ashokan reservoir alone is 128,000,000,000 gallons. But figures do not signify. New York has enough water, that is the point. From this reservoir the water is sent by gravity ninety-two miles to the city's northern boundary. The Kensico reservoir, with its capacity of 29,000,000,000 gallons, a supply for the city for two months, and the Hill View reservoir at Yonkers are two important parts of the great work, and the flow continues, through conduits and pipes, by way of river tunnels and one under the Narrows, to all the boroughs and to Silver Lake reservoir on Staten Island, the terminal, 120 miles from Ashokan.

We need not attempt further to compress facts which would require volumes for their coherent narration in these few notes of comment on the significance of the current celebration, the felicitations, ceremonies, and pageantry. This Catskill water system is the natural and inevitable successor to the town pumps of our ancestors, including the highly esteemed tea water pump of the Hardenbrook family. The Croton system, unequaled in its day and still effective, remains as a mere adjunct. The new system promises to supply all five boroughs with all the water they may need. We may outgrow it in another century, scarcely in another seventy-five years.

A CAREFUL THINKER.

When Judge Hylan was trotted out, a Dark Horse shod with German silver, people knew his extrinsic merit from the point of view of the Tammany bosses. He was picked by an illustrious pro-German fancier. What was his intrinsic merit? What special virtue and qualification could be attributed to him? The public, watching him read, stolidly and drearily, the speeches furnished him from headquarters, hasn't found out, but he has kindly told. He is true to "copy." He always reads as he is told. He is going to keep on reading his speeches, he says. He points a reproving finger at "loose talking or oratorical genius." He is a deep-revolving cogitator. Hear him:

> I am giving careful thought and careful consideration to everything that I have to say. I am making no charge against my opponent that I am not able to substantiate. I make no statement that I do not know to be an indisputed fact. If I am elected Mayor, I shall give the same thought and consideration to my acts that I am now giving to my utterances.

"I have to say" sounds like a confession, but, adopting for the moment Judge Hylan's theory that he makes the statements and charges that he reads to his audiences, ponder some specimens of his careful thought and indisputed fact. To the slovenly favoritism of Tammany any city official trained and fitted for his post, any expert, is a sort of monster. So the innocent Brooklyn inexpert has to repeat his lesson about the Fusion employés who add to expertness the guilt of coming, as he asserts, from outside of New York. He named fifteen of these strangers within our gates. Elect him, and he will send them "back to their own town," and their places shall go to the boys. For a citizen not born in the city he has a singular jealousy of that disprivileged class of outlanders.

Mr. Mitchel has taken up, one by one, the fifteen experts, said to be drawn by the Fusion administration from other States and the islands of the sea. Scrupulous of fact, the Judge talked about a "million-dollar patronage bonanza," but he could name only fifteen sharers in it, their combined pay amounting to a few thousand dollars a year. They will have to get out, evade, erump, if he comes to the City Hall. Mr. Mitchel cruelly reminds the judicious and careful-thinking candidate that only six of the bonanza fifteen are now in the employ of the city. One is dead, and had he lived would still have been safe from the wrath of Judge Hylan, even if the comic spirit prevailed among the voters. The dead man was appointed because he was at the head of the civil service list. Others marked for removal by the deliberate and careful nominee are also protected by the civil service rules. Others are now working for the United States in France.

The careful thinker—remember we are assuming that he garners the "facts" which he takes on trust—succeeded in getting wrong about everything in his statement. He was elaborately wrong in general, and in detail. A Consulting Engineer who has worked all his professional life in Brooklyn or Manhattan, save eight months in Washington, is ascribed by the Judge to "Columbia, S. C." A native of Vermont, for many years an engineer in New York, was foisted on "San Domingo," where he had once been the head of the Public Works Service. Probably Judge Hylan's audience was led to believe that this gentleman's face wears the livery of the burnished sun. And so on through the list. The Judge can get nothing straight. His daily repetition of the romance that "the Rockefeller interests," the "Rockefeller Steel" trust, control the public schools, that an administration which will have reduced the number of part-time pupils by 100,000 is putting the children "on half rations of education," that city property has been "bartered away" to "enrich designing speculators and intimate friends," shows either his miraculous ignorance of the facts or his readiness mechanically to emit the grossest inventions. He makes no charges that he is able to substantiate. Accepting his own declaration that he would, as Mayor, act "with the same thought and consideration" as he talks, for what sins should New York be punished by the election of so thoughtless, rash, and judgment-lacking a Mayor?

And yet who wants to be severe with this solemn reciter of fables? To be blamed, to be warned, are the cynical humorists who feed him remorselessly with fictions.

THE BUDGET AND THE CAMPAIGN.

So long as the budget grows, there always will be those who will impute it to the City Government for blame, regardless of the reasons. But the budget will grow so long as the city grows, and those who look beyond the total will find causes for solid satisfaction. So far as the city can control its affairs, the budget presents proof of efficiency and economy. With deductions of the expenses put upon the city by State laws and State expenses, and with deductions of items remedying past errors, the budget is not open to faultfinding. The city is on the road to bankruptcy, according to those who look only at the total. The city is in the road of solvency, according to those who see that the total is due to items which no one would condemn on any other basis than a desire to raise a campaign cry without thought of the results after the campaign.

The largest addition to the budget is $8,463,756 on account of the State direct tax. That is open to criticism at Albany, not here. The next largest addition is on account of city debt service and tax deficiencies. In part this is due to charges on account of such investments as the subways and the water supply. The tax deficiency item is due to the difference between the ways of Fusion and Fusion's predecessors. The old way, when personal taxes were canceled or real estate taxes were reduced, was to carry the taxpayers' defaults as a city asset. At one time this item approached $100,000,000 of bad debts. Under the present administration that item has been nearly cleared off the books. Nearly three millions of the increase is due to the city's first necessary and mandatory contribution to the Teachers' Pension Fund. The increase in salaries is due to the increase of pay to those receiving the smallest salaries and who are hardest hit by the cost of living. This is the head and front of the budget increase. The total is large, but even those who condemn the total will not condemn the items, or, if they do, will not be heard by those who care for the city's real interests.

But the budget is only part of the case. If the administration is to be debited with the budget, in all fairness it should be credited with the other elements of the situation. And those who will pay the bulk of the taxes are not complaining this year, as they have been accustomed to complain, although their taxes are larger. It has not been unusual to have published lists of certiorari tax proceedings to contest valuations ranging in recent years up to more than this year's total increase. Nothing like that is happening this year because the landlords are prosperous, and would not wish to have back their old taxes at the cost of losing their increases of rents. The landlords and the city are getting results from the debt increase, which gives the city betterments, attracting population which was drifting away. The administration is as fortunate in sharing prosperity due to war activity as unfortunate in bearing the burden of former bad finance.

The city today is the world's greatest port, with a total marine trade of over four billions. There are deficiencies in the service, but they have been reduced by the greatest increase of dockage since consolidation. The nation would be the chief sufferer if this administration had not spent $24,000,000 for dock improvements. It has spent ten millions for bridges, and the account is nearly closed. Who would part with one bridge, or could replace any bridge for its cost? It has spent $127,000,000 for rapid transit, and millions of riders will laugh at any criticism of that item. Since 1910, under Fusion, $136,000,000 has been spent for pure water, and the death rate shows the money was well spent. It is a pity that these things could not have been done without the increase of the city debt by a half billion, but the city would be poorer if the money had been saved. This administration is entitled to its credits as well as its debits. It would have been difficult to defend the city's budget and debt in the depression of the earlier war years. The merits would have been the same, but the sentiment would have been different. The Mayor is fortunate in the fact that his campaign falls in a time when the city is at the height of the prosperity to which his administration has been a chief contributor. He has his critics, of course, but they disagree with one another worse than with him.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

To Control Retail Prices Now.

It takes a constitutional and confirmed optimist to hope for any immediate or very material reduction in the high cost of living. Most of us realize that the war, and not any one of the many minor causes ascribed by impassioned orators, is what is making our bills of all sorts so hard to keep within the personal budget schedule, and therefore our expectations of present relief are modest. It is more than a little encouraging, however—it is a real gleam of sunshine in our harassed lives—to learn that at last the conservative and protective activities of the Government are to be directed toward the supervision and control of the retail dealers, to whose uncovenanted mercies the great majority of us are so much more subjected than to those of the wholesalers.

That the wholesalers do have a good deal to do with the general advance in prices the ordinary householder realizes, in a way—when he stops to think about it—but sad experience has convinced him that when the wholesaler gives an inch of excuse the retailer stretches it into a good foot of rise. Discrepancies between wholesale costs and retail prices are what the President's latest proclamation promises to remove, or at least to minimize, and even if the proposed licensing system does not reduce living expenses to what they were in the Golden Age before the war, at least there is a chance that by penalizing them it will prevent the ruthless exploitation of our necessities that has been going on in so many lines.

The plea that "everything is going up" may no longer serve for the going up of everything, and the hoarders and speculators may discover that profiteering to the very limit of opportunity is out of date. "All the trade will bear" is likely to acquire a new meaning under the new method of doing business.

That the farmers get their familiar exemption under a statute that applies to almost everybody else is a detail too familiar to excite either astonishment or protest. As they always are exempted, presumably they always must be, and the rest of us will make the best of what seems to be the working of natural law. That shops doing a business of less than $100,000 a year should also remain free will puzzle, and perhaps disquiet, the patrons of such shops, but the Wise Ones say it will be all right, and of course the Wise Ones know.

Violated Ancient Sanctities.

Fully to appreciate the enormity of the acts revealed by Secretary Lansing's latest outgiving of dispatches intended to be darkly secret, one must think rather of the purposes of the plots devised and financed by the Kaiser's representative in this country than of the fact that most of them failed and that none of them seriously affected either American opinion or American strength. Even more should the mind be fixed on the peculiar dignities, privileges, and immunities that clothe the whole ambassadorial class, and on the peculiar obligations and duties that rest on every member of it in consequence of his unique status.

The diplomat is the direct descendant of the ancient herald, that semi-sacred personage whom even savages treated as no other men were treated. That was because in him was embodied the one possibility of communication between tribes and nations at war. But, atrocious as always was held to be the maltreatment of heralds, still more atrocious was it always considered for the herald to abuse his high position by breaking the confidence accorded to him by his hosts. He had to be more than courteous, more than honest. For him to utilize his opportunities to the detriment of the country receiving him was viewed as the basest of betrayals.

Count von Bernstorff knew all this, and he ignored it deliberately, systematically and cynically. In secret he broke our laws, and his hired bravos and traitors waged covert war on ourselves and our friends. Other German Ambassadors and Ministers, and their subordinates, did the same things in other lands, seemingly as a matter of course and with no compunction. They heard nothing but their master's voice, and had no initiative except in the suggestion of crimes he had forgotten to command. Sent home at last, the Count is welcomed as a faithful servant and honored with another appointment—in Turkey! It may be a congenial post, but after the recent disclosures even the Turks must view him with fear and repulsion. The implications involved in sending to them a man whom no civilized country would now think of accepting as an Ambassador cannot be pleasing to them.

Propaganda Takes New Form.

There is a curious mystery in the fact that though we are told on competent authority of more than usual production of coal in the last year, there are persistent rumors of an acute shortage to come before the Winter is over. Somebody, for one or another reason, seems to be spreading stories the effect of which is to create a general disquietude and alarm, and for it, if the computations of the Federal Fuel Administrator are correct, there is no real cause.

Dr. Garfield does, indeed, urge us to use coal with care and economy, but he denies the probability, and even the possibility, that we shall be freezing before Spring comes, and he promises to see to it that the price of coal shall not rise so high that only the rich can buy it. The efforts to produce a contrary impression must have a motive, and the only one imaginable is to bring about antagonism to our participation in the war by arousing our selfish fears of personal discomfort or suffering. That motive can exist in only one quarter, or at most in only two.

Related to this exploitation of the coal scarcity myth is seemingly the frequent starting of lies about the need of our soldiers and sailors for home-made garments of wool. Again and again of late there have come, from sources seemingly impossible to discover, to the women knitting these garments, assurances that they were wasting their time, that the Red Cross is adequately supplied with sweaters and mufflers and wristlets. It has even been whispered around not infrequently that these articles of clothing, as made, were useless—that the men didn't want them.

Of course there is not a word of truth in these statements, and they have been energetically and authoritatively denied again and again, but they are disturbing, nevertheless, and about every one of them there is a strong scent of "propaganda."

THE DUTY OF REPUBLICANS

Not to Let the Election Go by Default as the Primary Did.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Too much publicity cannot be given to the fact that the failure of Mr. Mitchel to secure a majority in the Republican primaries was solely due to apathy on the part of the average Republican voter, who was lulled to sleep and failed to vote owing to his belief that the primary was purely a perfunctory and formal matter, and that his failure to vote would not change the desired and expected result, namely, the nomination of Mr. Mitchel as the Fusion candidate for Mayor.

Too much emphasis cannot be given to the statement that if this same apathy on the part of Republicans prevails in the matter of registering Mr. Mitchel cannot hope to be elected, and on the other hand if every Republican supporter of Mr. Mitchel registers during the remaining days of this week the election of Mr. Mitchel as a Fusion Mayor will become and be a foregone conclusion.

Mr. Mitchel was and is the actual choice of the majority of the Republicans, irrespective of what the primary vote may show. It is unfortunate that he may not have the backing of the Republican Party, as a party, and that Republicans may not vote for him under their party emblem, but nevertheless this misfortune may be obviated if Mr. Mitchel's Republican supporters will register today and vote for him on the Fusion ticket on Election Day.

Mr. Mitchel is a Fusion candidate. His record demands and entitles him to the support of every true and patriotic American irrespective of party. In times of national crisis such as the present party lines fade away and are swallowed up in the spirit of American patriotism, which demands that the National Government be supported to the fullest extent, to the absolute exclusion of all party affiliations.

As we Republicans, true to such patriotism, are bound loyally to hold up the hands of our Democratic President in his momentous task of guiding our country through this greatest of all conflicts, standing as it does for the principles for which our forefathers bled and died, so every voter as a true American patriot, irrespective of party, must support this Fusion nominee for Mayor. The position which Mr. Mitchel has taken in reference to the war is too well known to make comment necessary, except to say that he is a credit to the city and to the State and to the nation. We may well point with pride to the attitude of the Mayor of this, the greatest city of our country, especially as compared with the attitude of Mayors of other large cities, the people of which bow their heads in shame at the lack of support given to the National Government.

The fact that we do not want Tammany again in possession of our city is a negative argument, forceful, of course, but merely local; the fact that we do want an American Mayor devoted to American principles, unfettered by foreign and sinister influences, of whom we may be justly proud, and who we know by his past actions will devote himself faithfully and well not only to the city government, but who will lend every aid to the National Government, is a positive argument of prime importance and force, national in character and not susceptible of successful answer.

The eyes of the nation and the world are upon the City of New York. The fact of the re-election of Mr. Mitchel as Mayor will do much to weaken the already weakening morale of Germany and her allies and to shorten the period of the war.

It therefore behooves every Republican and every true American irrespective of party lines, to register without delay in order that he may on Election Day cast a Fusion vote for Mr. Mitchel.

High Wages and the Loan.

It is to be hoped that the Liberty Loan Committee will see the dispatch from Bridgeport in your issue of today, calling attention to the "era of extravagant wages" which has set in, many workmen getting from $50 to $70 and more per week.

The wage-earning classes must do their share or the loan will not succeed, but so far no special effort seems to have been made to get them to subscribe, and they are either spending their money extravagantly or putting it away in savings banks, instead of lending it to the Government.

The wage earners are profiting most directly by the era of high wages brought about by the war, and should do their share to make a success of the loan. H. W. S.

THE CATSKILL SPRING.

O spring within my city room!
Whence did you come—pray tell me true?
And lo! a scent of springtime bloom,
Of arbutus, and violets blue,
And glow of dawn on Catskill heights,
The breath of meadows sweet in June,
And charm of starlit Summer nights
With ruddy glow of rising moon,
Cool fragrance of the mountain pine,
A sound of purling brooks that run,
The Autumn splendor of woodbine,
Of deep blue lakes beneath the sun,
And snows of Winter landscapes white
When streams stand still in icebound spell—
All seemed to come and to unite
And for the spring its answer tell!

We bring to you, they seemed to say,
A draught such as the dryads drank
In woodlands dim of elder day;
Or such as from Alpheus' bank
In the green vales of Arcady,
The thirsty shepherds quaffed, while yet
In woods was heard Pan's minstrelsy,
Or such as flashed in diamond jet
From the famed "Fountain of the Sun";
Or lulled to dreams in Tempe's vale,
Or that where silver cascades run
From Castaly adown the dale,
Or like the font that Horace sang
As crystal clear, Bandusiae,
Round which the pipes of shepherds rang
'Neath sunny sky of Italy.

O Catskill Spring, you now have come
Unto a city vast, to bring
The plash of fountains midst its hum!
The pure, cold waters of that spring
Will flow in stately mansion rooms
And bring a soothing solace now
To gladden humblest tenement glooms
And cool the parched and fevered brow,
Or flash in jets of diamond spray
That glitter like the May-morn dew
In parks where city children play,
A blessing bringing, ever new!
Like waters of blue Loch Katrine
That Glasgow tapped and brought from far,
You come to us from mountain scene
With glow of sun, or moon, or star!
Of other fonts let poets sing,
We hail you chief, O Catskill Spring!

PICTURES OF HUDSON RIVER.

Early American Artists' Work on View in Natural History Museum.

Pictures of the Hudson River school of American painters are being shown at the Metropolitan Museum of Natural History in commemoration of the completion of the Catskill Aqueduct. This is the Museum's answer to the request of the Mayor's Committee on commemorative exercises in celebration of the event, which are to be held on Oct. 12, 13, and 14. The work of sixteen of America's early artists is shown—men who depicted the beauty of the Hudson and the region of the Catskills, their subjects giving them the name by which they are known as a group. The exhibition is not a large one; it is made up entirely of the pictures owned by the Museum, not including all of them because of the small size of the gallery in which they are shown. The paintings gain by companionship with each other, and the collection as it is seen in this juxtaposition is much more attractive than it appears in its component parts in the larger galleries.

An interesting feature in connection with this which will please visitors is a supplement to the Museum Bulletin for October which gives short sketches of the artists whose work is shown, with illustrations and an index. Reference is also given to other paintings by the artists and the galleries of the Museum in which they can be seen.

Another exhibition in the Museum which is of the greatest importance in its line is one of Japanese screens and paintings of exceptional merit. The exhibition was arranged in honor of the Japanese mission when it visited New York, and real treasures of Japanese art were brought together that the guests of the city might see as fine examples of the work of their artists as could be found in their own country. To accomplish this Charles L. Freer sent to this city many of the finest screens purchased by him in Japan and presented to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington; three were loaned by a friend whose name was not given, and one, also a fine one, is the property of the Museum.

The screens are works of art of great distinction, one group in black and white showing great magnificence of conception and design. One, if not a replica, is almost an exact reproduction, of a painting of the sacred mountain Fugi, which is a work of art of fame in Japan. These are seventeenth century works and include many by Koyetsu, the sword guard expert, who was an authority on art in his day.

The McFadden collecton of paintings by British artists, which is said not to be equaled in excellence by any collection in Great Britain, and which has now been shown at the Museum for some time, will be closed on Sunday and the pictures will be returned to their owner, the Philadelphia collector, John H. McFadden. Coming to the Museum on Nov. 5, to remain until December, is a collection of the fifty-eight paintings by the late Thomas Eakins. This will be the first time that so representative a collection of the works of this artist, who died a couple of years ago, has been brought together, and it will be in the nature of a memorial exhibition. It is expected to attract much attention, though Eakins, as a painter of forceful rather than pleasing pictures, was not generally popular.

A feature of the Museum work which started in a small way last year and proved popular is to be continued through the coming Winter. This is a series of Sunday afternoon lectures, to be given by Museum Trustees and curators, college professors, artists, writers, &c., and to be illustrated from the Museum collection and by stereopticons. The lectures will be free to the public without tickets at 4 P. M.

A new curator will come to the Museum on the 1st of next month—Joseph Breck, as curator of the department of decorative arts and assistant director. Miss Florence Levy, who has been a general assistant, is to leave to become manager of the Art Alliance of America.

CANVASSING DU PONT VOTE.

May Take Week or More to Determine Stockholders' Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 11.—Daniel O. Hastings, as Special Master, today began canvassing the vote cast yesterday by stockholders of the du Pont Powder Company on whether the company should purchase the stock formerly owned by T. C. du Pont and which Pierre S. du Pont, President of the company, and several associates bought for themselves, resulting in two years of litigation, and the court's order for a stockholders' meeting on the question.

While on the face of the returns from the balloting in connection with the suit involving $60,000,000 of powder stock and distributed dividends the result was a victory for the defendants in the litigation, formal protests filed yesterday by the plaintiffs and specific protests entered today against receiving or counting the greater portion of the votes cast against the company's purchase of the stock presage what is expected to be a strong effort by the plaintiffs to have Judge J. Whitaker Thompson of the Federal Court throw out more than half of the votes cast in support of the defendants and against purchase of the disputed stock by the company. The Special Master announced at the very first protest that he would count, tabulate, and report separately to Judge Thompson all contested ballots.

The defendants contend that 313,161 shares, out of the total of 473,132 eligible to vote, were cast in their favor. The number of votes cast by the Proxy Committee for the plaintiffs has not been totaled, but Robert Penington, of counsel for the plaintiffs, estimated today that it would be in excess of 150,000 shares. The canvass may require a week or more.

When the proxy of Alfred I. du Pont, the principal complainant, was called it showed that he had voted 75,534 shares of common stock in favor of the purchase of the stock and 335 shares of voting debenture stock.

FIGHT TO KEEP WATER PURE.

City and Merchants' Association Want No Building at Lake Mohansic.

Further testimony was taken yesterday at the Merchants' Association rooms by the Legislative Committee concerning the best disposition to make of the 1,000 acres of land bought by the State for a hospital and home for juvenile delinquents on Lake Mohansic. Assistant Corporation Counsel Malone told the committee that the city was unalterably opposed to placing any public building on the site for fear that the sewage would corrupt the water supply.

"This city," he said, "is unwilling to afford any loophole or excuse to those who are indifferent to the city's water supply to carry out this project. With us absolute protection to the public health is the first consideration. If it is decided to remove the buildings now on the site to some location away from the watershed the city will willingly bear its share of the expense."

Alexander C. MacNulty, counsel for the Merchants' Association, announced that every effort would be made to prevent the location of any building that might threaten the purity of the city's water.

It was decided that the committee and others interested should visit the site on next Wednesday. The next hearing will be held on Oct. 22.

NEW ARMY TRUCK MECHANICAL MARVEL

DEVELOPED IN FEW WEEKS

Sixty Factories at Work on Parts and Output Soon Will Be 4,000 Trucks a Month.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Details of the new standardized motor truck, said by army officials to be superior to any now in use in the world war, given out tonight by the Council of National Defense, show that as an example of speedy co-operation the truck rivals the famous Liberty aviation engine, which was designed and constructed within a few weeks.

Forty engineers and hundreds of draftsmen called in from all parts of the country have been quietly engaged in Washington on the designs, work on which was started a little more than a month ago. Early this week the first completed machine was tested at Lima, Ohio. Yesterday another truck was assembled in Rochester and started on the road.

Officials of the Automotive Products Section of the War Industries Board are confident that the new vehicle will prove to be one of the most valuable transportation factors developed for modern war. It was designed for a three-ton load but with a capacity of five tons. Its total dead weight is slightly less than 10,000 pounds. At present sixty factories are manufacturing and assembling parts, and it is estimated that the Government soon will be able to turn the trucks out at the rate of 4,000 a month. One firm, it was said, had been equipped to manufacture more of the trucks than all the firms in England could turn out when the war started. The Government's first order calls for 10,000 trucks.

Official Details of Feat.

The official statement giving the details reads in part:

"The work of speedy co-operation that characterized the production of the Liberty aviation engine has been equaled in the case of the war truck. In spite of the fact that a larger number of interests were involved in the building of the truck, making compromises in design more difficult, the great unanimity of feeling among those participating makes the result the more remarkable.

"Roughly, there were four major divisions of the engineering work, those relating to the engine, the transmission, the axles, and the other chassis parts. Each was manned by a corps of engineers. There were three, four, and in some cases five different companies represented in the work on one unit, and it was naturally necessary for the engineers to subordinate all personal considerations to the end of achieving the very best known to the art. Each unit represents a composite of the best features contributed, rather than the work of any one individual. The engineer best qualified to design a certain part handled it in consultation with his fellow-engineers.

"The Continental Motor Manufacturing Company, which was one of the several engine producers participating in the program, received blueprints on Sept. 9, and had an engine running nineteen days and eighteen hours thereafter. The Waukesha Motor Company had its first engine running in eleven days and seven and one-half hours from the time the blueprints reached its factory. These companies did not have to make all the patterns for castings or the dies for forgings, some of these having been made previously, but they had to do most of the machining and other operations on the parts.

"In developing the engine four or five makers co-operated by dividing the different parts between them, one making several parts not only for itself, but for the other engine makers. In this way time was saved. The Continental Company made the cylinders, gear case cover, and many small parts such as pumps, bushings, &c. The Waukesha Company manufactured the cylinder heads, the crank case, intake and exhaust manifolds, roller push rods, &c. The Wisconsin Company made the lower part of the crank case.

"The remarkable patriotic response of manufacturers of raw and finished products made possible the completion of the units in record time. As an illustration, the Park Drop Forge Company worked continuously in three shifts and succeeded in sinking the dies for the crankshaft in seven days, an operation which is rarely completed in peace times in less than three weeks. The Werra Aluminum Castings Company produced the pattern for the main crank case and the first casting in five days, this usually taking from three to four weeks on much smaller jobs. The Continental pattern shop completed the pattern for the cylinder pairs in slightly over five days, an accomplishment which can be appreciated only by those who have manufactured engines.

Makers of the Parts.

"In summarizing the co-operative talent embodied in the engine, it might be said that the crank case is Continental, the cylinders Waukesha, the oiling system a combination of Wisconsin and Buda, the pistons Hercules, the timing-gear system a combination of Buda, Wisconsin, and Continental. The governor is a combination of Kelly-Springfield and Waukesha. The cam shaft is a composite design. The engine has been designed with the thought of using the heavier fuels, the combustion chamber and other parts having been designed to meet these requirements.

"What has been said of the engine can be said of the transmission, the axles, and other parts. Three or four of the leading axle makers have worked together on the axle designs. So with the transmission.

"So well have all of the engineers co-operated that the schedule set for the completion of the different truck units, as well as of the completed truck, have been lived up to and generally improved upon. The first engines built in different factories were to have been delivered on Sept. 30 and they were delivered on that date. The completed chassis was to have been ready Oct. 10 and was ready on Oct. 7."

The members of the Automotive Products Section are: H. L. Horning, Chairman; Brig. Gen. Chauncey M. Baker, in charge of army transportation; Coker F. Clarkson, Secretary and General Manager, Society Automotive Engineers; C. W. Stiger, President Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association; Henry R. Sutphen, President Motor Boat Association; Frank Russell, President Aircraft Manufacturers' Association; T. W. Henderson, President Motor Cycle Manufacturers' Association.

General Baker pointed out today that standardization of motor transports in France would save the American army the necessity of maintaining immense supply stations which the British and French are forced to keep up. The new truck has less than 7,500 parts, while the allied forces keep in stock at all times more than 2,000,000 parts for their various kinds of motor vehicles.

Wants Court Costs for Red Cross.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum announced yesterday that in cases in which attorneys waived their right to receive costs from their opponents on applications to reopen defaults costs would be collected in each case and the Court hoped that the costs would be donated to the Red Cross. The costs on the reopening of defaults average about $30 for each case.

In the past attorneys in certain cases have consented to the reopening of defaults without costs as a matter of courtesy to the opposing counsel, since in many cases the default was necessary because the attorneys were trying other actions at the time.

ASKS THE TRUSTEES FOR FACULTY TRIALS

Columbia Committee Declares Educators Should Be Disciplined by Their Colleagues.

MOVE NOT FOR OUSTED MEN

Their Associates Said Not to Sympathize with the Attitude of Cattell and Dana.

A recommendation that educators at Columbia University accused of acts tending to bring discredit upon the institution be not dismissed until after being tried by a jury of their fellow-professors was said last night to be a part of the "memorandum" prepared by the Committee of Nine in the controversy resulting from the expulsions of Professors Cattell and Dana and the resignation of Professor Charles A. Beard from the Chair of Political Science.

The suggestion, it was pointed out, was not intended in any way to condone the acts of Professors Cattell and Dana, who were said to be in disfavor with a majority of the educators, but merely to provide a new safeguard for the academic integrity of the institution. It was shown that Professor Beard in resigning had been careful to announce that he was no pacifist and was opposed to any propaganda that tended to weaken the war against Germany. His sole complaint was that the action of some of the trustees was limiting freedom of expression at Columbia.

That such a recommendation as rumored is in keeping with the sentiments of Professor John Dewey, who holds the Chair of Philosophy and is one of the strongest members of the Committee of Nine, is generally known at the University. Following the resignation of Professor Beard he issued a statement protesting against the dismissal of any professor until after the charges against him had been heard by the particular faculty to which he belonged.

There are ten faculties at Columbia University, and the acceptance by the Trustees and the University Council of such a recommendation as reported would be to make them self-governing, a privilege they are said not to have enjoyed up to the present time.

Members of the Committee of Nine refused to talk yesterday, but it was reported that they would request that the Trustees appoint a special committee to confer with a committee of the council on the suggestion for "jury trials" and other recommendations.

About 300 members of the Sophomore Class of the University at a meeting yesterday adopted a resolution favoring "jury trials" for accused educators. They also adopted a resolution expressing the hope that Professor Beard would withdraw his resignation.

A general meeting of the entire student body of the university will be held at noon today in the gymnasium to consider the controversy. Permission to hold the meeting has been granted by Secretary Fackenthal of the university. The resolutions to be submitted at this meeting will be similar to those adopted by the sophomores, according to C. P. Ivins, Vice President of the Senior Class, one of the promoters of the meeting.

CELEBRATION TO MARK 175 YEARS IN BUSINESS

Taylor-Wharton Iron and Steel Company Has Made Munitions for Every American War.

One hundred and seventy-five years in the manufacture of steel, including the making of cannon balls for the Revolutionary War and of munitions for United States armies in every war since, not excepting the present one, will be celebrated tomorrow by the Taylor-Wharton Iron and Steel Company at High Bridge, N. J. Governor Edge will be the principal speaker.

The company has 3,000 employes, and gold medals will be given to those who have been in the service of the company fifty years, and silver medals to those with twenty-five-year records. All employes who have been with the company more than five years and up to twenty-five will receive lesser medals. There are 2,000 in this class. Three employes have sons and grandsons working for the company. Silver loving cups will be presented to these three, to be handed down in their families. In an industrial parade there will be a Conestoga wagon which was used by the manufacturers in 1750.

Allen & Turner, with Robert Taylor as manager, began the manufacture of nails, horseshoes, and farming implements in 1742. This concern later became the Taylor Iron Works, and members of the Taylor family have been at the head of the business ever since. In 1912 there was a consolidation with the William Wharton Company of Philadelphia, and branches are now operated at Philadelphia and Easton, Pa.

HOUSE CONTINUES TASK.

Confers with President and Others on End-of-War Data.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Colonel E. M. House, confidential adviser of President Wilson, today continued his work in connection with the collation of information, economic, political, and historical, to prepare the United States for peace discussions, when the proper time comes, and for post-war conditions. He spent considerable time at the White House in close conference with the President, and also saw experts at the State Department. His conferences are to be resumed tomorrow, both at the White House and the Department.

When pressed for a fuller explanation of his work, Colonel House said the time was not ripe for a further statement of his plans.

"My headquarters are going to be under my hat," he replied to newspaper interrogators, as he left the White House.

Gordon Auchincloss, a New York lawyer, now is attached to the State Department, with the special assignment of gathering data for Colonel House from the voluminous reports of Consuls and diplomatic officers. He is a son-in-law of Colonel House.

RED CROSS TO ASSIST UNOCCUPIED BELGIUM

$589,930 Appropriated for Relief of the People Not Under Invaders' Rule.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—An appropriation of $589,930 for the relief of the Belgians not under the rule of Germany was made today by the War Council of the American Red Cross. This fund will be used in beginning the work of the new Red Cross department for Belgium recently organized under its Commission to France.

The separation of relief work in Belgium from that in France was determined on by the War Council owing to the present difficulties of communication and transportation in France. By establishing a new department at Havre, the present seat of the Belgian Government, the Red Cross program of relief in that part of Belgium outside the German grip will be well under way before the Winter begins.

Two administrators of the Red Cross Commission to France, Ernest P. Bicknell, former Director General of the civilian relief of the Red Cross, and Dr. John Van Schaick have been placed in charge of this work.

Comprehensive plans, for whose execution funds have now been appropriated by the War Council, are already under way in Belgium. These were outlined in conferences between King Albert and Major Grayson M. P. Murphy, head of the Commission to France. Warehouses and stores are to be erected along canals and highways in Belgium to serve as centres of relief distribution. From these, by means of barges and automobiles, using the Flemish canals and roads, foodstuffs and clothing will be distributed to the hundreds of thousands of Belgian refugees crowded behind the fighting lines.

Aid is to be given to hostels established under the direction of the Queen of the Belgians for the care of children under 4 years of age. Efforts are to be made to see that the schooling of these children torn apart from their homes does not entirely cease. Refugee Belgian children in other parts of France and Switzerland are also to receive the special care of this new department.

Included in the appropriation, also, is money for the operation of a hospital for wounded Belgian soldiers to supplement the already overtaxed hospital resources of the Belgian Government.

Mrs. George Dewey, widow of Admiral Dewey, has accepted the chairmanship of the auxiliary of the District Chapter of the American Red Cross at the request of Secretary of the Navy Daniels. These auxiliaries are being organized by Red Cross chapters throughout the country to supply comfort to the United States sailors.

WATER PAGEANT TODAY.

Other Ceremonies Also Will Mark Catskill Aqueduct Completion.

The three-day celebration to commemorate the completion of the Catskill Aqueduct will begin at noon today with exercises at the City Hall. Former Mayor McClellan, under whose administration the aqueduct work began, will deliver an address. The Italian celebration of Columbus Day will be merged with the water fête to be held in Central Park. Mayor Mitchel will go from the City Hall to Columbus Circle, where he will review a parade in which 5,000 members of the Italian societies of the city will take part. After the review the parade will continue into Central Park to the sheep meadow, where the pageant is to be staged at 3:45 P. M.

A music fête has been arranged and concerts will be given in all the boroughs. Victor Herbert, with a military band of ninety pieces, will give a concert on the Mall in Central Park, assisted by the People's Choral Union. In the Bronx, at Crotona Park, a concert will be given by a military band of fifty pieces, Frank Martin, conductor, in conjunction with the United Singers of the Bronx. The Richmond concert will be given on Curtis Field, New Brighton, with a band of fifty pieces, led by Lambert Eben, bandmaster of the Seventy-first Regiment. In the Prospect Park Plaza in Brooklyn, Shannon's Naval Reserve Band, under the leadership of James J. McCabe, will furnish the music, commencing at 8 o'clock. The Queens concert will take place at 3 o'clock in the Court House Square, Long Island City. There will be community music and singing under the direction of Harry Barnhart.

At 3:30 P. M. there will be brief exercises on the southern embankment of the upper reservoir in Central Park, immediately north of the Eighty-sixth Street transverse road, accompanying the formal turning on of the Catskill water at the new jet fountain. The appearance of the water will be visible from any point on the path around the reservoir.

At 7 P. M. a reception and dinner will be given at the Waldorf-Astoria in celebration of the completion of the aqueduct and in honor of its builders.

Medals will be presented to Mayor Mitchel, Former Mayor McClellan, C. M. Chadwick, "Father of the Aqueduct," President Charles Straus of the Board of Water Supply; John Galvin, member of the board; J. Waldo Smith, Chief Engineer John A. Bensel, and Charles A. Shaw.

SWANN HAS MILK PLAN.

Suggests to Dairymen That They Charge September Prices.

The Grand Jury yesterday continued its inquiry to determine whether the Dairymen's League had violated the Donnelly anti-trust law when at its Syracuse convention in September it raised the price of milk. District Attorney Swann said that he had suggested to the officers of the Dairymen's League, as a way out of present difficulties, that they rescind the action of the Syracuse convention and lower milk prices to where they were in September. If this were done milk would be sold by the dealers in New York at 12 instead of 14 cents a quart.

In making this announcement Mr. Swann said that even if prices were lowered he could not promise that there would be no indictments by the Grand Jury or prosecutions by his office. He believes that the league has technically violated the anti-trust law, but if milk prices are lowered he will convey that information to the Grand Jury.

"I have not received an answer from the Dairymen's League," said Mr. Swann, "but I understand it is likely to be favorable."

When the District Attorney was asked whether an agreement to lower prices would not be as much a violation of the Donnelly act as the agreement to raise them would be if proved, he replied that he did not think it would be a conspiracy to do a good action and said it could be done without formal agreement.

"If the farmers will lower the price of milk, is there assurance that the dealers will lower their prices?" was asked.

"The dealers had better lower their prices if the farmers do so," he answered. "The dealers have been skating on thin ice for some time, and it would be to their detriment if they balked any public-spirited effort to do good."

R. D. Cooper, President of the Dairymen's League, was out of town yesterday. Albert Manning said that the league, so far as he knew, had not received Mr. Swann's suggestion, and added that he did not think the league would accept such an offer.

The inquiry into milk prices by the Mayor's committee was not conducted, as several members were not in the city. The committee will resume its investigation today.

Charles S. Henning of Barnhill & Henning, publisher's representatives, of 23 East Twenty-sixth Street, yesterday sent a letter to Herbert C. Hoover, National Food Administrator, stating that the Borden Condensed Milk Company's certified Grade A raw milk, prescribed for babies, which sells at 20 cents a quart in New York City, could be purchased in Hartford, Conn., for 18 cents a quart.

FINLEY SHEPARDS ADOPT TWO GIRLS

Little Playmates of Foster Son Are Also Taken Into the Family.

ALL ABOUT THE SAME AGE

Three Youngsters Are Now Heirs to the $20,000,000 Fortune Left to Helen Gould.

"Sonny" Shepard has two sisters. Finley J. Shepard and his wife, who was Miss Helen Gould, have adopted two little girls. Two years ago they adopted a boy foundling and named him Finley J. Shepard, Jr. One of "Sonny's" sisters is named Helen Anna Shepard, after Mrs. Shepard and her sister, Anna Gould, and the other is named O. Margaret Shepard. The three adopted Shepard children are all about the same age. "Sonny" is 7, Helen Anna is 6½ years old, and O. Margaret is 7. The three children were together with their foster parents at their town home, 579 Fifth Avenue, last night. "Sonny's" blondness is matched by that of Helen Anna, while O. Margaret is a brunette.

"Sonny's" sisters are no strangers to him. For a year they have been his playmates at the Shepard home, "Lyndhurst," near Tarrytown. Mr. and Mrs. Shepard delayed adopting them, pending an investigation into who they were, until last week when adoption papers were filed in the office of the County Clerk of Westchester County. Mr. Shepard said last night that the two girls had not been baptized.

He said that he and his wife knew who their parents were and that there was no objection to the adoption. He would not say whether the girls had been taken from an institution, or how he and Mrs. Shepard got them.

The adoption of the two girls makes them joint heirs with "Sonny" of an estate estimated at more than $20,000,000. Mrs. Shepard inherited from her father, Jay Gould, an estate estimated at between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000; it is estimated that this has doubled since the death of Jay Gould.

The adoption of blue-eyed "Sonny" in October of 1915 attracted nation-wide attention because of the wide search made by Mr. and Mrs. Shepard for his parents. In 1914 he was found, then about 3 years old, abandoned on the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral. Sewed to his garments was a slip on which was written "Austin McCleary." He was sent to St. Christopher's Home, near Dobbs Ferry, where Mrs. Shepard found him on one of her charitable trips. She took him to her home at 579 Fifth Avenue, where were staying Helen and Dorothy Gould, children of Frank J. Gould. The little foundling and the two heiresses were stricken with the chickenpox, which extended the boy's stay. He never went back to the asylum. When he got well Mrs. Shepard took him to Lyndhurst, where he stayed. His name was "John Doe, No. 104," until he became Finley J. Shepard, Jr.

There were rumors that the parents of the child lived in New Jersey; another report said that his father died in New York; a third report had it that the boy was born in Canada. As for himself, he said he lived "in a big house with lots of grass around it." This was about as far as the investigation got. As Walter B. Walker, who acted as counsel for the Shepards in the adoption proceedings, said:

"Everything possible was done before steps were taken for the adoption to make sure that the child had no relatives. It will be, I believe, impossible for any one to prove that he has any living."

Before the adoption of any of the three children the Shepards had elaborate mental and physical tests made. They intend that the children shall go to public school when they are old enough. Mr. and Mrs. Shepard have no children of their own. They were married at Lyndhurst on Jan. 26, 1913, their engagement having been announced a month before. Mr. Shepard is engaged in the management of the Gould railroad properties.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 11.—Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt is a "patient" at Jack Cooper's health farm here. He has been here a few days and probably will remain at least two weeks. He is scheduled to make a speech in the campaign to elect a Congressman to succeed the late Ebenzar J. Hill.

CONTROL OF BREAD HOOVER'S NEXT MOVE

Experiments Under Way in Several Cities to Produce a Standard "Conservation" Loaf.

HOPE TO REDUCE PRICES

Bakers to be Put Under Licensing System When Government Formula Has Been Fixed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Herbert C. Hoover, the Food Administrator, described today some of the plans for stabilizing, and, if possible, reducing the price of bread. Experiments are being made in several large cities to determine whether a bread which will tend toward the conservation of wheat and a reduction of expenses to the baker, and, therefore, to the consumer, can be introduced and be acceptable.

There was, Mr. Hoover said, no intention to bake a "war bread" along the lines adopted in Europe. There will be no attempt to mix corn with wheat flour. Any effort in the direction of what might be called a "conservation loaf" will be toward the discovery of a wholesome bread, the change in the ingredients of which, from the present formula, will defy detection.

While these experiments are going on and other plans are under consideration, it is not probable that the baking industry will be placed under license, as it was not included in the proclamation issued yesterday by President Wilson. Mr. Hoover said today that the baking industry could, and probably would, come under the licensing system as soon as the standards which the Food Administration hopes will be observed as to flour, formula, and weight or price are arrived at.

There was, he said, a thorough determination on the part of the Food Administration to enforce to the letter all of the provisions of the President's proclamation for food control, although no intention to prevent any legitimate manufacturer or distributor from obtaining a fair living. He said he believed the persons and firms included in the edict, and later the bakers, if they were brought under its provisions, would patriotically observe the rulings. If they did not the Food Administration would be quick to act and employ the Federal agents to enforce their demands.

Three important questions are first to be decided upon: A standard flour, a standard formula, and whether there is to be an attempt to fix a standard weight or price.

It is the hope of the Food Administration to obtain a wholesome, palatable loaf of bread which will exclude extravagance in manufacture, and which may be made standard in every section of the country. The experiments now under way, it is believed, will prove whether such a plan is feasible.

Investigations are now being made also to determine the cost of the manufacture of bread in about 300 bakeries, and the result of these investigations probably will be made public soon.

It is one of the plans of the Food Administration to stimulate the establishment of municipal bread stations throughout the country if the retail dealers fail to co-operate.

REVERSES ACTION ON POPE.

Junior American Mechanics Refuse to Send Protest to Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 11.—A resolution providing for the sending of a protest to President Wilson against the participation of the Pope in peace discussions was overwhelmingly defeated by the State Council of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics of New Jersey at the closing session of its annual convention today on the Steel Pier.

This action was in direct contrast to that of yesterday, when the Council unanimously adopted the report of retiring State Councilor Samuel A. Harker of Newark, which contained a protest "against the attempt of the Pope of Rome entering into the diplomatic relations of the nations." Past State Councilor Joseph N. Thompson of Toms River opposed the resolution on the ground that it would amount to a censure of the President. While today's resolution was rejected, the report was permitted to stand.

One other feature of the session was the withdrawal by retiring Councilor Harker of the suggestion made in his annual report that the German language be stricken from the curriculum of the public schools. This also was included in the report as adopted by the Council yesterday, but the sentiment against it today was so strong that Councilor Harker asked to have it eliminated from his report. No discussion was held on the matter, but the feeling was that to permit the Council to remain on record as being opposed to the study of German in the schools was not compatible with the position taken by President Wilson when he said that the United States was not at war with the German people, but with their system of government.

LAY HOSPITAL CORNERSTONE

First of a Group of Tuberculosis Cottages Begun at Seaview.

The cornerstone of the first of a group of cottages for outdoor treatment of tuberculosis at the Seaview Hospital, New Dorp, S. I., was laid yesterday by John A. Kingsbury, Commissioner of Charities. Mr. Kingsbury in his address said that while the Department of Charities and the city hospitals were continually giving increased service and benefits to the public the operating cost was being reduced by economy and systematic management.

Controller Prendergast spoke briefly of the development of the city's charitable and special welfare work and suggested that the men responsible for these improvements should be kept at the helm to continue the work of Mayor Mitchel's splendid, non-partisan municipal government.

CORT IN BANKRUPTCY SUIT.

Three Creditors File a Petition Against Theatrical Manager.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the United States District Court against John Cort, the theatrical manager of 1,476 Broadway, by these creditors: Harry J. Kelly, $15,628; Richard Bennett, Jr., $1,661; Mitchell Motor Car Company of New York, Inc., $610. The claim of Mr. Kelly is on three judgments obtained in July and August, 1916, by James J. Sullivan and assigned to Mr. Kelly. Mr. Bennett's claim is on a judgment obtained by him on Feb. 11, 1916. The claim of the Mitchell Motor Car Company is on a judgment in favor of the Carl H. Page Motor Company and assigned to the Mitchell Company. Preferential payments or transfer of money and merchandise are given as the acts of bankruptcy. Liabilities are estimated at $70,000.

Mr. Cort formerly lived in Seattle, Wash., and acted as representative of Klaw & Erlanger in the Northwest. He was afterward manager of the Northwest Theatrical Company and President of the National Producing Managers' Association. In November, 1914, his theatre properties were taken over by John Cort, Inc., which had an authorized capital of $1,000,000. He became President of the company. He is also interested in a film company and a sales company.

RAYMOND HAVENS PLAYS.

First of a Long Line of Pianists Headed Toward Aeolian Hall.

Raymond Havens is the first of the long list of pianists that will take till May to pass the well-known given point near the centre of the Aeolian Hall platform. He appeared there yesterday for the first time in New York, after reporting successes in Boston and Chicago, and made an agreeable impression, hardly a deep one. He has intelligence and musical feeling, and a considerable equipment in technique—not quite sufficient, however, to compass all the difficulties of Brahms's "Paganini" variations. Nor has he yet penetrated into all the inner meaning of such pieces as Chopin's G minor Ballade and B minor Scherzo.

Possibly some of his notions of "rubato" will need revision. But much that he did yesterday was fresh, buoyant, ardent. Youth is responsible for some of the qualities of his playing, and greater maturity will make its mark upon it. Mr. Havens's promise is such that he can look toward the future cheerfully.

James O'Neill's Golden Jubilee.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 11.—James O'Neill today celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his first appearance on the stage. Representative theatrical people of this city joined in doing honor to the veteran of the stage on the occasion of his golden jubilee. A luncheon was given him, attended by sixty prominent theatrical people. He told of playing billiards in Cincinnati, Ohio, fifty years ago, next door to the old National Theatre there, when the stage manager for Edwin Forrest came in to ask for supers. Mr. O'Neill went on with Forrest that night and carried a spear in "Richelieu." He is now appearing as the father in the biblical spectacle, "The Wanderer." The veteran actor also celebrated his seventy-first birthday yesterday.

Alex. Bremer Heads Musical Union.

Alexander Bremer was yesterday elected President of the Musical Protective Union after an all-day election at the headquarters of the organization, 210 East Eighty-sixth Street. He succeeds on Jan. 1 next D. Edward Porter.

Mr. Bremer, after serving as President of the union for eleven years, fifteen years ago became Deputy City Paymaster. He was later appointed by Mayor Gaynor Chief Examiner of the Commissioner of Accounts office.

The union, organized in 1863, has a membership of 8,500.

Fined on Marc Klaw's Complaint.

Marc Klaw, theatrical manager, was complainant yesterday in the Traffic Court before Magistrate House against Nelson A. Goodwin, an automobile dealer, of Broadway and Fiftieth Street, on a charge of failing to pass his automobile on the left side on Seventh Avenue, between 110th and 116th Streets, on Saturday last. Goodwin was fined $10.

THEATRICAL NOTES

Elisabeth Marbury and Frederick McKay have formed a partnership for the production of musical pieces, and their first production will be "We Should Worry," an adaptation of Charles Hoyt's farce, "A Texas Steer." The book and lyrics will be written by Henry Blossom and the music by A. Baldwin Sloane.

The opening of "Doing Our Bit" at the Winter Garden will take place on Thursday of next week instead of Wednesday.

Cecil Yapp, now appearing in "Saturday to Monday," and Robert Rendel, playing in "A Successful Calamity," have been engaged for the cast of "Art and Opportunity," in which Eleanor Painter is to be starred.

"His Host's Wife," a farce by Hilliard Booth, has been accepted for production by A. H. Woods, and will go into rehearsal shortly.

Reland Hogue has been added to the cast of "The Barton Mystery," which will have its first performance at the Comedy tomorrow night.

A playhouse to cost $100,000 will be built on Lefferts Avenue, Kew Gardens, L. I., by Barlow, Benedict & Bradford. The new theatre will offer legitimate attractions whenever possible, and will be devoted at other times to a policy of vaudeville and films.

"Broken Threads," a drama by Ernest Wilkes, was produced last night in Allentown, Penn., and will be brought to New York later in the season. The piece has been staged by Holbrook Blinn, and the company includes Cyril Keightley, Francis Byrne, and Phoebe Hunt.

Register Today.

PRESIDENT APPROVES NEW STEEL SCHEDULE

War Industries Board Announces the Figures and Compliments the Manufacturers.

PRICES EFFECTIVE AT ONCE

Bar Revision of Rates May Be Made at Beginning of Year—War Board to Supervise Output of Mills.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Announcement was made tonight that President Wilson had approved an agreement between the War Industries Board and the steel manufacturers fixing the maximum prices for various steel products, to become effective immediately and subject to revision on Jan. 1, 1918. The maximum prices approved are:

Blooms and billets, 4 by 4 inches and larger, $47.50 a gross ton, based on Pittsburgh and Youngstown.

Billets, under 4 by 4 inches, $51 a gross ton, based on Pittsburgh and Youngstown.

Shell bars, 3 to 5 inches, $3.25 per 100 pounds; over 5 to 8 inches, $3.50 per 100 pounds; over 8 to 10 inches, $3.75 per 100 pounds, and over 10 inches, $4 per 100 pounds, based on Pittsburgh.

Skelp, grooved, $2.90 per 100 pounds; universal, $3.15 per 100 pounds, and sheared, $3.25 per 100 pounds, based on Pittsburgh.

In making its announcement the War Industries Board authorized this statement:

"The prices enumerated have been fixed by the President on the assurance of those representing the steel industry that these prices equitably adjust the relations of the steel interests to each other, and will assist them in fulfilling their obligations to give the country 100 per cent. of production at not to exceed the prices heretofore announced.

"Measures will be taken by the War Industries Board for placing orders and supervising the output of the steel mills in such manner as to facilitate and expedite the requirements for war purposes of the Government and those nations associated with us, and to supply the needs of the public according to their public importance and in the best interest of all as far as practicable.

"A spirit of co-operation was manifested by the steel men, and no doubt is entertained that every effort will be made to bring the production as nearly as possible up to the extraordinary demands resulting from the war."

HELD AFTER WIFE'S DEATH.

Husband Takes Woman to Hospital in Dying Condition.

Mrs. Laura Woods, 21 years old, died in Lebanon Hospital last night from a wound from a revolver, inflicted, the police said, by her husband, James Woods, who was locked up on a charge of violating the Sullivan law. The shooting took place in the Woods home at 271 East 156th Street, the Bronx.

The police said that Woods told them that Wednesday night while on his way home from work he found a new revolver and took it home. He said he removed the cartridges from it and placed it on the dining room table as an ornament. Yesterday, according to Woods, he decided to give the weapon to a friend, and when he went home to dinner reloaded the weapon and put it in his pocket. His wife, according to Mrs. Ethel Waters, who was visiting Mrs. Woods, protested to Woods that he should be more careful in handling the weapon, whereupon he joked with her, and drawing the revolver placed it against her abdomen, when it exploded and Mrs. Woods fell to the floor.

Woods took his wife in his arms and carried her to the office of Dr. Alfred Raabe, at 313 East 158th Street. The physician said that she should be taken to a hospital at once. Woods picked up his wife again, went to the street, hailed a passing automobile, and took her to the hospital, where she died a few minutes after admission.

Woods was taken by Patrolman Hollweg to the Fifth Branch Detective Bureau, where, after he was questioned at length, he was placed under arrest.

TO CONTROL LEATHER TRADE

American Interests Move to Cut Off Supply of Our Enemies.

Action has been taken by leather manufacturers to take control of commerce and hides and skins between the United States and other countries under the license system to prevent these commodities from reaching enemy destinations. The following announcement was made yesterday:

"At a meeting of the joint Directorates of the National Association of Tanners, the Morocco Manufacturers' Association, and the Patent and Enameled Leather Manufacturers' Association, it was decided to organize the Tanners' Alliance, which may control the imports of hides and skins under the license system. This action was taken wholly on suggestion from the Government authorities that the leather industry should co-operate with the Administration in enforcing the provisions of the Trading-with-the-Enemy Act."

It was explained that the Tanners' Alliance would be responsible to the Government for exports as well as imports, and that by this arrangement the necessity of obtaining licenses from the British Government had been obviated.

HEAVY SNOW IN MAINE.

Bangor Reports Earliest Measurable Fall in 48 Years.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 11.—The earliest measurable snowfall recorded in this part of Maine in forty-eight years began at dusk today and continued for some hours. Up to 10 P. M. the fall had reached a depth of three inches here, and various places in Northern Maine reported six inches.

Owing to the foliage still remaining great quantities of damp snow adhered to trees and shrubbery, and everywhere much damage from broken branches was reported. Street car service was interrupted and electric lighting circuits thrown out of commission by the breaking of wires.

ROCK ISLAND BOARD HAS 4 AMSTER MEN

GORMAN TO RUN THE ROAD

President Expected to Succeed Amster as Executive Chairman—Now Called a Stockholders' System.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Stockholders of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway at their annual meeting today took action which railroad men here say leaves virtually no doubt that the Rock Island is now a stockholders' road. On only one point was there any real disagreement, and that was as to the method of deciding on the Chairman of the Executive Committee.

Nathan L. Amster, leader of the minority interests, has held this position, which formerly carried a salary of $50,000 a year. The position now is purely honorary, and its incumbent hereafter will be chosen by the Executive Committee, the members of which are appointed by the Board of Directors.

The Hayden-Wallace coterie succeeded in electing nine Directors, while the Amster contingent placed four men in the directorate. Following are the Directors elected: N. L. Amster, Henry Bruere, Peter G. Ten Eyck, Professor William Z. Ripley, James E. Gorman, John G. Shedd, Nathaniel French, James A. Patten, Beman G. Dawes, James N. Wallace, James Speyer, Charles Hayden, and Frederick W. Scott. The first four named are the men advanced by Mr. Amster. All are to serve eighteen months.

In compliance with the request of the Interstate Commerce Commission the road's fiscal year has been changed to correspond with the calendar year. Therefore, no annual meeting will be held in 1918, the next yearly session of stockholders being scheduled for the first Thursday in May, 1919. At that meeting action will be taken on the members of the board again, and the Directors will thereafter serve for one year only.

How the Shares Were Voted.

The Amster contingent voted 346,178 shares of stock at the meeting today and the Hayden coterie 631,034. It was stated by an associate of Mr. Amster that he represented three times as many stockholders as the opposing party, although the holdings in most instances were small.

Although it is not apparent on the surface, James E. Gorman practically will be the dominating power of the road, so far as its operation and management are concerned, and control will be centralized in one man. This development is brought about by the provision with regard to the election of the Chairman of the Executive Committee. Charles N. Hayden and his associates were strongly in favor of amending the by-laws so as to provide that the President of the road at all times should be ex officio Chairman, but because of Mr. Amster's opposition this amendment was changed so as to provide that the Chairman shall be elected by the seven members of the committee. As Mr. Hayden and his associates have control of the board, and consequently of the Executive Committee, there is no doubt that the President of the system will be so honored, Mr. Hayden declaring in favor of centralizing control of the system through the naming of Mr. Gorman.

It was generally conceded that there was no longer danger of any of the old interests, alleged to be responsible for the wrecking of Rock Island, again coming into control of the road. Practically every Director present at today's meeting expressed confidence in the future of Rock Island, and declared that with a little help from the Government in the way of increased rates the road could be made into a paying property.

Amster's Rock Island Fight.

Nathan L. Amster took up the cause of the minority bondholders of the Rock Island in 1914, when the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company passed its dividend, and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Company, the holding company, consequently was compelled to default its bond interest. He formed a minority bondholders' protective committee and succeeded in getting the stock distributed pro rata to the bondholders.

Upon the formation of the Sheldon committee to elect Directors to the reorganized Rock Island, Mr. Amster, after a hot fight, succeeded in getting enough proxies to secure his own election as a Director. This was in April, 1915. Two weeks later the interests formerly in control of the Rock Island, headed by Daniel G. Reid and William H. Moore, succeeded, without his knowledge, in having the road thrown into a receivership, at a time when Mr. Amster was trying to raise money to save it from this fate.

Mr. Amster was made a member of the joint reorganization committee, and was made Chairman of the Executive Committee of the new board. He has never been able to work in harmony with the representatives of the other faction, however, and for some time has been working toward the election of Directors held yesterday, with a view to getting better representation of the stockholders with whom he is allied. He has issued several statements declaring that this election, and the campaign for proxies conducted by his opponents, represented the last desperate effort of "the old crowd" to retain control of the road.

REJECTS CAR FRANCHISE.

New York Railways Finds City's 86th Street Contract Objectionable.

James L. Quackenbush, attorney for the New York Railways Company, notified the Board of Estimate yesterday that his company did not propose to accept the contract drawn by the city for the franchise permitting the company to operate a surface line in West Eighty-sixth Street, from Central Park West to Broadway. The letter conveying the information contained no explanation.

Last June the board adopted a resolution enabling the city to grant a franchise for a two-track railroad in the street on condition that the Legislature should enact a law permitting the city to compensate owners for any damage caused by the continuation of the line. The claim that the road would greatly damage property in the street was one of the chief points made by those who protested against the road.

Stylish Stouts in Demand.

Manufacturers of costumes of the stylish stout order, in which every effort is made to give the gown of large proportions good lines and a slenderizing effect, are reported to be having an unusually big season. The frocks most sought, it is said, are those conspicuous for their simplicity and yet attractive in design and material. Stout coats and suits also are said to be in demand, and the question arises as to whether the percentage of stouts is not increasing.

Semi-Dress Frocks for Evening.

The widespread popularity of the semi-dress frock for evening wear, in place of the somewhat more elaborate décolleté evening gown, has raised the question in the minds of many of Fifth Avenue's leading dressmakers as to whether or not this is going to be as big a season as usual for gowns of the latter type. Semi-dress frocks, brocaded, in velvet, chiffon and satin trimmed with fur and spangles, and in a wide variety of both light and dark color combinations and effects, are said to be attracting so much attention that a number of the shops have forsaken the full-dress evening gown almost entirely.

Gray Goods Trading Light.

The combination of the ball game and the approaching holiday, which in many instances in the wholesale dry goods trade will continue until Monday, kept trading small in the local gray goods market yesterday. Some business was done on 38½-inch 64-60s at 10¾ cents for nearby shipment, and the same was true of 64-56s at 10¼. It was said that 39-inch 68-72s could be had for contract delivery at 11¾ cents, but, so far as could be learned, few, if any, buyers tried to get them. At 13¾ cents 39-inch 72-76s could be bought for January shipment, with spots of this construction scarce, and held at 14. Sheetings were again quiet, for the most part. Closing spot prices on printcloths were:

Knit Goods Buying by Retailers.

Spring buying by retailers in the local knit goods market is setting in with considerable activity. The scarcity in heavyweight underwear for Fall, apparently, is being taken as a warning by buyers to get their 1918 requirements in early. As a result, it is said, those who are still holding back may have, when they come to market later on, considerable difficulty getting merchandise. That a scarcity for Spring also will develop seems to be a foregone conclusion.

Say the Skins Are Too Small.

Makers of kid shoes for women are complaining that their manufacturing costs are being increased by the size of many skins that are now coming from India and South America. Because of a difference in structure, two skins rarely take exactly the same shade in the dyeing process, so in the great majority of cases a whole solid-color shoe has to be cut from a single skin. Some of the very high shoes are said to require from four to six square feet. Because of the high prices these skins have brought, the breeders have killed off their young goats and sent their hides to this market. The result is that many of those now available here are too small to supply the footage required for a shoe.

No Fur Coats for Aviators.

As a result of actual tests, muskrats as linings for Winter aviation coats have been frowned on by the Government. The result will be, according to a statement made by Brody & Cohen, manufacturers of fur-lined coats, that the expected purchase of 1,500,000 of these skins for Government account will not be made. "Not only were the skins being held for exorbitant prices in expectation of the sale," said a member of the firm last night, "but it was found that if the skins got wet they would take a long time to dry, that they would shrink, and otherwise become unsuitable for immediate use. Coats like the sample tested, which contained sixty-five skins, cost from $90 to $100, whereas the Government has decided to use gabardine coats, lined with sateen and interlined with sheep fleece, that cost about $30. The Government is now ready to let the contract for these coats."

Britain Needs Needles, Too.

The knit goods manufacturers of this country are not the only ones who are being hampered by a scarcity of needles. A cablegram received by the Department of Commerce from the American Consul General at London bears witness to the fact that the same thing is true in Great Britain. The message in question says that the War Office forbids the purchase, sale, delivery, manufacture, or loan of hosiery latch needles without permit from the Hosiery Needle Committee. The order also specifies that no person shall make or take delivery of hosiery latch needles otherwise than under a contract authorized by the committee. The English designation "hosiery" includes underwear.

Will Offer Two Novel Shoes.

Two innovations in high-grade shoes for women will be put on the market soon by a local wholesale house. One of them is a twelve-inch laced shoe in the most popular of the current lasts. The other will be a shoe which will combine the sightliness of a high-heel model with the comfort of the popular low, military heel. According to the owners of the last, which is to be patented, it is impossible to tell from the forepart of the shoe that the observer is not looking at the daintiest high-heel last on the market, yet the heel is only one and three-quarters inches high. The much-desired high arch is retained, and the contour of the forepart of the shoe is as perfect as if it were a high-heel last. It will retail at $8 to $12.

Revival in Silks Short-Lived.

Though the first few days of the week in the local silk market showed some signs of a revival in buying being close at hand, activity, apparently, has not continued. There still is a tendency on the part of buyers, according to report, to hold off until they absolutely must have merchandise, and then only to place for immediate requirements. The result is more of less of a hand to mouth market with very little going on outside of the usual routine of business.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Rails Lead in New Slump, but Recover Some Ground Afterward.

For a time yesterday forenoon it looked as though the stock market had started for new low levels all around under the leadership of the rails, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, and St. Paul all making new low records, with other standard issues following less rapidly in their wake. Prices firmed up soon afterward and gave the list a healthier look. Activity was on a scale somewhat reduced from the previous session's total, but over 900,000 shares changed hands, and fluctuations were easily induced by several new factors injected into the situation.

The slump in the rails was presumably based upon the announcement that, despite the precarious situation in which so many of the carriers find themselves as a result of the big advances in expenses, the railway trainmen and conductors are already formulating fresh demands for increased wages to be presented on Dec. 1, although the men have not yet decided upon the amount of the new increase to be asked. Offsetting this factor in part was the discussion among Eastern traffic managers of plans for an appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission for reconsideration of the rate increase application. Net changes at the end of the day were generally against the railroads, although the close was in most cases well above the lowest prices. Baltimore & Ohio closed with a loss of 1⅝ for the common and 3 points for the preferred; St. Paul dropped 2⅝ more, with the preferred losing 2 points; Delaware & Hudson lost 1; Erie first preferred the same amount, and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 2½. Union Pacific touched 122⅛ on heavy selling in the forenoon, afterward rallying to 123⅝, which represented a loss of 1⅛. Many of the industrials enjoyed rather substantial recoveries.

The announcement that the prices for bituminous coal recently fixed have been found inadequate and increases allowed had a helpful effect on the entire list and particularly upon the soft coal roads. The increase was not considered adequate by producers, but it amounts to 20 per cent. in the case of "run of mine coal." The original prices were announced as tentative, and experience has shown them to have been made too far under the market.

Supporting orders were in evidence in yesterday's market at times, and floor traders thought they saw in the behavior of some issues signs that liquidation in their cases had about run its course. When the support was withdrawn the decline was resumed. There has been a considerable volume of liquidation in the last few days on the part of institutions as well as by individuals.

There is no question that the depreciation in stocks has militated against the sale of the new Government bonds, although there is every reason to expect that the full $3,000,000,000 will be subscribed. It is hard for an investor who sees his capital diminishing day by day with the declines in securities to bring himself to buy as freely of Liberty bonds as he would had his other investments not required additional protection. The uncertainty with which every one with an income largely derived from his own business or the business in which he has a stockholder's interest regards the working of the new tax law has also operated against subscriptions to the loans. On the other hand, many investors have undoubtedly reached a decision to sell stocks and corporation bonds even at the big loss entailed under prevailing conditions in order to place the proceeds in the world's premier security—the new United States 4 per cent. bond.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Strength of First-Class Investments Continues to be Feature.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The strength of first-class investment stocks continued the feature on the Stock Exchange today. The market had a cheerful tone and the ticker recorded a large number of markings in British and Allied bonds at firm prices. Oil and American Marconi stocks were the most active in the miscellaneous section, and rubber shares were steadily maintained. Argentine rails were easy on strike reports. American securities closed dull.

Money was in moderate demand and discount rates were firm.

Trading Active on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Trading was active on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 61 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 45 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Improved Sentiment.

Yesterday's recovery in stocks was looked at in the Street from two angles. One party, who had expected a fair upturn, based his calculations before the opening of business on the theory that a considerable amount of short covering would precede the double holiday. The other party thought it detected signs of banking support, which was of more influence in the recovery than the retirement of short contracts. As a matter of strict fact, the list as a whole was not strong at the end of the day, being highly irregular. The improvement in sentiment, however, was noteworthy, having its groundwork perhaps in relief because the session did not bring a repetition of the preceding day's drop.

Rails Make Quick Drop and Recover.

For a time in the second hour the market gave an indication of another sharp drop in the rails. St. Paul descended from 50 to 46½, while Baltimore & Ohio sold from 57 to 54¼, Delaware & Hudson from 99 to 96⅞, Great Northern preferred from 101⅞ to 99⅞—going under par for the first time in more than twenty years—New York Central from 72⅛ to 70½, Northern Pacific from 97¼ to 95¼, Reading from 77½ to 75⅛, and Union Pacific from 125⅛ to 122. With the exception of St. Paul and Union Pacific, the subsequent recovery of the issues mentioned wiped out most, if not all, of the gross losses. Street gossip credited the quick decline to the closing out of a number of substantial margin accounts, whose owners had become discouraged.

In order that buyers and sellers of Liberty 3½s of low denomination may stand on an equal basis with others who buy or sell in $10,000 lots the bond brokers on the Stock Exchange have decided to make no difference in prices between large and small bonds. That is, the buyer of a $50 or $100 bond will get it at the same price which a $1,000 bond would command at the same time. Heretofore the buyer of a small bond has frequently paid slightly more than he would have for a "full" bond, and in selling he has received a price a trifle lower than a full bond has brought. The purpose of the brokers is to assure the investor in little Liberty bonds that the market is as favorable for him as for the large investor. Presumably the same practice will be continued in regard to the new Liberty 4s when they are listed on the Exchange. In yesterday's dealings in the 3½s the old discrimination was done away with. Quotations rose from 99.68 to 99.80, closing at the top.

The New Coal Prices.

It was very hard yesterday to get soft coal men to comment for publication on the increased prices for bituminous allowed them by the Fuel Administration. Most of them excused themselves on the plea that they had not had time to digest the announcement and get its bearings on their business. Such sentiment as there was, however, seemed to be that any disposition on the part of the Fuel Administration to recognize the seriousness of the situation confronting the operators, was at least a hopeful sign.

Security for Government Deposits.

Bankers are complimenting the Treasury Department for the good judgment and liberality which it has shown in the new regulations governing the collateral security that is required for Government deposits. One of the most important changes made in the rules is the one providing that commercial paper and bankers' acceptances may be received at 90 per cent. of their face value instead of at only 75 per cent., as was the case formerly. The inclusion of city warrants and notes and bonds of foreign municipalities and provinces are some of the other new features. Approved bonds and notes of any county or city in the United States are acceptable at 90 per cent. of the face value, instead of at 75 per cent. The new regulations also include railroad and other notes in addition to railroad bonds, permitted in the former circular. By extending the list of securities which may be deposited as collateral for Government funds intrusted in their care, banks and trust companies will be enabled to qualify for much larger deposits than they could under the old requirements.

A Lively Day.

More people were to be seen on the floor of the Maritime Exchange yesterday afternoon than have been visible there at any one time in six months. The reason was simple; the Exchange had a direct wire once more. Only, instead of running to Fire Island or any other coast point, it ran to the Polo Grounds. It may have been only a curious coincidence that the number of important men in the financial district who could not be reached yesterday, either at their offices or their homes, was notably large, and that the questions heard around the ticker had more of a flavor of "Who's up?" than of "What was the last sale?"

The Birth of American Thrift

The United States Senate has published as a public document a study entitled "The Birth of American Thrift."

Based on the experience of the first Liberty Loan campaign, when millions of subscribers on the Partial Payment Plan helped not only their Government by providing war funds but also themselves in adopting a habit of saving, it tells clearly how subscriptions can be paid for out of future earnings.

We have a small supply of these pamphlets which we are ready to distribute to those contemplating a Partial Payment Liberty Loan subscription.

Send for it, subscribe to a bond—anywhere—and pass the pamphlet on to others who should subscribe.

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Recover from Wednesday's Slump—General List Advances 70 to 85 Points.

The cotton market changed its mind again yesterday about the early frost damage to the already short crop and in a session marked almost throughout by spirited, and at times lively, buying moved prices up very close to those preceding Wednesday's reaction. Buying to cover and to supply demand until Monday, yesterday being the final session of the week, helped to carry the market along. January reached 26.48 and closed at 26.26, with the general list closing at net advances on the session of 70 to 85 points.

The reactionary tendencies which had been so clearly reflected in the declines of the previous day were in evidence during the early trading. The opening was firm at a decline of 4 points on October, but generally 20 to 28 points higher, and active months sold 24 to 39 points net higher right after the call. Local map readers differ as to weather prospects, however, and prices soon turned easier under realizing for over the three-day adjournment. January and later months sold back to nearly Wednesday's close, but after the publication of the Western belt forecast for cooler weather and frost in Oklahoma the market turned firmer. The detailed reports showing light to killing frosts at a few stations in Mississippi, Tennessee and Alabama served to stimulate the demand, and active months sold 70 to 90 points net higher in the late trading. Closing prices were a few points off from the best under realizing.

Some of the local map readers thought the prospects were for more severe frosts over Sunday than those reported early in the week, and it was probably the fear that further reductions in crop estimates would be necessary. The talk around the ring suggested that popular ideas of the crop had already been cut down by fully a million bales as compared with the end-August indications, and the market was evidently very sensitive to any suggestion of further damage. One of the reports received here from Galveston said that the spot basis was gradually easing off with futures and predicted free selling of spots for the remainder of the week. This suggested an accumulation of hedge selling over the holidays, but much of the early demand was attributed to trade buying, and spinners were again said to be fixing prices. Exports for the day were 15,587 bales, making 995,068 so far this season. Southern spot markets as officially reported early were unchanged to 80 points higher. Both the New York and New Orleans markets will be closed until Monday morning.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market closed steady on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, with the final prices contrasting very irregularly with Wednesday's closing. Shortly before the close the upward movement that had set in just after midday halted, and from then on to the close trading was desultory with prices showing no particular trend. There was little in the overnight development or in the news announcements as the day proceeded to explain the erratic course of quotations. The market had opened slightly lower, but under vigorous buying moved up for the greater part of the first hour. Almost as suddenly it turned weak.

MAYOR SMITH HELD UNDER $10,000 BAIL

Philadelphia Executive Bound Over to Grand Jury as Murder Conspirator.

DENOUNCED FROM BENCH

Judge Brown Calls Him the Primal Factor in a Great Disgrace to His City.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—Charged with conspiracy to murder in connection with the Fifth Ward rioting on Election Day Mayor Thomas B. Smith was held today for the action of the Grand Jury by Judge Charles L. Brown in the Municipal Court. The Mayor sat unmoved for an hour and fifteen minutes while he was arraigned as the principal malefactor in the Fifth Ward feud, which resulted in the death of Special Policeman George A. Eppley.

Judge Brown in commiting the defendants referred to the Mayor as "the chief and primal factor in this great disgrace for which I personally feel ashamed of my city."

The action of the court is regarded as the first definite move in an effort to oust the Mayor from office.

The charges include misbehavior in office, contempt of court in refusing to produce certain documentary evidence, violation of the Shern election law forbidding participation in politics by city employes, conspiracy to commit assault and battery, conspiracy to commit aggravated assault and battery, and conspiracy to commit murder.

Jointly held with the Mayor were a negro policeman, Clarence H. Hayden; William E. Finley, a Vare leader in the City Council; Police Lieutenant David Bennett, Isaac Deutsch, and Policemen Emanuel Uram, Lewis Feldman, John Wirtschafter, and Michael Murphy.

Within fifteen minutes after the judge had passed on the warrants binding Mayor Smith and his codefendants for the Grand Jury, the counsel for the defendants appeared before Judge J. Willis Martin, in the Court of Quarter Sessions, and obtained for their clients writs of habeas corpus returnable on Oct. 20. Pending argument on this motion to upset the finding of the municipal court, the Mayor was released under $10,000 bail. Like bonds were entered by Deutsch, Finley and Bennett, while $5,000 was required from the five policemen, described by the prosecution as the "agents and tools of the Mayor."

Ex-Judge Gordon, who summed up the evidence of the Commonwealth against the men named in the warrants, declared at the end of his denunciation of the Mayor that other arrests in connection with the killing of the policeman and the importation of New York gunmen would be made as the result of the evidence developed at the hearing.

Michael Sullivan, operative of the Val O'Farrell Detective Agency, who confessed to the hiring of the "white ribbon mob," was held for further examination under $10,000 bail.

Prepared to face the worst, the nine defendants took their customary seats in the courtroom almost at the very moment set for the opening of the last chapter in the procedings before Judge Brown. Mayor Smith, as he made his way to his chair near his attorneys, nodded to a few of his friends.

"Are you ready?" Mr. Gordon whispered to the attorneys representing the defendants. Then, in the same matter-of-fact way that he asked the question, he addressed the court. He recounted the number of witnesses called and mentioned that 1,400 pages of testimony had been taken for the official record of the proceedings.

"Willful failure of a person to perform a legal duty whereby the death of another is caused is murder," he said. "And where parties enter into a conspiracy to commit another offense and in the execution of their common design one of them makes an assault with intent to murder they are all equally guilty of the felony."

The technical citation over, Mr. Gordon turned toward the Mayor and said:

"I select out of these defendants as the principal malefactor Thomas B. Smith, at whose door the evidence places the criminal guilt for this murder."

When the prosecutor had presented his demand the defendants for the first time gave the appearance of being worried. They glanced toward Judge Brown as he bent forward and announced that he would hold the Mayor and other defendants on the charges made out against them. He said:

"First, I will hold Thomas B. Smith, the Mayor of Philadelphia, for the next term of the Grand Jury, upon the offense described in the Constitution, misbehavior in office. I will also hold him for the same term of the Grand Jury upon the charge of contempt of court and failure to produce the records of his office. I will also hold him upon these and other charges of conspiring and being, as Judge Gordon so properly said, the chief and primal factor in this great disgrace that this country has been obliged to witness, and for which I personally feel ashamed of my city."

The defense, contending that Judge Brown, sitting as a committing magistrate, had no jurisdiction in hearing the case, refused to enter bail before that court, but did so in the other court.

Girard Trust in Reserve System.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—The Girard Trust Company, one of the largest institutions of its kind in the country, has made application for membership in the Federal Reserve Bank system. This action was taken, the company announced, through a patriotic desire to assist the Government during the war crisis.

MAYOR DEFENDS BUDGET.

Says Greatest Increase Is for Inherited Debt Service.

In a letter yesterday to Ernest Spitzer, Secretary of the Upper Manhattan Property Owners' Association, Mayor Mitchel analyzed the budget figures for the coming year. The Mayor said he was not only in favor of proper retrenchment in municipal expenditures for the purpose of obtaining a lower tax rate, but that savings and reductions have actually been put into effect in the departments where the Board of Estimate and the Mayor have control.

"The aggregate reduction in the 1917 budget," he said, "compared with the 1914 budget was $7,881,876. The aggregate increases were $26,000,461.20, making a net increase of $18,118,585.20. Of this net increase $17,133,051.30 was due to increase in debt service, (i. e., interest, sinking fund charges, and redemptions,) the bulk of which was for improvements authorized prior to 1914.

"Further detail of the above is as follows: The aggregate of the budgets of the departments under the Mayor for 1917 is $1,707,534.54 lower than the sum of those budgets for 1914, when they were inherited from the preceding administration. The Finance Department, the office of the Controller, shows a decrease of $155,080 for the same period; and the sum of the Borough Presidents' offices shows a decrease of $329,478.82. This has all been done despite deserved increases in the pay of firemen and policemen and other low-paid city employes.

"These reductions, however, have been swallowed up in the enormous increase of $17,133,051.30 in debt service, the increase of $1,286,800 on account of widows' pensions, and the increase of $3,335,551.95 on account of education. These last-named increases no administration could have prevented. My administration has taken steps to prevent further unlimited increases in the debt service by the adoption of the pay-as-you-go policy.

"While this administration has done much to curb waste and reduce cost, still more can and will be done in the future."

New Haven Road to Lend $100,000.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company obtained permission from Judge Mayer of the Federal District Court yesterday to lend $100,000 to the Berkshire Street Railway Company, to be used in paying the mortgage bonds of the Hoosac Valley Railway Company, which became due on July 1 last. The two railway companies were merged on June 30, 1906.

SHOES AND CLOTHES SCARCE IN GERMANY

People Forced to Fall Back on Paper Substitute for Cotton and Cretonne.

WOODEN FOOTWEAR USED

Government in Summer Encouraged Public to Go Barefooted or Wear Sandals—Makes Over Clothes.

By JULIAN GRANDE.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Sept. 8.—Perennial interest has been felt in and a vast deal written about food restrictions in Germany, but the scarcity of clothing and materials there and the extent to which clothing requirements are regulated are not yet perhaps realized.

In accordance with the German habit of taking time by the forelock a Reichsbekleidungsstelle (Imperial Clothing Office) was opened fifteen months ago, on June 10, 1916. On that date all retail drapers and other shops with stocks of ready-made clothing or materials were obliged to cease their ordinary business and take stock of their supplies of all articles which in future were to be obtainable only on production of a ticket. These tickets, however, were not issued until Aug. 1, 1916, and in the meantime the shopkeepers were allowed to sell not more than 20 per cent. of their stocks, so that all who could afford to do so bought up clothing and house linen, which is also included in the articles obtainable now only by ticket. It is scarcely surprising that the German drapers and linen drapers should have said that never before had they done such a roaring trade as in July, 1916.

The German authorities, however, failed to take feminine human nature sufficiently into account. For the most essential garments they fixed maximum prices, intended primarily to protect the poorer classes. Anything beyond this maximum price might be sold as usual. The result was that quantities of the cheaper kinds of clothing were simply sold at higher prices before the tickets came into force—that is, sold above their normal value, and thus put still further beyond the reach of those very classes whom the ticket system was meant to benefit.

For altering or mending a garment not more than about 12 inches of material was to be allowed by these regulations without a ticket, while the number of each individual garment allowed were most inconveniently small, and a ticket had to be obtained for each new suit or costume. Early this year, in the Spring, however, the clothing restrictions became much more drastic. One everyday or workaday suit and one better suit, one overcoat, six handkerchiefs, and four pairs of socks for a man, and for a woman two everyday dresses or working dresses and one better dress, one cloak, four pairs of stockings and four changes of underwear were announced to be sufficient.

Last May the Municipal Councils of Berlin and suburbs founded a central office for buying up old clothes, and after some weeks in "garring them luik amaist as guid's the new," began to sell them publicly. The office was crowded with men and women anxious to buy a furbished up hat, pair of shoes, suit, or even fancy waistcoat. The worn garments, when received, are classified, with true German system, into five divisions: (1) new or very little worn; (2) not very much worn; (3) very much worn but in good order; (4) very much worn out and torn; and (5) quite worn out, fit only for work-people's garments.

As for the public, it is now actually being instructed how best to dye old clothes and being told that in cases of bereavement no one must purchase more than one new mourning dress at most. And now the Imperial Clothing Office has let it be known that its work would be greatly facilitated if people would entirely cease to wear mourning, merely putting a black, or crêpe, band around the sleeve or else dye old garments black.

Certain enterprising places have even gone the length of issuing Ten Commandments for Economy in Clothing, as follows:

1. Restrict your requirements as much as possible. Every one must make garments, linen, and shoes last to the utmost, both in his or her own interest and in that of the country.
2. Not even well-to-do persons must allow themselves any but the plainest clothing.
3. Have old garments mended, turned, or dyed.
4. The question of dress must on all occasions, grave or gay, be relegated to a back place.
5. During the war give up the custom of burying the dead in their best clothes. All clothes are now needed for the living.
6. Be very economical with lining materials. Garments need never be more than half lined.
7. Send all old garments, linen, shoes, and uniforms which you can do without to the Old Clothes Office.
8. Send to the same office all garments, linen, and shoes, even if unusable as such. Some use will be found for them.
9. Wear sandals or in Summer go barefoot, and thus save leather shoes for the Autumn and Winter.

The shortage of leather is the chief cause of 1,100 of some 1,450 German shoe factories being closed; while about 100 of those remaining open work for the army. Shoes are of course included in the articles for which a ticket is necessary in order to be able to buy them. Many shoe shops in Germany now sell boots and shoes only on the distinct understanding that no guarantee is given for their wearing qualities; in other words, that if they go into holes almost at once no complaints need be made.

Charter Motor Starter Corporation.

Word was received from Albany yesterday of the formal filing at the office of the Secretary of State by the Corporation Trust Company of the certificate of incorporation of the Motor Starter Corporation, with a capital of $2,000,000. This company was formed to take over the patents of Henry K. Stewart; one of the founders of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation, and will also take over the Stewart plant at Long Island City. The company will manufacture not only self-starters, but other electrical equipment for automobiles. Among the Directors named in the certificate of incorporation were Samuel McRoberts, Charles V. Rich, Eric F. Swenson, S. Magnus Swenson, and Frank A. Vanderlip.

Award $10,000,000 City Stock Notes

Bids were opened yesterday at the Municipal Building for $10,000,000 of corporate stock notes of the City of New York, dated either Oct. 15 or 16, at the option of the purchaser, and maturing March 15, 1918. Seven bids were received, aggregating about $16,700,000. The largest single award was of $3,500,000 to Salomon Brothers & Hutzler at 5.265. Bernard, Scholle & Co. obtained $2,500,000 at 5.24; S. N. Bond & Co. $2,000,000 in four $500,000 lots, at prices ranging from 4.99 to 5.24, and several other firms took amounts from $200,000 up at prices from 4.69 to 5.15.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The increased flour output at Northwestern milling points shows that mills are being better supplied with wheat and, while the receipts are not increasing as rapidly as hoped for, the movement is at least large enough to keep the big mills running heavily. Supplies in America will undoubtedly be supplemented by importations from Australia. The extent of the purchases in that country will depend largely on the tonnage available, but apparently a considerable business is anticipated, and the Australian product will be admitted into the United States free of duty. There is a large surplus in that country, owing to the inadequate transportation facilities for shipping to Europe, and it is said that the price prevailing in the United States is attractive.

CORN.

The feverish action of the corn market yesterday displayed the feeling of uncertainty which exists in the trade, and also the feeling of caution about taking an aggressive stand on the buying side in the face of the aggressive actions of the part of the Government in dealing with the food situation. After a decline of about 1½c, however, prices rallied and closed firm, with net gains of ⅝ to 1¼c. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $2.03 and No. 2 mixed at $2, cost, insurance and freight New York.

OATS.

The oats market showed a steady undertone and while the action of corn caused a slight depression early, the close was firm with net gains of ¼c to ⅝c. Exporters were again in evidence and sales were estimated at 400,000 bushels. Receipts at primary points continue small and the persistent holding on the part of farmers is having a tendency to discourage sellers. The local cash market was steady; standard quoted at 65½c; No. 2 white, 65½c; No. 3 white, 65c; No. 4 white, 64 to 64½c; fancy clipped white, 66c to 68c; ordinary clipped white, 64½c to 66c, all elevator.

COFFEE.

A firmer tone developed in the coffee market during yesterday's early trading, but advances were lost with the close showing a net decline of 1 to 4 points. The local spot market was unchanged at 8⅝ for Rio 7's and 9⅝ for Santos 4's.

SUGAR.

A further readjustment in refined sugar took place, Warner going to 8.35c, a drop of 5 points, but continues withdrawn from the market. Arbuckle also went to the 8.35c level and, while their factory is closed, they are taking orders in a limited way. No sales were reported in raw sugar and, while the Government would allow refiners to pay 5⅞c, holders were out of the market, not wishing to let go the small balance of the unsold crop at present prices. Leading Cuban interests estimate that the balance of supplies unsold, in Cuba, will total about 25,000 tons. Spot quotations follow: Centrifugal, 6.90c; molasses, 6.02c; cost and freight, 5⅞c.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was again under pressure, prices declining sharply under aggressive liquidation, due largely to the expectation that the Government will take control of the whole situation. Lard prices declined over a cent a pound for the October position, and, while there was a slight rally, the close was easy. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 9,000 head; estimated for Friday, 8,000 head; Kansas City received 6,000 head and Omaha 4,600 head.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Prices in the cottonseed oil market experienced another sharp decline under liquidation of outstanding accounts, and owing to the fact that no new speculative operations are permitted. Closing prices, however, showed a rally from the lowest, and it was thought that the pressure of long selling had about spent itself, while shorts were somewhat more disposed to cover. Final prices were 7 to 50 points net lower. Total sales were 17,100 barrels. Range of prices:

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 5,084 packages. Under light receipts and fair trading the market made a further recovery. Nearly all grades of creamery advanced fully ½c and in some cases a little more. Held creamery also a little higher, but renovated, ladles and packing stock remain unchanged. Creamery, higher than extras, per lb., 45@45½c; extras, (92 score,) 44½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 43½@44½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 42@43c; thirds, 41@41½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 46½@47c; extras, 45½@46c; firsts, 44½@45c; seconds, 43@44c; State, dairy, tubs, finest, 44@44½c; good to prime, 42@43½c; common to fair, 34@41½c; renovated, extras, 43c; firsts, 42@42½c; lower grades, 39@41½c; imitation creamery, firsts, 40½@41c; ladles, current make, firsts, 39½@40c; seconds, 38½@39c; lower grades, 37@38c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 38½@39c; No. 2, 38c; lower grades, 36@37½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 9,825 cases. The market is showing a steady tone, with a fair demand. Trade, however, is not active, and there are still liberal accumulations, which holders are able to reduce but slowly. Strictly fancy qualities show considerable firmness. Good medium qualities have been moving a little better, but are still of irregular value, and the range of prices shows no material change. Storage eggs are having some demand, some dealers being disposed to take stock a little beyond immediate needs. Call is chiefly for cheaper qualities in range of 35@36c; finer goods are held with a little more confidence. Nearby white eggs of uniformly fancy quality are scarce and firm. Some receivers have almost enough jobbing trade to absorb their supply at more or less premium above quotations. Mixed and irregular qualities are firm, but bulk of the receipts still moving slowly at a wide range. Fresh gathered extras, per dozen, 45@46c; extra firsts, 43@44c; firsts, 39½@41½c; seconds, 37½@39c; thirds and poorer, 33@37c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 36@36½c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@35½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice dry, 33@34c; under grades, 30@32c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 38c; firsts, storage and insurance paid, 36½@37½c; seconds, storage and insurance paid, 35@36c; lower grades, storage and insurance paid, 33@34½c; refrigerator State whites, 41@43c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 62@66c; ordinary to good, 50@60c; gathered whites, good to fine, 45@62c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 42@50c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 48@54c; gathered brown and mixed weights, 42@46c.

(q) Any purchaser or his successor or assignee shall have the right within ninety days after delivery to him of the deed or other instruments of transfer of the property purchased or within such additional time as the Court may direct, to reject any part of the property sold other than contracts made by or adopted by the Receivers, and no user of such property prior to the expiration of such period shall preclude the purchaser from such election.

(r) Upon confirmation of the sale and receipt of or due provision for the purchase price, the Receivers will deliver to the purchaser deeds or other proper instruments transferring the title, subject to the provisions of the decree, and the purchaser shall be entitled to all revenues received and compensations for services rendered by the Receivers in the operation of the premises conveyed subsequent to the date of the sale as well as all other properties acquired by the Receivers subsequent thereto.

(s) By the said decree all questions relating to the amounts of compensation, charges, allowances, costs, disbursements, and expenses are reserved by the Court for further hearing, determination and settlement.

Education Notes.

The West End Board of Trade has expressed its approval of the work of Harry A. Potter, Principal of the Bay Ridge High School; has deplored the fact that influences not for the best interests of the school should have power to bring about his transfer to the New Utrecht High School, and has requested that he be retained at the Bay Ridge High School.

The extension course for teachers of the City College is making a special effort to assist the men and women teachers engaged in all forms of prevocational and vocational work.

A leave of six months with pay has been granted to Dr. Henry M. Leipziger, Supervisor of Lectures, for restoration of health.

Rabbi Ephraim Frisch has made a complaint that the Principal and two teachers of the Brooklyn Training School for Teachers were discourteous to him when he asked them for informataion as to his sister, Miss Frisch, who was found deficient in oral English. The Principal of the school which she attended said that her oral English was good. On motion of Isadore M. Levy the complaint has been turned over to the Committee on High Schools and Training Schools.

Property on South Second, Rodney, and South Third Streets, Brooklyn, adjoining P. S. 19, has been selected as a site for school purposes.

The Alumnae Association of P. S. 68, Manhattan, will hold a meeting in the school on Oct. 15.

Supervisor of Lectures Leipziger has written to the lecturers associated with him calling upon them to make their lectures harmonize with the spirit of Americanism, as unfolded in President Wilson's utterances.

REGISTRATION DROPS ON THE FOURTH DAY

QUEENS GAINED YESTERDAY

Registration throughout the city yesterday took a decided slump as compared with the day before. While there was a slight gain in a few districts, the majority showed a considerable falling off from Wednesday's figures. The total for the five boroughs yesterday was 96,191 and the total for the four days this year was 380,337. Yesterday's registration in the entire city fell 8,685 below Wednesday's total. In every borough except Manhattan, however, yesterday's registration was higher than that of the corresponding day last year, although the four-day totals are below last year's four-day totals in every borough. For the first four days last year the total registration amounted to 450,809.

In Manhattan the total for the day was 35,128. In 1916, which was a Presidential year, the total for the fourth day was 35,676. For the fourth day in 1913, the last Mayoralty year, the total was 64,452. The large registration during the first four days of that year, 265,119, is explained, however, by the fact that the registration hours were different. The polls were open all day, while this year the registration hours are between 5:30 and 10:30 P. M. Moreover, while there were only four full registration days in 1913, the polls are open all week this year, there being but one full day, tomorrow.

The Manhattan total for the first four days this year is 143,600. For the four days last year it was 176,616, and for the four days in 1913 it was 265,119.

The registration in the Bronx yesterday was 14,199, a gain of 867 over the corresponding four days last year. Two new districts have been added to the Bronx this year, however, under the new Assembly apportionment. In 1913 the Bronx total for the four days was 20,327. For the four days of registration this year, the Bronx registration amounts to 54,269, as compared to 60,499 last year and 83,312 four years ago.

Brooklyn's registration amounted to 34,877 yesterday. For the fourth day last year it was 33,933, a gain of 944. In 1913 it was 62,764. The Brooklyn total for the first four days this year is 139,697., For the corresponding period last year it was 165,230 and for 1913, 242,144.

In Queens 9,773 persons registered yesterday, as compared to 9,105 on the fourth day last year. For the four days this year, the Queens total is 35,078, as compared to 39,405 last year. Richmond's total registration yesterday was 2,214. For the corresponding day last year it was 2,018. The Richmond total for the four days this year is 7,693. Last year it was 8,859.

Election district Captains said last night that the slump from Wednesday's figures might be attributed to the fact that it was the eve of a holiday, today being Columbus Day. Voters were hurrying to social affairs, they said, and did not wait to register except at elections booths on the main thoroughfares. At such places the registration showed gains over the previous day. The falling off was not confined to any particular parts of the city, but was general alike in Republican and Democratic strongholds.

Following are the registration figures by boroughs for the fourth day of 1913, 1916, and this year:

| Manhattan | 64,452 | 35,676 | 35,128 |
| Bronx | 20,327 | 13,332 | 14,199 |
| Brooklyn | 62,764 | 33,933 | 34,877 |
| Queens | 14,199 | 9,105 | 9,773 |
| Richmond | 4,637 | 2,018 | 2,214 |
| Total | 166,379 | 94,064 | 96,191 |

| Borough. | 1913. | 1916. | 1917. |

CITY DEMOCRACY GROWS.

Now Making Its Anti-Tammany Fight Throughout Manhattan.

The City Democracy announced yesterday that four new headquarters had been opened in Manhattan in the Second Assembly District, at 289 Bowery; Fifth Assembly District, at 714 Tenth Avenue; Seventeenth Assembly District, at 1,542 Madison Avenue, and the Twenty-third Assembly District at 3,927 Broadway. The City Democracy now has thirty-one district organizations in operation and district captains in each of the twenty-three Assembly districts of Manhattan.

"The type of young Democrats organizing these districts on behalf of the City Democracy," said Charles Steckler, its founder, "and the surprising response of the young men of the city to invitations for enrollment fully sustain our point that the Democrats of New York are disgusted with the Murphy-ridden machine and seek to build up an organization which will measure up to the standards of the Democrats in the nation."

Mayor Mitchel and the Fusion candidates have been invited to make a tour of the headquarters and address the men, and the Mayor will devote two nights of next week to this program.

HILLQUIT DINNER GUEST.

Speaks at First Campaign Event Given by Civic Club.

The first of a series of dinners to be given to candidates for municipal offices in the present campaign by the Civic Club of New York was given last night at 19 West Thirty-first Street. Morris Hillquit, Socialist candidate for Mayor, was the guest of honor. Darwin Meserole, President of the club, presided. About 100 members of the club and invited guests were present. The purpose of the gathering is to give each of the four Mayoralty candidates an "even break" in discussing the issues before the club. Candidate Hillquit spoke at length of the municipal problems as he sees them. He favored municipal ownership of public utilities and promised that, if elected, his party would administer them with the employes having a certain voice in their management.

McCLELLAN QUITS POLITICS.

Former Mayor Says Army Regulations Forbid Activity.

George B. McClellan, former Mayor of New York and now a Major in the United States Army, resigned yesterday as a member of the Democratic Fusion Committee. In a letter to William P. Burr, Chairman of the Campaign Committee, Major McClellan gave as his reason for resigning the fact that, as an officer of the United States Army, he is forbidden to take part in politics. He wrote that he disliked very much to be obliged to resign, but that he had no choice in the matter.

Register Today.

Only two days left for registration for the election of Nov. 6. Polls open today from 5:30 P. M. to 10:30 P. M., and tomorrow from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. If you do not register you cannot vote.

THIEVES SHOOT FOUR IN JERSEY HOLDUPS

Adams Express Office in Hoboken Robbed in Early Morning Hours.

FOUR SUSPECTS ARE HELD

West New York Saloon Keeper Shot Five Times, Not Expected to Survive.

Four masked men entered the office of the Adams Express Company at Ferry and Bloomfield Streets, Hoboken, early yesterday morning and, after shooting a clerk, got away with money said to amount to several thousand dollars.

Last night three men believed to be members of the same gang entered the café of Valentine D'Allassandro, 761 Dewey Street, West New York, and, after shooting D'Allassandro and his son-in-law, Joseph Landano, stole $250 and two diamond rings, the contents of the cash register, and made their escape.

Following the Hoboken robbery, four men were arrested and detained on charges of being suspicious persons. The Adams Express officials had not completed an inventory last night, and could not tell what has been stolen from the "valuables room" of their Hoboken headquarters. When the highwaymen entered the office, two clerks, William King of 120 West Third Street, Bayonne, and Ernest Hecker of 307 Fern Avenue, Lyndhurst, were at work. The robbers ordered them to throw up their hands. King obeyed, but Hecker jumped to close the safe, which contained a large sum of money. A bullet from a revolver in the hands of one of the robbers struck him in the hip. The shot was heard throughout the building, where 200 men were at work. Hearing them coming, the robbers seized several packages and some money from the safe and fled.

Patrolman Growney, who was a block away, saw the men come out of the building and opened fire on them. The robbers returned the shots of the policeman, and more than a dozen shots were fired.

The detectives later arrested Joseph Goode, 462 First Street, Hoboken; Edward Holloway, 508 Ferry Street, Hoboken; Michael Gleason, 78 Monroe Street, Hoboken, and Matthew Dwyer, who said he had no home. Goode was arrested on a description given by King and Hecker. Gleason formerly was a driver for the express company. They were questioned for several hours at Hoboken Police Headquarters.

D'Allassandro and Landano were in the West New York café when, about 9:30 o'clock, three men entered and asked for drinks. D'Allassandro served them. One of the men threw a dollar on the counter, and, when D'Allassandro turned to make change, the men gave a scharp order for D'Allassandro and Landano to throw up their hands. They obeyed, but when one of the men started toward the open cash register, D'Allassandro, who is 72 years old, grappled with him. Landano ran to his father-in-law's assistance. The other two men began to fire. D'Allassandro crumpled up, shot through the chest, and Landano fell with a wound in the head. The men hurriedly rifled the cash register and ran out, jumped into a waiting automobile, and escaped.

Passers-by who heard the shots went into the saloon, and seeing the two men lying on the floor, called an ambulance. The wounded men were taken to the North Hudson Hospital, where it was found that D'Allassandro had been shot five times through the chest. It was said he probably would die as a result of his wounds. Landano suffered a scalp wound, which was said not to be serious.

THREATEN SHIPYARD STRIKE

Ironworkers Want Union Control of Plant Building at Newark.

John A. Johnston, Vice President of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, appeared before the Newark Board of Works yesterday afternoon and warned that body that a strike is imminent at Port Newark Terminal where the big shipyards are being built by the Submarine Boat Company under an Emergency Fleet lease.

Johnston said both the Lackawanna Bridge Company and the Submarine Boat Company had refused to acknowledge the right claimed by the union to put its men in the yard, and that the Emergency Fleet Corporation had also been seen in regard to the matter, but referred the delegates back to the submarine people.

Johnston asserted that the two first-named corporations had declared they would put what workmen they choose in the yard and pay them what they think they are worth, whereas the union says it has the men to man the yard and that they must get the minimum wage of 75 cents an hour.

On motion of Commissioner Gillen, the board decided to request the Emergency Fleet Corporation to take steps toward averting the threatened trouble. It was said that the proposed strike applied only to the erection of buildings at the terminal and not to the building of ships.

RICKER BUYS PEARSON'S.

Pearson's Magazine was sold yesterday by Peter B. Olney, receiver, to A. W. Ricker, President of the Pearson Publishing Company, who bid 2 per cent. on the amount of claims against the company, estimated at from $200,000 to $250,000, and the cost of administration, about $500. Judge Mayer of the Federal District Court confirmed the bid of Mr. Ricker. Frank Harris, editor of the magazine, bid $2,500 for the good-will, trade-mark, and circulation list, and $600 for the office furniture. The appraisers estimated the value of the property at $2,500. Pearson's Magazine is published at 34 Union Square.

Offer for Aetna Company Refused.

Judge Mayer of the Federal District Court signed an order yesterday authorizing the receivers of the Aetna Explosive Company, Inc., to refuse the offer of $1,500,000 made by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. for the property of the insolvent concern, located in Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Alabama, Michigan, Ontario, and at Kingston, N. Y. The receivers reported that the plants indicated were capable of producing 5,000,000 pounds of dynamite, 700,000 kegs of black powder, and 3,000,000 blasting caps a month. The ground of the refusal of the offer was that the price was inadequate.

Promoting Food Conservation.

Two meetings to promote the New York Campaign for Food Conservation were held yesterday. One was at the Advertising Club, 47 East Twenty-fifth Street, and the other at the headquarters of the Housewives' League, 30 West Thirty-ninth Street. At the Advertising Club Frederick C. Walcott, assistant to Herbert C. Hoover, told the necessity of all getting behind the food conservation movement.

BENNETT SPEAKS IN KINGS.

Support of Cropsey Adds Impetus to His Campaign There.

Supporters of William M. Bennett, the Republican primary nominee for Mayor, began a vigorous campaign in Brooklyn yesterday where they expect to get more votes than either Mayor Mitchel or Judge Hylan. The announcement that Justice Cropsey is to preside at the Bennett mass meeting at the Academy of Music next Monday night added considerable impetus to the Bennett boom. When the Kings County Republican Committee meets next Tuesday to take up the Mitchel-Bennett controversy, it is unlikely that either candidate will be indorsed. The Republican leaders in Kings feel that the party will be split wide open if the county committee lines up either one way or the other.

"I hereby repeat my charge," said Mr. Bennett yesterday, "that in the Democratic primary greater frauds were committed than in the Republican primary, and those were bad enough. It is Mr. Hylan's duty to have the Democratic boxes opened and to do for the Democratic Party what I am doing for the Republican Party, namely, bring about a state of affairs where dishonesty at the primary will cease. I hereby demand that Mr. Hylan speak up and state his position with regard to the gross frauds in the Democratic primary."

It was announced at Police Headquarters yesterday that on Oct. 4 Commissioner Woods received a letter from S. Howard Cohen, Chief Clerk of the Board of Elections, stating that when the ballot box from the Fourth Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District, Brooklyn, used at the primary election had been received at the Board of Elections, the box, though sealed, was empty. Inspector Walsh was assigned by the Commissioner to make an investigation.

The Inspector found that the polling place for that election district had been held in a plumber's shop at 446 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, and that when he questioned the election Inspectors and watchers they asserted the ballots had been placed in an envelope and sealed and then put into the ballot box, which was also sealed. The box was then taken to the Gates Avenue Police Station.

Police Captain Sullivan said the box had been placed in a rear room of the police station with other ballot boxes and that he had locked the door. Inspector Walsh then searched through the rubbish in the room and found the missing envelope. When the envelope was opened in the Board of Elections the missing ballots were found.

Mr. Bennett spoke at the John K. Neal Club, 52 Harmon Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, again assailing both Mayor Mitchel and Judge Hylan on the ground that they had "blinked at the primary election frauds."

Further examination yesterday of the ballots cast in Brooklyn disclosed additional gains for Mr. Coler. In the Third Assembly District alone the re-examination showed that a proper counting of the returns would have resulted in a gain for him of more than 300 votes, and brought the plurality of Edward Riegelmann down to less than 1,000.

MAY MERGE 3 HOSPITALS.

Plans Considered for Uniting Jewish Institutions in the Bronx.

The merger of Lebanon, the Bronx, and the Bronx Maternity Hospitals, the three great Jewish institutions in the Bronx, was considered last night at a conference in the Harmonie Club, 10 East Sixtieth Street. The conference was called by Felix M. Warburg, Ben Altheimer, and Leo Arnstein, and was attended by about thirty men who are either connected with some of the city hospitals or are pledged to give their financial support to any plan for improving the hospital facilities in the Bronx.

The plan considered calls for the erection of a great central, modern hospital building in place of the three separate institutions, to cost at least $500,000, which will accommodate 300 patients. It is proposed that such an institution will be under a Board of Directors made up of the Directorate of the three merged hospitals. The plan also contemplates establishment of dispensaries in different parts of the Bronx.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the appointment of a committee of the representatives of the various hospitals and those interested in the movement, to make a survey and work out a plan for merger. Mr. Altheimer was appointed Chairman of the committee. It is estimated that the yearly budget for the proposed hospital and its branches will be at least $300,000.

Pugilist Settles Woman's Suit.

The $50,000 breach of promise suit of Miss Mamie Hughes against James J. Coffey, pugilist, was settled yesterday for $10,000 after the plaintiff had testified before Justice Goff. She said she first met Coffey when they led the grand march on St. Patrick's night at the Amsterdam Opera House and that when they met a year later he asked her to marry him. Coffey insisted that he knew nothing of the marriage proposal until papers in the suit were served.

POLICE HELD FOR EXTORTION

Alleged to Have Held Up Out-of-Town Van Driver for $10.

Police Sergeant Charles Rafsky and Patrolman J. J. Thorpe, attached to the Wakefield Station, who were indicted on Wednesday by a Bronx County Grand Jury on charges of extortion, were surrendered to County Judge Gibbs yesterday by Police Captain Edward C. Barnett. Bail was fixed at $1,500 each.

The complainant was Abraham Platsky, a furniture dealer of Bridgeport, Conn. In a letter to Police Commissioner Woods, Platsky said that on Aug. 12 he was driving his motor van on the Boston Post Road in the Bronx, when at Eastchester Road he was stopped by Patrolman Thorpe, who complained that he had no rear license plate, and no license to carry furniture through the Bronx. He said that Sergeant Rafsky was present, and that when Thorpe started to write a summons, Rafsky suggested that the fines and costs would amount to $40 or $50, and then walked away. According to Platsky, Thorpe said he could settle for $10. Platsky said his helper handed a bill to Thorpe. Then, Platsky alleged, he met Rafsky further up the road, and Rafsky asked him how he had settled the "arrest."

Platsky said when he got still further along Thorpe overtook him on his bicycle and told Platsky that his helper had given him a folded new one dollar note, and not a ten. Platsky said he gave Thorpe the other nine dollars. This was the same testimony Platsky gave in the West Farms Police Court two weeks ago, when Thorpe was arraigned on a charge of extortion. The police court case was continued, and ... [illegible] meanwhile the Grand Jury acted. Platsky and his helper and a customer appeared before the Grand Jury on Wednesday.

WOMEN'S CLUB FOR FUSION.

Indorsement of the whole Fusion ticket was decided upon by the Women's City Club at a meeting in the Park Avenue Hotel last evening. There was practically a unanimous feeling among the members in favor of the ticket, and the discussion was upon the advisability of taking action.

The club also voted to adopt a platform accentuating its principles. This is to be put into form for action at another meeting. It will include its belief in the Gary school plan, maintenance of the high standards of the Police Department, early establishment of terminal markets and investigation of the price of milk and establishment of permanent municipal milk stations.

Walk-Over SHOES

O MANY things the designer of a shoe must know! He must know every bone and muscle in the human foot just as a watchmaker knows the purpose of every wheel.

He must calculate on the weight of the wearer just as a bridge builder figures his strains. Did you know a skilled shoemaker can estimate the weight and height of a man by his tracks?

Oh, it takes sense to make a good shoe, and it takes sense to fit it and sell it. For all feet are not alike, and in shoe shapes, what is one man's comfort may mean another man's misery.

When we order Walk-Over shoes from the factory, we know we are going to get smart-looking, foot-shaped shoes. We know what the factory is doing and the factory knows what we are doing. Working together this way we can offer our customers a real service in fitting their feet. Maybe you don't buy Walk-Over shoes all the time, but we are sure you know somebody who does—there are so many. Ask somebody, or let us tell you. It will be a great satisfaction to you to be able to quit worrying about whether you are going to like your new shoes or not. Walk-Over customers give little thought to that.

M'ADOO WARNS NATION AGAINST FAILURE OF LOAN

EVERY CITIZEN CALLED UPON

Treasury Department Asks for 10,000,000 Subscriptions Throughout Country.

TOTAL HERE $325,000,000

Bankers Not Disheartened, but Realize There Is Much Hard Work Ahead.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 12.—A sudden switch in the plans of Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo resulted today in his leaving San Francisco for Los Angeles. He will arrive here this evening and immediately have his private car attached to the San Diego train and go there for two days' rest before returning here to carry on his campaign for the sale of the second Liberty Loan. This was given as the reason for the sudden change in his plans.

It was announced at the Liberty Loan headquarters that Mr. McAdoo might reach Los Angeles next Tuesday morning instead of Tuesday afternoon under the new plans.

When the Secretary reaches here next week he will live at the home of his daughter in Pasadena.

In his speeches in San Francisco, Secretary McAdoo clearly brought out that failure of the United States to subscribe for the Liberty Bonds would be a worse defeat than the loss of half a dozen battles on the field in France.

The warning issued by Secretary McAdoo said the efficiency of the United States in the war would be impaired and the prestige of the United States before the world would be jeopardized if the second Liberty Loan was not oversubscribed.

Secretary McAdoo said that the national figures were discouraging.

"Buy a bond and stop the war," this was the slogan he adopted.

"People look at the bonds like stocks," he said. "They think they are speculation. They are not. Any bond of this issue can be converted into cash in an hour's notice. It is better than cash because it is exempt from taxation, and bears interest at 4 per cent.

"If the thousands of patriotic citizens of this country want to win this war now is the time for them to show it. If they don't subscribe for this loan and lend their money to the Government, they are helping the enemy.

"Every person who refused to subscribe or who takes the attitude of 'let the other fellow do it' is a friend of Germany, and I would like nothing better than to tell it to him to his face.

"A man who says he can't afford the $50 for a bond speaks untruly. The bond can be bought at the rate of $5 a month for a $50 bond and $10 a month for a $100 bond.

"A man who can't lend his Government $1.25 a week at the rate of 4 per cent. interest is not entitled to be a citizen."

SEEKS RECORD TOTAL FOR THE LOAN TODAY

Treasury Department Wants Renewed Efforts to Mark Last Half of Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Treasury Department announced tonight that at the end of the eleven days' sale of Second Liberty Loan bonds total subscriptions of $344,195,550 had been reported to eleven of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks in the United States. This compares with a total of $325,465,000 announced last night. This is less than 7 per cent. of the maximum amount of subscriptions desired by Secretary McAdoo before the close of the drive for $5,000,000,000 on Oct. 27.

As a result of the low totals shown by the official statements, appeals are going out tonight from various local Chairmen to their workers to make tomorrow, the beginning of the last thirteen days of the campaign, one of the biggest yet recorded. Vigorous methods for increasing sales also will be resorted to throughout the country next week. While the unofficial figures received from different sections indicate that subscriptions are much larger than those shown by the official returns, progress made thus far has caused no optimism. The particular needs of the campaign, workers' report, is an increased number of small subscribers to spread the message of the loan, and, with this in view, the rallying cry of "10,000,000 Liberty Bond Buyers" will be sounded throughout the land in coming days of the drive.

The official returns, made public tonight, which are up to the close of business on Oct. 11, follow:

| Boston | $48,000,000 |
| New York | 228,527,000 |

Plan New Swedish Ministry Composed Solely of Liberals

LONDON, Oct. 12.—M. Widen, who has been asked by King Gustave of Sweden to form a Cabinet, will attempt to construct a Ministry solely of Liberals, says the Stockholm correspondent of The Daily Mail.

Hjalmar Branting and his associates in the Socialist Party will be excluded by M. Widen, who is a moderate Liberal. It is the correspondent's opinion that M. Branting will not be sorry to be excluded, as popular discontent is likely to increase during the Winter.

As to the effect of the American blockade, the correspondent says the manner in which the policy of the United States is to be answered is indicated by the Government's announcement that Germany will supply to Sweden grain, potatoes, and sugar, which the Allies have refused.

HARBOR TUG MEN WILL ARBITRATE

United States Shipping Board Intervenes to Avert Threatened Tieup of Vessels.

SHIPLOADERS WILL NOT QUIT

Longshoremen's Union Promises Only Financial and Moral Support.

There is every reason now to believe that the threatened strike of the marine workers of the Port of New York will not take place on Nov. 3. The United States Shipping Board intervened yesterday, and the men, through their leaders, said they were willing to submit their case to arbitration under the directions of the Government.

T. V. O'Connor, President of the International Longshoremen's Association, presided over a meeting held yesterday at the offices of the organization in the Times Building, which was attended by delegates from the various marine workers' unions in New York. He assured the representatives of the Tidewater Boatmen's Union, the Harbor Boatmen's Union, the Consolidated Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, and others who were present that they would have the moral and financial support of the International Longshoremen's Association, which now numbers 48,000 men.

"I have just been called by telephone," said President O'Connor, "by R. B. Stevens, Vice Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, in Washington, who has asked me as to my views on this matter of increased pay to harbor shipping men. I will send him this afternoon what he required, with full data concerning the serious aspects of the situation. The marine workers in New York do not wish to hamper the Government in any way and will be content to leave their claims for an increase in pay to the Adjustment Board, which was appointed by the Secretary of War and the Secretary of Labor to settle all disputes.

"I did not receive a copy of the formulated demands made by the various organizations on the towboat owners until this morning, and I believe that the demands of the men are just. I am confident that the Government will not ask any man to take less for his labor than is paid to a soldier for his wage and subsistence. It is costing the Government $45 a month to clothe, feed, and house the enlisted man above the $30 paid to him. The harbor boatmen would gladly accept this wage in place of that paid now. More than 50 per cent. of the boat owners are paying the wage that their men demand, and we want the same scale applied to all.

"Recently the freight handlers at the various railroad piers have wanted to organize and strike, and it is, with the greatest difficulty we are holding these people back. It is up to the United States Government to take strong steps to avert this threatening situation. The strike of the harbor workers will take place on the date set unless the men's terms are complied with or are arbitrated. They are not anarchists and are willing to sit down and discuss things amicably before a joint committee."

James Moran of the Consolidated Marine Engineers Beneficial Association said the matter of an increase in wages had been open since last May, and that although the Federal and State Conciliators had been at work nothing beyond a voluntary raise of $5 or $10 given by some of the towing companies had been accomplished.

Paul A. Vacarelli, Vice President of the International Longshoremen's Association, who did not take part in the discussion, said that the dispute over wages would no doubt be settled by the local Adjustment Committee as that of the coastwise longshoremen who struck on the Mallory and Clyde steamship piers had been.

John F. Riley, President of the New York District Council of the International Longshoremen's Association, said last night that an offer had been made on behalf of the towboat owners of an increase in wages, and he did not believe there would be a general strike. His organization, comprising 48,000 men, would give its moral and financial support to the harbor boatmen in their fight for more pay, he said, but that did not imply that the longshoremen were going to strike. They had just signed their new contract with the steamship lines, and did not wish to do anything that might hinder the Government in carrying on the war.

The New York Boat Owners' Association, which owns most of the tugboats and river craft that marine workers have threatened to tie up, will meet on Monday to consider the men's demands, and will not take any action until then in the matter.

Government to Requisition Both Freight and Passenger Vessels Next Monday.

TO CONTROL OCEAN RATES

Soaring Freight Charges Prompt Concerted Action by United States and Allies.

SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE HIT

Prices of Our Goods in Southern Republic Were Forced Skyward by Sea Tariff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—As a war emergency measure the United States Shipping Board will requisition all American ocean cargo and passenger-carrying vessels of over 2,500 tons at noon of next Monday, Oct. 15. This action, which is taken as a means of effectively controlling and regulating ocean freight rates and to enable the Government to obtain prompt command of the sea tonnage it needs for war uses, was forecasted on Sept. 27 last when the Shipping Board issued a statement giving the charter rates at which the vessels would be taken over. The limit probably will be lowered soon to include vessels of more than 1,500 tons.

Tonight the Shipping Board made public the text of the official notification to the owners of all ships affected by the requisition order. American merchant vessels available for ocean traffic total slightly more than 2,000,000 tons, but some of them have been taken over already for use by the army and navy. In most instances, except where they are required for actual Government service, the ships will be turned back to their owners for operation on Government account, subject at all times to any disposition that the Shipping Board may direct.

The Official Statement.

Here is the statement:

The United States Shipping Board hereby gives notice to all owners of ships registered and enrolled under the laws of the United States that the requisition of all American steamers described below, and of which previous announcement has been made, will become operative and effective on Oct. 15, 1917, at noon.

1. The ships affected by said requisition and included therein are:

(a) All cargo ships able to carry not less than 2,500 tons total deadweight, including bunkers, water, and stores.

(b) All passenger steamers of not less than 2,500 tons gross register.

2. (a) As to all steamers in or bound to American ports on Oct. 15, 1917, requisition becomes effective after discharge of inward cargo and ship is put in ordinary good condition.

(b) As to steamers which have started to load their outward cargo, requisition becomes effective at noon on Oct. 15, 1917, and accounts as to hire and expenses will be adjusted from time steamer began to load.

3. Steamers trading to and from American ports that have sailed on their voyage prior to Oct. 15, 1917 at noon, are to complete that voyage as promptly as possible and report for requisitioning.

4. Steamers that are occupied in trades between foreign ports shall be requisitioned as of Oct. 15, 1917, at noon, and accounts adjusted accordingly.

5. (a) Owners whose steamers are operating in their regular trades are to continue the operation of their steamers for account of the Government as they have been doing for themselves until they receive further instructions.

(b) Owners whose steamers are chartered to others will apply to the Shipping Board for instructions regarding the future employment of said steamers.

To Keep Down Ocean Rates.

The intention of the Shipping Board is not to interfere with legitimate ocean traffic, but to maintain supervision over all American tonnage for the dual purpose of using ships to the best war advantage and for the regulation of tariffs, which are now in many cases prohibitive.

While no statement was made as to an arrangement between the British Admiralty and the United States Shipping Board, it is believed that an agreement has been reached whereby all of the allied countries will co-operate in keeping the ocean freight rates within reasonable bounds. Labor, coal, and the increased prices of materials utilized in ocean transportation, it is conceded, have forced the owners of steamers to increase rates, but not to the extent to which they have soared. In some instances the increases have been 1,400 per cent., it is said.

Several examples of the high rates were cited today by a member of Congress who has been conducting an investigation. Before the war, he said, the rate on rice was $4 a ton. On Aug. 1 the rate on this commodity was $90 a ton. Cocoanuts were shipped before the war at $5 a ton. On Aug. 1 the rate on cocoanuts was $55 a ton. The advance on other commodities is said to have been proportionately as great.

The belief that all allied countries have entered into an agreement to control ocean rates is based on the recent statement of an official of the Shipping Board that it would be useless for the United States to force steamers of American registry to reduce their rates unless ships of other countries were forced to do likewise. This official reasoned that the retailers in Latin America, for instance, would fix the prices on the high rate rather than the lower rate.

Imperils Our Trade.

One of the reasons actuating the Shipping Board in its determination to control freight rates is said to be the fear that American commerce will suffer after the war in Latin America because of the high prices now charged.

Germany had almost monopolized the markets of South and Central America before the war, and there is a belief that this trade may be regained by the Teutons when hostilities cease unless, in the meantime, the people of Latin America find that goods may be obtained from the United States at reasonable prices. Prices now charged in the

EXPECTS NATION TO TAKE RAILROADS

Preparedness Committee Thinks Government Ownership Is a Near Possibility.

SAYS PRESENT PLANS FAIL

Transportation System Is Bending Already, It Asserts, Under Exigencies of War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The prediction that the exigencies of the war may force Government ownership of American railroads in "the surprisingly near future" was made in a statement issued tonight by the Conference Committee on National Preparedness.

"Not only is ship tonnage inadequate to the war's demand," says the statement, "but the whole transportation system of America is bending, and may break, under the strain of our first year at war.

"With crops not yet moving freely, with only a fraction of our new army sent from home, with our whole national war effort yet unplanned and unmeasured, war production is already hampered by shortage of cars and locomotives, lack of ample terminal, storage, and other facilities; newspapers almost daily report mills closed or running part time, mines restricting needed output, shipbuilding delayed.

"Our voluntary association of railroad chiefs is unselfishly using every effort to correct the accumulated mistakes of the past which have made for inefficiency and waste. More and more the railroads are operating as a single national system, and soon will be doing all that can be expected of them, because interests of different railroads must sometimes conflict and their chiefs must still consider themselves trustees of stockholders' interests.

"But when all that is done; when unnecessary passenger trains, dining and parlor and private cars have been eliminated; when available freight cars are used wherever needed, regardless of ownership; when shippers have pooled coal, and perhaps other improvements, even then our railroads cannot meet the total demand, and the worst is yet to come.

"By using motor trucks or trackless trolley, and also when conditions permit, water transportation to collect small shipments at convenient stations for through hauls, much of the delay, the inefficient use of equipment, and the congestion of expensive inexpansible terminal facilities could be greatly minimized.

"Why should not subways in cities like New York carry parcels, perhaps food, and even freight, at least during the dull hours of the day or night? Devices for quickly loading and unloading trucks to connect with terminals, storehouses, and markets seem quite within the limits of man's ingenuity.

"Our Shipping Board, through the Emergency Fleet Corporation, has either commandeered or purchased or placed contracts for perhaps 7,500,000 tons of ships in addition to 1,600,000 tons of deep sea shipping under American registry at the beginning of the great war.

"While many conditions exist which make the efficiency of the Shipping Board extremely difficult—conditions which require public explanation and comprehension—it is no secret that the present Shipping Board is doing its utmost to make up for the deplorable delays of the early months of its existence. It has been criticised for some conditions for which it was not responsible, such as the independent commandeering of tugs, steamers, and barges by the Army and Navy Departments. Some improvement and co-operation have been achieved, but much remains to be done that cannot be done until its limited powers to control shipping are understood by those able to make adequate corrections.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission has ample testimony to prove that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad persistently diverted traffic from its own water to its own rail lines, in spite of the fact that its boats were generally underloaded and that the water haul was frequently quicker and cheaper. Unfair apportionments of cost between boat and rail, lack of compact packing of freight on the boats, and other methods were used to obscure the issue from the public. The public certainly was defrauded of its right to have goods transported as cheaply and as expeditiously as any available means would permit.

"The exigencies of war may force Government ownership in the surprisingly near future. Perhaps the only step that the railroad people could take to postpone this for any length of time would be a very broadminded and general attitude on their part in contributing their facilities to the community service, (under conditions of sale or lease, or perhaps pooling,) where such facilities were needed to develop transportation facilities which in the past would have been considered competitive to the individual railroad.

"Thus, if in New York Harbor, for instance, all the water front railroad property could be pooled under some logical and fair financial arrangement so that it could be used to develop sound, river, and ocean traffic with proper railroad connection, no one can deny what an advantage it would be both to New York City and to the nation.

"Nothing short of the combined local and national effort can prevent our present transportation facilities from proving utterly inadequate to meet the needs for carrying this war to a speedy decision. The toll, therefore, which this nation must pay in blood of its children will be measured by the general interest and initiative in the transportation field."

NEW HAIG DRIVE GAINS ALL ALONG THE YPRES FRONT

500 GERMANS SURRENDER

BERLIN ADMITS REVERSES

Official Report Says German Lines Were Pierced—Mud the Assailants' Greatest Obstacle.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Progress was made today along the entire front in Flanders, where Field Marshal Haig began another offensive early this morning. Within two or three hours the assaulting troops had gained an average of 800 yards, having pushed forward to within 500 yards of the village of Passchendaele.

Rain intervened, however, and it was decided not to make further efforts to reach the final objectives which it had been planned to take.

A Reuter dispatch from British Headquarters reports progress in the Poelcapelle and Passchendaele regions.

"The rain," it says, "is reported to have brought operations temporarily to a standstill, but we have gained possession of the brewery east of Poelcapelle, which has been the centre of strong German resistance. At noon today our troops were said to have occupied the crest of a farm on the left of the Passchendaele road and to be within about 500 yards of the Passchendaele church."

Telegraphing from the British front in France and Belgium, The Associated Press correspondent says:

"Today's dawn again saw the great British war machine set in action across the Flanders mud fields against the German positions northeast of Ypres. At an early hour the attacking forces had penetrated several hundred yards into the enemy's territory along a six-mile front, extending from a place near Houthulst Forest down below the Ypres-Roulers Railway, and were battling along the Passchendaele Ridge within 1,000 yards of the centre of Passchendaele village.

"The offensive started at 5:25 in the morning. The condition of the ground was appalling, but by 7:45 the report came back that everything was going well, and that the troops over a wide section of the front had pushed forward to a depth averaging 800 yards or more. Prisoners already were beginning to come in, although slowly, owing to the condition of the ground.

"The enemy's artillery barrage was slow in response at the hour of attack, and the fire was not severe, but the Germans were putting a heavy machine gun barrage all along the line. The enemy's guns were very active during the night against the central and southern portions of the battle front, especially about Broodseinde Ridge and the Ypres-Roulers Railway.

"Between 4 and 4:30 this morning a large number of gas shells were thrown along the British front line, probably indicating that the Germans were aware there was trouble ahead.

Advance Knee-Deep in Mud.

"The chief enemy of the British today was not the Germans, but mud. No worse conditions under foot could be imagined than those that impeded the assaulting infantry this morning. The recent rains already had turned this whole section into a vast morass, in which men sank to their knees or to their waists, and even were engulfed to their necks, as they made their arduous way forward. Last night rain again fell to add to the difficulties of the situation; but this morning the sun was struggling through the clouds to cast some measure of warmth over this bleak and dreary waste.

"So far as the Germans themselves were concerned, there was no doubt in the minds of the British that they could handle them. The Emperor's troops in this section now are far less formidable than they were owing to the disorganization caused in their ranks by the recent terrific blows dealt to them. This is not an individual opinion. It is generally recognized along the front by the British and the Germans, too, that a change has come over the morale of the invaders. Almost any prisoner would admit this fact.

Haig Praises His Men's Work.

"The spirit of the British troops, however, has been wonderful throughout, notwithstanding the terrible hardships that they endured in the recent operations. It was only yesterday that Field Marshal Haig, in speaking to the correspondent, particularly mentioned this feature and paid the highest tribute to the gallant work of his men from the different parts of the Empire under these indescribably trying conditions.

"The British Commander in Chief does not confine himself to headquarters in conducting operations. He is here and there and everywhere, and knows what his men are enduring. It is an interesting sidelight on the character of the man who is guiding the destinies of the British armies in France that his heart undoubtedly is with the men in the front line and he feels keenly their sufferings. The Field Marshal's whole conversation indicated that.

VON CAPELLE, GERMAN NAVY CHIEF, IS OUT; ASCRIBED TO MUTINY AND U-BOAT FAILURE; MAY FORECAST FALL OF THE CHANCELLOR

Caucus of Reichstag Majority Parties Preceded the Retirement of von Capelle

BERLIN, Wednesday, Oct. 10, (via London, Oct. 12.)—Leaders of the majority parties—Centrists, Progressives, and Social Democrats—met in a chamber of the Reichstag building today. They remained for hours behind closed doors.

It is generally believed that the developments of yesterday's debate in the full session were the subject of today's caucus.

As the Social Democratic majority, for the first time since the war began, made common cause with the Independent Socialists yesterday, another attempt at a vote of censure against the Chancellor would be more formidable.

Chancellorship Crisis Imminent?

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Thursday, Oct. 11, (via London, Oct. 12.)—The Berlin Tageblatt says today that a Chancellorship crisis is imminent and forecasts the fall of Minister of Marine von Capelle.

The paper gives a peculiar reason for the adjournment of the Reichstag to as late a date as Dec. 5. It says the cause is that traveling has become difficult.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Amsterdam says the Rhenish Westphalian Gazette understands that the German Socialists have informed Chancellor Michaelis that they will not vote for the desired credits unless he resigns. The newspaper says the Chancellor received the party leaders Wednesday, and that they explained to him the feelings of the public with regard to his maintenance of power.

Many German newspapers of recent dates received here expressed the belief that Vice Admiral von Capelle would resign and that the future of Chancellor Michaelis would not be decided until the Emperor returned to Berlin at the end of October.

Plotted to Surrender German Ships; Mutiny Held Back Fleet from Russia

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 12.—Additional details have reached me as to the beginning of the insurrection of sailors in the German Grand Fleet. The trouble first manifested itself about eight months ago at Wilhelmshaven.

It was noticed that the crews of several vessels were in a state of considerable nervous tension, but this was first attributed by the officers to understandable results of the long enforced inactivity and to their wish that "something might happen" to relieve the monotony. As was afterward discovered, however, this state of feeling was really caused by agitation carried on mainly by sailors of the reserve class.

That agitation started on board the battleship Westfalen at Wilhelmshaven, and quickly spread to other vessels. It was on the Westfalen, too, that insubordination first broke out one morning. One of the older sailors on the Westfalen was ordered to do a certain piece of work. He refused pointblank, and when the midshipman asked him for his reason the man replied, unwillingly, that he was too ill to perform the task. A superior officer was called, but the man persisted in the refusal to obey the order. The case was then referred to the Captain, who had the man put under arrest.

On the following day a deputation from the crew, headed by a petty officer, waited on the Captain and asked for the man's release. The Captain asked the deputation to explain their action, regarding which he expressed his astonishment and anger. The spokesman replied that the crews of several battleships had decided on the formation of a sailors' council on the lines of the Russian Soldiers' and Workmen's Council.

Locked Officers in Cabin.

The Captain, however, was unable to obtain any particulars from the deputation regarding the scheme and ordered the men to leave the room. They refused to do so.

The Captain during these proceedings was accompanied by two officers, and when he became aware of the seriousness of the situation he sent one of them ashore to report to the naval authorities. When this officer had departed the deputation was joined by a number of other men and the Captain and other officers were locked up in the cabin.

The men involved in the matter posted guards and cut off that part of the ship containing the Captain's room, refusing permission to the officers or other men to pass.

Meanwhile the officer who had gone ashore reported the happening to the naval authorities, and a strong military force was sent aboard the ship. The rebellious sailors refused to yield to persuasion, and only when force was threatened and was about to be applied did they surrender.

An investigation followed and there proved to be about 300 men involved in this particular mutiny. Of these about thirty were sentenced to death, but only three were executed, the authorities seeing plainly that any sterner measures would only heap fuel on the flames of discontent and anger.

Condemned Men Told Details.

Before the execution of these men, it is stated, they divulged all the secrets of the plot regarding which my informant says only the most unimportant details were disclosed by von Capelle in the Reichstag. He was driven to disclose something by the fact that the details of the business were becoming widely known and the Government deemed it best to reveal a little with the aim of calming the public mind and getting rid of the truth by an official version.

Something similar happened on another battleship while she was out on a cruise. The men on that ship obtained control and were only prevented from running into a neutral port by the presence of other German vessels, which got wind of the occurrence and threatened to open fire unless the ship returned with them to port.

In this case two (another report says three) men were shot. Prompt action had been taken on other ships, and for some time several battleships lay at Wilhelmshaven without crews aboard.

All the Socialist literature aboard the ships at Wilhelmshaven and other ports were seized, but was found to consist of nothing more serious than pamphlets which had been passed by the censor and which any sailor could buy in the shops ashore, thus providing another proof of the flimsy nature of von Capelle's charges against the three Socialist Deputies of the Reichstag.

Stopped Fleet Drive at Russia.

Von Capelle's revelations regarding the insurrection give point to statements which have been coming recently from Germany, but which, arriving singly and being apparently isolated and somewhat dubious rumors, could not be connected with anything so serious as what undoubtedly happened.

There has been no little talk in Germany of late regarding the almost complete inactivity of the German fleet in the Baltic against Russia at a time when there were obvious opportunities. It is a fact that when the insurrection took place on at least six important units of the grand fleet it not only put these ships out of action, but caused the authorities to doubt the discipline and loyalty of the crews of other large ships. For that reason it was deemed inadvisable to embark on any action involving the use of battleships.

The naval authorities also decided that they dare not take the sternest measures on anything like a large scale, because it was clearly evident that the use of a strong hand would have had the effect of increasing the evil. They saw they could not uproot the evil and so had to be content with pruning it.

The number of men condemned to death probably does not exceed a half dozen, but the step was taken of completely changing and intermixing the crews, separating the worst offenders, and throwing several scores of sailors and marines into prison, which could be done with very much less publicity than the carrying out of sentences of death.

The seriousness of the events is shown by facts brought out in the Reichstag and in comments in the press. "With the object of handing the ship over to the enemy" fairly and literally describes what was attempted in more than one case. Accurate details, of course, are not likely to be available, but there is reason for the belief that attempts were made by the crews of ships at sea to depose their officers and make for neutral ports.

Reasons for Disaffection.

Travelers from Germany have told on several occasions stories of the difficulty which the German naval authorities experience in getting submarine crews together, but that difficulty was got over, it seemed, by extra pay, good conditions of life, and liberal leave. That there should have been trouble in obtaining such a comparatively small number of trustworthy men is significant.

The discontent undoubtedly was started by inadequate food provision. In this case it is interesting to recall that the first serious food troubles occurred at Kiel, and some time ago the food scarcity extended to the fleet.

A traveler from a German port recently said here that his talks with German sailors had convinced him that the battle of Jutland had a considerable adverse effect on the sailors of the grand fleet. They know now that the British fleet is far superior and that going out to fight it means something like going into a trap. The long enforced idleness has tended to sap the men's activity and spirit, seeing that it is accompanied by hard conditions.

REFUSED U-BOAT DUTY—SHOT.

German Seamen Objected Prior to Wilhelmshaven Mutiny.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Reliable reports received here by way of Holland indicate the growth of a strong disinclination on the part of German seamen to serve on submarines.

This news, the authenticity of which is not doubted, is to the effect that several seamen already have been shot for refusing to perform U-boat duty.

The shootings are said to have occurred prior to the mutiny in Wilhelmshaven.

CRISIS IN GERMAN POLICY

NOT A SOLDIER LOST SO FAR

VAIN STROKE IN REICHSTAG

Attack on Socialists Viewed as Desperate Act Which May Have Caused Crash.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 12.—Vice Admiral von Capelle, the German Minister of Marine, has resigned, according to the Frankfurter Zeitung.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—News of the resignation of Vice Admiral von Capelle as German Minister of Marine was gladly received in Washington tonight, because it was interpreted as another milestone in the failure of the German submarine campaign of unrestricted warfare on merchantmen.

It had been expected for some time that von Capelle would lose his official head on account of the failure of the submarine navy to make good its boast of ability to starve England and bring her to her knees before the end of the Summer. More than seven months have elapsed since Germany threw to the winds her pledges in the Sussex and Lusitania cases to engage in the U-boat campaign of ruthlessness, of which von Capelle was an ardent advocate, and which has been conducted under his direction.

Attributed to Submarine Failure.

While the withdrawal of von Capelle was undoubtedly hastened by the tense political quarrel with the Socialists and others in the Reichstag on account of his official revelation of the German naval mutiny, it it not thought here that this was the underlying cause of his withdrawal, which is regarded as marking the failure of Germany's naval campaign last Summer. Not only has the U-boat campaign reached a point where American war risk insurance could be reduced on account of the lesser number of sinkings, and where there is no chance for the starvation of England, but in other directions the German Navy has been without accomplishment during the Summer.

The German high seas fleet, since the battle of Jutland, has failed to engage the British navy in battle for supremacy of the seas. What is even more important to Germany, the U-boats, in addition to their failure to shut down supplies for England to the point where it would mean starvation, have also failed to interrupt the steady flow of convoyed American soldiers and munitions to France.

Not one American soldier has been lost in the great task of affording safe sea transportation to the expedition, and no convoyed American supply ship has yet been lost.

The transportation, of course, is effected with the greatest caution, and the ships are heavily convoyed. But the fact that the American Government has been able to send a considerable number of men to France without loss is a severe blow to the vaunted prestige of the submarine.

Confirms Gravity of Revolt.

There were some who were inclined to accept with a grain of salt the news that had come from Berlin regarding von Capelle's announcement of the naval mutiny. Officials were desirous of obtaining more definite details as to the mutiny and its extent before passing complete judgment on the episode. It was recalled that at various times in the past the Berlin Government had made such matters public, purposely exaggerating them for the purpose of lulling enemy countries into a sense of fancied security. But when word came tonight of the resignation of von Capelle opinion swung around to the side of those who have taken the stand that the revelations did not begin to tell all the truth regarding the existence of a grave situation among the German sea forces.

That von Capelle himself probably realized that his administration of the navy was a failure is the construction which some observers of the situation here place upon the boldness of his remarks concerning the mutiny that raised such a storm among the Socialists. The charge that members of the Reichstag were implicated in a revolutionary plot in the navy—which was virtually the equivalent of saying that there were traitors in the Reichstag—may have been made because he was prepared to resign and cared nothing for the consequences of his words. Dittman, Haase, and Vogtherr, accused of complicity in the plot, are credited with having been demanding the conclusion of an early peace on the basis of the program proclaimed by certain Russian Socialists.

SAY CHANCELLOR MUST GO.

Prince von Buelow and von Tirpitz Mentioned for Chancellorship.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 13.—It is clear that Chancellor Michaelis must go, and the question is now freely discussed in the German press. The Vorwärts observes that the Kaiser was badly advised when Michaelis was appointed, but that he was the only possible man in the Kaiser's entourage. It declares that the next Chancellor must not be chosen by the Kaiser or by the Court, but by the Reichstag, and that the Kaiser is greatly mistaken if he imagines the Reichstag is going to be satisfied with his manner of appointing Chancellors.

The Volkstimme talks of an impossible Government, saying that the Chancellor has left an impression of distrust and depression instead of strength. The paper says the only reasen Michaelis was not immediately unseated was that other parties did not want to give Socialist Socialists a triumph. "Both the Clericists and Progressives seem to be convinced since Tuesday's proceedings that Michaelis cannot be put up with," it goes on. "We even believe the next few days will see him a finished man."

The Essener General Anzeiger says the Chancellor has quite decided to retire, and that Prince von Bülow anad Admiral von Tirpitz are likely candidates.

The official Koelnische Zeitung states that Admiral von Capelle was not acting in accord with the Chancellor when the disclosures of the naval mutiny were made. This may, however, be a means of making von Capelle a scapegoat in the hope of saving Michaelis.

BITTER ATTACK ON MICHAELIS.

Ledebour Called to Order—Woman Arrested in Fleet Mutiny.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 12.—A Berlin dispatch received here says that at the meeting of the Reichstag Thursday Georg Ledebour, Social Democratic leader, was called to order for declaring that all must be convinced Chancellor Michaelis was absolutely incapable in his office, both as regards capacity and character.

Herr Stoedthagen, Independent Socialist, disclosed that Frau Zietz, a German woman, had been arrested in connection with the recent mutiny in the fleet.

Wilhelm Dittmann, Socialist, said that Deputy Hecke was placed under arrest for one day after a meeting at Kiel which had been dispersed.

CARRIED OUT TIRPITZ POLICY.

Von Capelle Was Said to be Controlled by His Predecessor.

One of the last public acts of Admiral von Capelle, as German Minister of Marine, was to reveal the mutiny in the fleet at Wilhelmshaven before the Reichstag on Tuesday. In his statement he charged that the plans for the mutiny had the approval of the Socialist Deputies Dittman, Haase, and Vogtherr.

In the excitement which attended the adjournment of the Reichstag until Dec. 5, this was as probably planned, utilized by the Imperial Chancellor and the Foreign Secretary with telling effect against the Socialist Party, although the frank statements of the three accused Socialists went far toward quelling the storm, and, according to Dutch observers, making the positions of both Chancellor and Foreign Secretary untenable, if they were to depend upon the Reichstag for their mandates.

There was still hanging over them the combined Socialist and Clerical vote of 214 against 116 polled on July 15 in the test over the famous peace resolution. It appeared from dispatches sent on Thursday from The Hague and Amsterdam that von Capelle's revelations had, after the first excitement, brought about a reaction which had served to make the opposition to the drastic military methods of the Government stronger than ever.

The service that von Capelle attempted to render the autocratic military power on Oct. 9 is characteristic of his entire administration. He never enjoyed the power which his predecessor, Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, relegated to himself while mere Director of the Imperial Admiralty. He even came into office in order to preserve von Tirpitz's reputation as the inventor of the ruthless U-boat campaign, and to prove the then Imperial Chancellor Dr. Bethmann Hollweg, who had succeeded in having the Grand Admiral "honorably" removed, in the wrong.

It is authoritatively stated that when the first anniversary of the U-boat campaign drew near in February, 1916, the Kaiser asked for a full report on the progress made. The Minister of Marine showed him the list of craft, enemy and neutral, sunk, the number of submarines in operation and building, and guaranteed to him that England would be starved out before July 1.

The Kaiser, it is said, was about to accept the report and compliment the Grand Admiral, when Dr. Bethmann Hollweg, who had all along opposed von Tirpitz's scheme, on the grounds of inexpediency as well as inhumanity, pointed out that nearly 60 per cent. of the submarines which von Tirpitz reported to be in commission were not even off the stocks, while another 20 per cent. had been accounted for by the British Navy.

What explanation von Tirpitz made is not known, but it is reported that the Imperial Chancellor was given to understand that the ruthlessness of the campaign was to be abandoned; at the same time every dockyard in the empire was to work day and night to bring the number of submarines up to the total which von Tirpitz deemed sufficient to bring England to terms under a revived campaign of frightfulness. Subsequent events seem to bear out this theory.

On March 14, 1916, Grand Admiral von Tirpitz retired from the head of the Navy Department and was succeeded by Admiral von Capelle, who had been Director of the Administrative Department of the Admiralty since February, 1915.

Ten days later the Channel steamer Sussex was sunk in circumstances which called forth a heated remonstrance and then an ultimatum on the part of the United States. On April 10 Germany denied having sunk the steamer, only to acknowledge her guilt later, explaining that the Sussex had been mistaken for a warship. The United States threatened on April 18 to sever diplomatic relations unless Germany desisted from the use of U-boats in defiance of international law and of humanity. On May 4 Germany promised to desist, and on May 8 the United States accepted Germany's promise.

A review of von Capelle's work since that time shows that he had been principally occupied in keeping up the maximum supply of U-boats so that it should not fall below the losses, and in periodically announcing before the Main Committee of the Reichstag, or the Reichstag itself, the progress which the campaign of frightfulness was making. On May 16 he furnished the Lokal-Anzeiger with statistics to show how England was doomed before Sept. 1. On July 4 he made a long speech in the Reichstag, closing with: "To sum up, there is not the least reason for doubting the success of the submarine war."

Vice Admiral von Capelle.

MINORITY SOCIALISTS GAIN.

Strong Drift Toward the Extreme Faction in Germany.

Recent dispatches from Amsterdam and Copenhagen telling of the growth of the anti-Kaiser faction of the German Socialists, as shown by the increase to a score of the number of Reichstag Deputies owning allegiance to the Independent Social Democratic Party, through the adhesion of Josef Simon, and the reported intention of four other prominent Deputies of following his example, are confirmatory of items found in copies of German newspapers received in New York and London during the last few weeks. Philip Scheidemann's "majority" Socialist group in the Reichstag, now united with the Independents, comprise some eighty Deputies.

Both material and moral reasons for the drift toward the camp of the extreme Socialists are to be found in stories in the German press giving details of the rapid rise among the German workers of sentiment favoring the revolutionary stand occupied by Karl Liebknecht, Franz Mehring, Rosa Luxemberg, and others, and shared to a great degree by the followers of Hugo Haase. It is asserted by newspapers supporting that group that the Independent Social Democratic Party, which was organized at a convention held in Gotha April 8, 1917, already has nearly as many members as the old "regular" party.

CHARGE YPRES RIDGE IN MUD AND MIST

British Press Toward Their Goal Amid a Storm of Shells and Bullets.

GAS ADDS ITS HORRORS

Attacking Forces Consume Nearly All Night in Reaching Their Designated Stations.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS IN BELGIUM, Oct. 12.—The British troops went forward again today, further up the slopes of Passchendaele Ridge, striking northeast toward the village of Passchendaele itself, which I saw this morning looming through the mist and white smoke of shellfire with its ruins like the battlements of a mediaeval castle perched high on the crest.

It has been a day of very heavy fighting, and the supreme success will be gained only by the spirit of men resolute to win in the face of continual blasts of machine gun bullets, heavy shelling and weather which has made the ground as bad as ever a battlefield has seen.

The enemy; if one may believe what prisoners say, expected the attack, and that he did expect it is borne out by the quickness with which he dropped down his defensive barrage, the violent way in which he shelled the back areas of the British forces during the night, and by other unmistakable signs of readiness. Perhaps the last attack, two days ago, through a great gale and mud, warned them that not even the elements would safeguard them against the British and that troops who had already achieved something that was next to impossible would attempt another and greater adventure.

To me these blows through the mud seem the most daring endeavors ever made by great bodies of men. The strength of the enemy—and he is very strong still—and his courage, which is high among his best troops, are not the greatest powers which the British soldiers are called upon to overcome in this latest fighting. Given a good barrage, and they are ready to attack his "pill-boxes," now that they have broken the first evil spell of them; but this mud of Flanders, these swamps which lie in the way, these nights of darkness and rain and quagmires—these are the real terrors which are hardest to win through.

Went to Battle With Confidence.

Yet the men were confident of their fate today and backed one another with astounding courage to take the ground they were asked to take, and that pledge which they made between their battalions was taken after that night, now three nights ago, when Lancashire and Yorkshire men made their march through the mud which I have described in other messages—eleven hours' going before they reached their starting line, after frightful tribulations in the darkness, and before they went into battle, late for their barrage and exhausted in body, but still with pluck to fight through machine gun fire to their objectives.

They did not go as far as had been hoped, but they did far more than any one might dare to expect in such conditions; and the men in today's battle depended for success upon the starting line gained for them by those comrades of the North Country. The men who went over today swore that with any luck, or even without luck, they would plant their flag high, and among those men there was a grim, smoldering fire of some purpose which boded ill for the enemy they should find against them. These are not words of rhetoric, to give a little color to the dark picture of war, but the sober truth of what was in these men's minds yesterday when they made ready for this new battle.

It is difficult to get the men anywhere near the line of attack, owing to the foulness of the ground. Those who were in their positions the night before—that is, on Wednesday night—found that they were not utterly comfortless in the sodden fields. By a great stroke of daring and by a great effort on the part of carriers and transport officers, who risked their lives in the task, bivouacs were taken up and pegged out in the darkness under the very nose of the enemy, so that the men should not lie out in the pouring rain, and before dawn came they were taken away, in order not to reveal these assemblies. There was food also, and there were hot drinks, close to the fighting lines, and some of the coldness and horror of the night were relieved.

A clear line was made for the barrage which would be fired by the British guns this morning, but some troops had still to go up, and some men had to march through the night as those Lancashire men had marched up three nights before. They had the same grim adventure; they, too, fell into shell holes, groped their way forward blindly in the wild downpour of rain, lugged each other out of bogs, floundered through mud and shellfire from 5 in the evening until a few minutes only before it was time to attack.

Foe's Guns Busy All Night.

The enemy was busy with his guns all night to catch any of the British who might be on the move. He flung down a heavy barrage round about Zonnebeke, but by good chance it missed one group of men thereabouts and scarcely touched any of the others in that neighborhood. But his heavy shells were scattered over a wide area and came howling through the darkness and exploding with great upheavals of wet earth. Small parties of men dodged them as best they could and pitched into shell holes five feet deep in water when they threatened instant death.

Then gas shells came whining, with their queer little puffs, unlike the exploding roar of the bigger shells, and the wet wind was filled with poisonous vapor, smarting to the eyes and skin, so that some of the men had to put on gas masks.

The march up to the battle line might have shaken the nerves of most men, might even have unmanned and weakened them by the fainting sickness of fear, but it only made the British angry to the point of wild rage.

"To hell with them!" said some of them. "We won't spare them when we go over; we will make them pay for this night."

They used savage and flaming words, cursing the enemy, the weather, the shell-fire, and the foulness of it all. I know the state of the ground, for I went over this crater land this morning to look at the flame of fire below Passchendaele spur. I had no heavy kit, like the fighting men, but I fell on the greasy "duckboards," as they fell, and rolled into the slime, as they had rolled.

The rain beat a tattoo on one's steel helmet. Every shell hole was brimful of brown or greenish water. Moisture rose from the earth in a fog. The British guns were firing everywhere through the mist and thrust sharp little swords of flame through its darkness, and all the battlefields bellowed with the noise of the guns.

I walked through battery positions; past enormous howitzers which at twenty paces' distance shook one's bones with the concussion of their blasts; past long-muzzled high-velocities whose shells, after the first sharp hammer-stroke, went whinnying away with the high, fluttering note of death; past big-bellied 4.2s and monsters firing lyddite shells in clouds of yellow smoke.

Before me, stretching away round Houthulst Forest, big and dark and grim with its close-growing trees, was Passchendaele Ridge, the long, hummocky slopes for which the British were fighting, and their barrage fire crept up it, and the infernal shell-fire rising in white columns was on top of it, hiding the broken houses there until later in the morning, when the rain ceased a little and the sky was streaked with blue, and out of the wet gloom Passchendaele appeared with its houses still standing, though all in ruins.

There were queer effects when the sun broke through. Its rays ran down the wet trunks and forked naked branches of dead trees with a curious, dazzling whiteness, and all the swamps were glinting with light on their foul waters; and the pack mules, winding along the tracks, slithering and staggering through the slime, had four golden bars on either side of them when the sun shone on their 18-pounder shells.

There was something more ghastly in this flood of white light over the dead ground of the battlefields, revealing all the litter of inhuman conflict around the captured German "pill boxes," than when it was all under black storm clouds.

It was at the side of a "pill-box" famous in recent fighting that I watched the progress of the British barrage up the slopes of Passchendaele, and it was only by that fire and by the answering fire of the German guns with blacker shell-bursts that one could tell the progress of the British.

"How is it going?" asked a friend of two officers who came down the duckboards from Poelcapelle way.

"Pretty well," was the answer. "We have cut off four Boche guns with our barrage, though we only had a little way to go—on the left, you know; big fellows, no 'pipsqueaks.'"

A Check on the British Left.

It seemed there had been a check on the left. The assailants had come up against an abominable machine gun fire. On the right things were doing better. The British line was being pushed up close to Passchendaele—within a few hundred yards or so. Some prisoners were coming down. There had been a lot of bayonet fighting and a lot of killing. The wounded were getting back already, most of them with machine gun wounds, the worst of them with shell wounds.

The British had hardly gone over before the German flares rose to call on the guns. The artillery did not answer for some little time, but instantly there was a chattering fire of many machine guns, and from places above the Ypres-Roulers railway and all the length of the Goudberg spur of Passchendaele, where there were many blockhouses and concrete streets, there was poured out a sweeping barrage of bullets.

The British, advancing on all sides of Passchendaele Ridge and right up to the edge of Houthulst Forest, were on swampy ground. The streams, or "beeks," that intersect this country, like Letterkokkerbeeke and Ravelbeek, had broken all bounds, their banks having been blown away by shell fire, and had flowed out into wide bogs. Here and there men crossed more easily, and that led to some parts of the line getting farther forward than others, and so to being enfiladed on the right and left. It is on the left that the British seem to have had the most difficulty, about Wolfe Copse and Marsh Bottom. On the right it is reported that some men have been seen going up across the slopes of Crest Farms, which are some 500 yards from Paschendaele village on the heights of the ridge.

RUSSIAN CABINET IN HARD POSITION

Extremists, Resenting Coalition, Energetically Mobilizing Their Forces.

MASSES TIRE OF POLITICS

Preliminary Parliament Expected to Play a Very Useful and Important Part in Affairs.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 9, (Delayed.)—The new Government is in a difficult position. In itself it is no better and no worse than previous coalitions. The proportion of Socialists and non-Socialists is about the same, but there is a marked absence of prominent party leaders. None of the Ministers is either aggressively Socialist or aggressively Cadet. The coalition may be described as a business Ministry, but the very fact that it is coalition exposes it to violent attack from the extremists, who are energetically mobilizing their forces.

In Petrograd the Soviet Bolsheviks have gained a complete victory. Trotsky, or Bronstein, has been elected President in place of Cheidse, and a resolution passed refusing support to the coalition Government. In the democratic council the Bolsheviks form with the left social revolutionaries and internationalists a compact and violent minority. It remains a question whether the Petrograd Soviet in its present from retains its influence over the soldiers and workmen. Absenteeism is a marked feature of its meetings, and the victory of the Bolsheviks was won in a very small house, (of the total number of 2,000 delegates only 400 were present,) while the masses generally have grown apathetic and indifferent to the noisy game of politics.

The preliminary parliament now coming to birth is an imperfect institution, and its legal rights are shadowy, but in practice it may play a very useful and important part. It may serve as a lightning conductor. It will focus public opinion and divert a certain share of responsibility from the Government here. At least all the parties will meet and will be able to discuss their differences face to face. The moderate Socialists, who lost ground in the Soviets, who with difficulty secured a bare majority in the democratic conference and who are hard pressed now in the democratic council, will in ante-parliament be able to count in many practical questions on the support of the non-Socialists. They will form a centre which, inclining now to the right and now to the left, will be able to maintain the balance of power and may be trusted on the whole to support the Government.

In fact, it seems possible to say that the creation of the ante-parliament will prove to have been the one distinctly useful result of the democratic conference, and for that reason alone the conference, in spite of the deplorable confusion of opinion it displayed, may have been worth while.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 12.—The Central Committee of the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates has invited M. Nikitin to resign his membership in the new Government on the ground that it fails to reflect the ideals of the Workmen's and Soldiers' organization. M. Nikitin was a member of the Council of Five, and in the present Cabinet is Minister of the Interior.

General Alexieff, former Commander in Chief of the Russian armies, on his arrival at headquarters to obtain from the Government instructions as to his mission to the inter-allied conference to be held in Paris, said to a representative of the Moscow newspaper Outro-rossi that the conference would ascertain the exact strength of Russia, her combative power, and her attitude toward the other nations of the Entente. If the internal situation in Russia at that time was not such as to inspire confidence among the Allies, he added, it would be better not to send him. "In fact," said General Alexieff, "I should refuse to go."

General Alexieff concluded by saying that Russia's complete weakness would be recognized at the conference. He expressed the view that Japan would make her entry into the European theatre, but that she certainly would demand compensation at the expense of the weakest nation—Russia.

As the outcome of a report by Minister of the Interior Nikitin that anarchy is increasing in numerous provinces, the Provisional Government has decided to create special committees in all the regions where disorders have occurred, with a view to countering the anarchy by securing the support of all local organizations.

newed vigor at daybreak, but no official reports have been received to indicate whether the Germans have been pushed from their brewery stronghold on the eastern outskirts. The air service, notwithstanding the wind, was active.

"A striking instance of the determination with which the men undertook today's work was seen on one section of the front. The men from overseas were advancing over ground that could be swept by machine gun fire from various points. As they struggled along behind their artillery barrage the combination of mud and bullets several times became more than flesh and blood could endure, and with the cry of "Let's get on and at the Boche and end it!" they deliberately charged through their own barrage and hurled themselves on the enemy with rifles and bayonets."

The night bulletin reads:

Notwithstanding the heavy rain which fell during the night, our troops succeeded in forming up for an attack, which was launched at 5:25 o'clock this morning. Progress was made along the entire front, which extended from the Ypres-Roulers Railway on the south to our junction with the French on the southern edge of the Houthulst Forest.

On the whole of this front a large number of defended localities, fortified farms, woods, and concreted strong points were captured by us, together with a number of prisoners.

The fighting was especially severe on the slopes of Quin Ridge, west of Passchendaele, and on the main ridge itself, south of that village.

A heavy rain again set in during the morning after a brief interval of fine weather, and has continued with increasing violence throughout the day, and impeded our progress. It was, in consequence, decided not to make any further effort to reach our final objectives.

The number of prisoners taken by us today is approximately 500.

We attacked at 5:25 o'clock this morning on a front of about six miles northeast of Ypres. Our troops are reported to be making satisfactory progress. Rain fell heavily during the night.

German Line Pierced, Berlin Says.

BERLIN, Oct. 12, (via London.)—Fresh attacks were begun on a wide front in Flanders today by Entente forces after drum fire had been directed on the area from the Lys to the Ypres-Menin road, Army Headquarters announces. Fighting is proceeding at some points where the British have penetrated the German lines.

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria—The artillery activity yesterday in Flanders was restricted to an intense firing duel in the Coastal sector and at Houthulst Wood. At night, the strong firing, which increased suddenly this morning to drum fire, was directed on the fighting area from Lys to the Ypres-Menin Road. New enemy attacks were then begun on wide sectors.

The supplementary report issued this evening from General Headquarters says:

On the Langemarck-Zonnebeke front in Flanders the battle is still in full swing.

To the north of Poelcapelle and to the southwest of Passchendaele the fighting still goes on at some places where the English penetrated our lines.

FRENCH CHECK NIGHT ATTACKS

Repulse Germans in Engagements on Aisne and Champagne Fronts.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—German attacks on the Aisne and Champagne fronts were repulsed by the French last night, the War Office announces. Artillery fighting was in progress during the night on the right bank of the Meuse and in other sectors.

Following is the text of the afternoon report:

The night was marked by great activity of the artillery and by a series of German efforts at various points on the front. West of Cerny we repulsed an enemy attack, while a detail operation carried out by us north of Noisy Farm enabled us to bring back prisoners. An enemy surprise attack west of Maisons de Champagne and three German efforts in the region of Auberive and Souain came to nothing.

BERLIN, Oct. 12, (via London.)—Intense artillery activity near Soissons and on the Verdun front east of the Meuse is reported in today's announcement from army headquarters, which follows:

Front of the German Crown Prince—Northeast of Soissons and east of the Meuse fighting activity of the artilleries increased to great intensity. Near Vauxaillon strong French reconnoitering troops advanced, but were repulsed. East of Samogneux there were local trench engagements on the eastern slope of Hill 344.

BRITISH AVIATORS ACTIVE.

Army Fliers Fire on German Infantry—Raid on an Enemy Airdrome.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The official communication dealing with army aviation issued this evening, says:

"On Thursday every opportunity was taken by our airplanes to reconnoiter enemy positions and carry on artillery and photographic work during the interval of clear weather.

"A large number of bombs were dropped by our machines on hostile billets, and machine gun fire was opened from low altitudes upon German infantry in their trenches. One hostile machine was brought down yesterday in combat, and another was shot down by our infantry. Two other enemy machines were driven down out of control. Five of our airplanes are missing."

Another naval air raid over Belgium was reported officially today. The statement follows:

"Naval aircraft dropped many bombs on the Sparappelhoek airdrome yesterday afternoon, despite heavy clouds and rain. All our machines returned."

GERMAN TROOPS JEER AT GENERAL'S THREATS

Groans and Laughter Greet the Warning That All Who Hold Back Will Be Shot.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—A dispatch from the British Headquarters to Reuter's, Ltd., says that a prisoner from the Seventy-second German Infanty Reserve, in describing the discipline of his corps, declared that before the last battle a regimental commander addressed his troops with the warning that any who held back would be shot.

The only answer was a general groaning, swelling into derisive laughter, upon which the commander rode away.

THREAT TO AMERICA BY DUTCH PAPER

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 12.—After accusing Great Britain of attempting to bully Holland by stopping all commercial cable communication with Holland until the Netherlands Government places an absolute restriction on the transit of sand, gravel, and scrap metal through Holland from Germany to Belgium the influential Liberal organ, the Handelsblad, bitterly terms the refusal of the United States to give bunker coal to Dutch ships as an unfriendly act and an act of bad faith.

The newspaper remarks that a refusal by Holland in like circumstances would be regarded as a hostile act. It contends further that the seizure of Dutch ships by the United States would be an act which, according to the law of right, might lead to a declaration of war.

ALSACE BLOCKS BERLIN AIMS

Wilson Was Aware of Britain's Full Support of France.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Premier Lloyd George's declaration that the British Empire will fight to restore Alsace, no matter how long, is considered extremely important here as placing the leading European belligerents on record regarding one of the important issues to be settled before there can be an agreement for discussion of peace terms.

The frank statements of Lloyd George, Asquith, and von Kühlmann have developed a situation that should serve as an effective obstacle to Teuton efforts to force an early peace on a compromise basis. French diplomats here are greatly pleased over the declarations made by Lloyd George and Asquith, though the fact that England would stand by France on the Alsace-Lorraine question was known to them.

President Wilson has also been fully aware of the determination of France and England to continue the war until the lost French provinces have been won back from Germany. State Department officials would not comment today on the Alsace question as now outlined, but there is every reason for believing that the statements made by Lloyd George and Asquith came as no surprise to them.

HYLAN SIDESTEPS MITCHEL DEBATE

WOULDN'T SATISFY PEOPLE

County Judge John F. Hylan, Tammany Hall-Democratic Fusion candidate for Mayor, will ignore Mayor Mitchel's challenge for a joint debate with the Mitchel administration as the topic. This was settled last night when Judge Hylan addressed two audiences—one in Brooklyn and one in the Bronx—but said nothing about debating the issues of the campaign with Mayor Mitchel. Earlier in the day the Judge had told interviewers that he would say anything he had to say in relation to the Mayor's challenge in his night speeches.

"I have an idea Judge Hylan will run his campaign to suit himself and not to suit his rivals," said one of Judge Hylan's campaign managers when told of what Judge Hylan had said.

Mrs. Hylan made her initial appearance with her husband at a campaign meeting at Hunts Point Palace last night. She sat on the platform.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Democratic County Committee of the Bronx. The hall was crowded to capacity, about 8,000 persons attending.

Judge Hylan, in his address before the Bronx audience, made what was construed as being a "near-answer" to Mayor Mitchel.

"The time has now come when Mr. Mitchel must meet the issues of this campaign and meet them with statements that are truthful," said the Judge. "He can no longer avoid a reckoning. No mere oratorical contest with this petulant young man, who is smarting under deserved and almost universal condemnation, will meet the situation or satisfy the people. This is the case of the people of the City of New York against the Mayor and his Administration, and his answer must be to all the people. It is time for the Mayor to make his defense. He has delayed too long already."

Judge Hylan referred to the alleged illegal use of the streets by certain public service corporations, and declared that municipal ownership and operation of public utilities, a tenet in the Tammany platform, was the remedy.

"But if the municipality is to become the owner and operator of these public service corporations, the people must have officials who can be depended upon when elected to resist every encroachment of the corporations and see to it that the interests of the public are protected in every way," said the Judge. "Mayor Mitchel, Controller Prendergast, and their colleagues in the Board of Estimate to whom you have vainly looked for relief so often in the past have been nominated and are dominated and controlled by the agents and owners of public service corporations.

"But this money oligarchy is not content with the monopoly of the public service corporations and the control of public officials. It is now reaching out to get control of the education of your children. It seeks to lead the coming generations away from those progressive ideas which are becoming so great a menace to monopoly and predatory wealth. Here again they have found Mayor Mitchel loyal to the dictates of his moneyed masters. He has brazenly surrendered the control of the public schools and the ducation of our children into the hands of the Rockefeller interests. The Rockefeller agents who have forced the Gary system upon you do not want your children to be in a position to become professional men and women.

"There will be an end to this Rockefeller educational propaganda in New York City if I am elected Mayor. I shall banish this vicious Gary system."

Judge Hylan said that the Mayor in making patriotism his issue attempted to evade discussion of his own administration.

"Mayor Mitchel would like to have us forget all about his intimate friend ex-Senator Reynolds, now under indictment," he said. "He would like to have us forget that there was wasted $1,200,000 on the purchase from Reynolds of land for a marginal railway in South Brooklyn. He would like to have us forget the $1,000,000 wasted on the purchase of Dreamland from Reynolds and his associates. He would like to have us forget the $1,200,000 wasted in the purchase from Reynolds and his associates of the useless sand dunes at Rockaway Point. He would like to have us forget the waste of $12,000,000 on the purchase of a useless Court House site.

"All these things Mr. Mitchel sought to force us to forget by crying out that those who opposed him were traitors to their country. But he has found that he cannot hide corruption and wrongdoing behind the flag. He has found that his cries of traitor will not silence the public demand for an explanation of his association with the indicted Reynolds.

"The people of this city are demanding an explanation from Mayor Mitchel. Our citizens individually and by organization have been, day after day, week after week, month after month, challenging Mr. Mitchel's acts. But Mr. Mitchel has not answered. He has sought by every specious plea to evade an answer."

Judge Hylan took direct issue with Mayor Mitchel on the latter's denial of the truth in an earlier statement by the Tammany candidate on the stump relative to the employment by the Mitchel administration of out-of-town experts.

"In my speech on Wednesday night," said Judge Hylan, "I said that out-of-town fake-experts had been paid at least $1,000,000 by the city during the present administration. I gave a few of the names and the titles to illustrate my point, and was careful to point out that I did not present the full list. The Mayor has attempted to answer my charges. Let us see if he has been honest and truthful in his explanation.

"Mr. Mitchel admits the appointment of W. L. Sears of Boston at $3,000 a year as Superintendent of the Free Employment Bureau. But he says that Mr. Sears has since died. Does his death change the irregularity of his appointment? He admits the appointment of W. R. Smith, a foreign subject, as a supply expert at $5,000, but states that he is no longer in the employ of the city. Does the removal or resignation of Mr. Smith alter the fact of his appointment or change his citizenship? Mr. Mitchel admits that Fulton Colville of Atlanta, Ga., was appointed standardization expert at $2,400, but says Mr. Colville was in that position for two years ending Feb. 27, 1915. His services terminated after exposure at the investigation by the State of the Civil Service Commission, otherwise he might still hold his 'temporary' position.

"The Mayor admits that F. R. Leach was employed as efficiency engineer at $6,000 from November, 1914, to October, 1915. He denies that Mr. Leach was a resident of Boston, but says nothing about the fact that Mr. Leach was head of a branch of the Bureau of Municipal Research in Cleveland, Ohio, for five years prior to his appointment.

"The Mayor says that Karl Heinrich, an 'expert piano tester,' left the city employ on Dec. 11, 1915. If the Mayor wanted to be accurate, he might have consulted the records of his own Civil Service Commission and told us that Heinrich was reappointed to that position on Dec. 16, 1916—just one year later. Mr. Heinrich, the 'expert piano tester,' was really a photographer with a studio at 1 Hudson Street.

"Mayor Mitchel admits the employment of H. S. Swan of Boston, as I charged, but says his employment was terminated on Aug. 31, 1916. I did not charge that Mr. Swan was on the payroll now. I merely called the attention of the people to the improper, indefensible appointment of fake out-of-town experts. I repeat that Mr. Swan and the others were employed as I charged."

With regard to his own statement that L. S. Blakey, another out-of-town expert, came from Washington, D. C., Judge Hylan entered a plea of guilty to Mayor Mitchel's charge of inaccuracy, and said he was aware Mr. Blakey had been appointed from Dickinson, Penn. The origin of J. L. Mann, efficiency engineer at $2,700, was also a matter of dispute between Judge Hylan and Mayor Mitchel, who declared the expert hailed from Vermont, not, as Judge Hylan had declared, from Santo Domingo.

"The Mayor attempts to justify the appointment of John F. Sullivan as consulting engineer of the Board of Estimate at $7,200 a year. Mr. Sullivan's salary was unusually high. But then he performed unusual service for the New York Central in the preparation of plans for the Riverside grab. He was jumped over abler and older engineers from $2,100 to $7,200. And there is Mr. Prohock, who is now Secretary of the Tenement House Department, at $3,750, a position which he declared useless when he commuted daily from Philadelphia as a $25 a day efficiency expert. Why discuss the excuses and denials regarding George R. Buck, who from drawing a $1,000 salary as a clerk in the Washington Census Bureau, became a New York 'expert' at $5,940 a year? Mr. Mitchel has proved a veritable municipal Burbank, planting $1,000 Washington clerks in New York City only to have them blossom forth as $5,900 experts."

HYLAN FOR DEMOCRACY HERE.

Says He Is Fighting Same Sort of Battle as Allies in France.

Judge Hylan was the principal speaker last night at a Columbus Day dinner given by the Italian Societies at the Imperial in Brooklyn. Judge Hylan opened his speech with a reference to the struggle in Europe, which he pronounced "a conflict between right and might, between democracy and autocracy in which democracy must and will triumph."

"But if the American people have entered this struggle on the side of democracy we must keep democratic institutions pure and unsullied at home," Judge Hylan went on. "If we are a government of the people, if we are a true democracy, we must eliminate everything that is contrary to democratic principles in our nation, in our State, in our city. Just as the world is engaged in a struggle for true democracy, so the City of New York is now waging a conflict for true, popular government. There can be no doubt about the outcome of that conflict.

"The people of New York City will not permit the Mayor to use his office for the financial enrichment of his friends. They will not tolerate the surrender of their municipal government to a few men, no matter how wealthy or influential they may be. They will not allow their children to be educated along the lines of outlandish theories that are intended merely to circumscribe the ambitions of our citizens and establish caste distinction in our American society. They will not tolerate waste and extravagance in their municipal administration. They will not countenance fraud and dishonesty in the conduct of their elections and they will resent the insult that they are traitors to their country because they refuse to agree with the political theories of an individual, or to indorse his record of dishonesty and incompetence.

"The American people as an entirety, no matter from what stock or ancestry sprung, are imbued with an intense patriotism and a deep love of country. It is our loyalty and patriotism that has prompted us to fight for humanity in the great conflagration that is now consuming the world."

SWANN DEMANDS CORRIGAN'S PROOF

Calls for Evidence That Policeman Was Asked to Change Testimony in His Office.

SEEKS GRAND JURY INQUIRY

Prosecutor Denies That Ruth Cruger's Sister Was Rudely Treated by Assistant.

District Attorney Edward Swann, in an open letter issued last night as a reply to an attack made on him by City Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan, independent candidate for District Attorney, challenged Mr. Corrigan to prove his assertion that a patrolman had been asked to change his testimony in the District Attorney's office. Mr. Swann declared that he desired Mr. Corrigan to back up his allegations with evidence before the Grand Jury or before any Magistrate next Tuesday, at 10:30 A. M., and stated that his open letter was an appeal from "Philip drunk to Philip sober." Further on in the letter Mr. Swann said that he did not intend to "resort to personal abuse," as the public would "sense the true character" of Magistrate Corrigan.

District Attorney Swann's letter follows:

Oct. 12, 1917.

The Hon. Joseph E. Corrigan, as City Magistrate, City Magistrates' Court, New York City.

Sir: I address you in your official capacity as City Magistrate charged with the duties of a committing Magistrate in case of violation of the law.

In your capacity as a candidate you are reported by the papers today as having addressed fifty persons in the large hall of Cooper Union last night. You are quoted as saying that you have evidence of offenses committed in the District Attorney's office, and you say you "can prove it."

In addressing you in your official capacity for your intemperate utterances as a candidate, on the occasion of the morning after, I appeal from Philip drunk to Philip sober, and demand that you, as City Magistrate, present before yourself or before one of your fellow-City Magistrates any and all evidence of any violation of the law which you, in your capacity as candidate, allege as having occurred in the District Attorney's office during my incumbency, and specifically the alleged offenses which you refer to and say you "can prove it."

Says Statement Is False.

You say that the sister of Ruth Cruger, who was called as a witness to this office, was rudely treated by one of my assistants. That statement is false, and known by you to be false, and Henry D. Cruger, who saw your statement in this morning's paper, has just written me as follows:

"My attention has been called to the fact that the murder of my daughter Ruth has been brought into a political campaign.

"My daughter Helen in her visits to your office received only courteous treatment at your hands and at the hands of your assistants, and the only criticism I have of your office is that in my opinion they attach too much importance to the statements of the police."

You told your handful of hearers that the police were not responsible for the failure to "run down and apprehend the murderer of Ruth Cruger." The Grand Jury, specially convened by the Governor to investigate this failure, do not agree with you, for they have filed their indictments of the persons guilty of this neglect.

While your former position in the District Attorney's office was a minor one, you ought to know that the District Attorney is a lawyer charged with conducting cases in court, and that the detective force of the city, consisting of more than 700 detectives, is primarily charged with the duty of finding and arresting criminals; your lack of knowledge regarding the duties of the District Attorney disqualifies you for that office in the minds of all well-informed persons.

Swann Calls for Evidence.

You told your audience that an unnamed "cop" had been asked to change his testimony on some unnamed occasion in the District Attorney's office; I hereby demand that you do your duty and present the evidence of this alleged offense, either before yourself as City Magistrate, or before one of your fellow-Magistrates, or you may choose either one of the Grand Juries, and I hereby appoint Tuesday, Oct. 16, at 10:30 A. M., as the time for you to present any evidence that you claim to have "to prove it," or any other alleged offense committed in the District Attorney's office, or by any assistant or employe.

Before I was designated as the party's candidate for District Attorney you struggled to get the designation from the Democratic organization of this county whose choice I was, and you importuned and sought the aid of seven of the leaders of Tammany Hall, who tried their best for you, and you now under chagrin and disappointment turn and bite the hands that fed you.

When I was elected to this office, in 1915, you wrote me a letter congratulating the County of New York on my election, and you congratulated me upon the professional staff of assistants that I had appointed, and you personally complimented me for appointing an old friend of yours—George F. Roesch, whom you know to be of unimpeachable personal integrity and a man of ability, and who was certified to me as a man of probity and ability by Cardinal Farley, the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, and Justice Goff, and yet, last night you slandered your friend in an endeavor to obtain a political advantage, although you knew he was dangerously ill in St. Francis Hospital, and the last rites of the Church administered to him.

I do not intend to resort to personal abuse, the public will sense the true character of the candidates and "out of thine own mouth will I judge thee."

Mayor Gaynor, who knew you well, stated publicly his estimate of your character in the public press of April 4, 1911.

Your so-called "independent" petition was signed at your request by Paul Kelly, the ex-convict and former gang leader, whose name is known to every well-informed newspaper reader in the city, and this week your committee wrote him urging him to register so as to vote for you.

Very truly,
EDWARD SWANN,
District Attorney.

SAYS CORRIGAN AIDS SWANN.

Ransom Asserts Magistrate Can Only Divide Anti-Tammany Vote.

Speaking at a business men's mass meeting at 557 Broadway yesterday, William L. Ransom, Fusion candidate for District Attorney, said that Magistrate Corrigan, independent candidate for the same office, was working in the interest of District Attorney Swann's candidacy.

"Mr. Corrigan would, of course, like to create the impression that he is fighting Tammany Hall," Mr. Ransom said, "and he goes to the limits of language in assailing Mr. Swann. The fact, however, remains that by no possibility can Mr. Corrigan be figured a factor in the votes, beyond his attempted service to Tammany in trying to divide the anti-Swann votes. No doubt, Mr. Corrigan is sore on Murphy. He sought Tammany's nomination from Murphy, and Murphy turned him down. No doubt, Mr. Corrigan is sore on the Fusion Committee, the Republicans, and the City Democracy. He sought the anti-Tammany nomination from all these, and the men opposed to Murphy, Foley & Co., of course, did not see fit to name a Murphy suppliant still in the Tammany ranks. Corrigan's soreness is no qualification for office, and voters who want the District Attorney's office really taken out of politics will not vote for a man who would be back at the feet of a boss as soon as he wanted something else.

"I am willing to let the lawyers who tried cases before me, the jurors who served before me, the business men who have known my work at the Public Service Commission, tell whether any judicial official act of mine has ever seemed influenced by a political consideration."

City Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan, independent candidate for District Attorney, made this reply last night in answer to the statement of District Attorney Swann, answering Judge Corrigan's speech at Cooper Union on Thursday night:

"My attention has been called to a letter which District Attorney Swann is said to have addressed to me. I see by the newspaper reports that he begins it with a falsehood, which is typical, in that he states that I addressed only fifty persons in the Cooper Union meeting last night. There are at least one thousand men and women who know of their own knowledge that that is a misstatement. I though the galled jade would wince when I began to show up his office, but I have only begun. I shall keep on all through this campaign telling the people of New York what he is most anxious to hide, namely, the truth, about the way that office is conducted. The letter in its details is a fine example of the peculiar mental processes which enable Mr. Swann to call the scathing arraignment of him by Judge Ingraham a vindication.

"If Judge Swann will follow my future speeches with care he may learn how his office is really conducted. The only charitable assumption now is that much that transpires there is without his guilty knowledge."

WHITMAN IS DUMB ON MAYORALTY FIGHT

Governor, on a Visit to Chicago, Refuses to Comment on the Situation Here.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Governor Charles S. Whitman taught the Sphinx a lesson in muteness today so far as indulgence in political comment was concerned. He became dumb on the New York Mayoralty situation, declining to drop one word on the three-cornered campaign and its possible outcome.

"Not a word," said the Governor. "You can perceive what a delicate matter it is. Just now, in fact, everybody is interested in registration, which, so far, is small, and which closes on Saturday."

At the Hamilton Club, however, where the Governor made a luncheon address, a group around him was not so uncommunicative. One member said Mitchel was as good as elected. Another said that Bennett had "a pipe." A third said that Hylan might squeeze in. Still another said that the Republicans would carry the Congressional elections next year. A fifth made the prediction that the "G. O. P." would easily win the Presidency in 1920.

"Let's see, the last time I was at the Hamilton Club everybody was saying that Hughes would carry every Northern State."

CITY REGISTRATION CONTINUES SMALL

THIS IS THE LAST DAY

With 446,697 Registered, Politicians Hope for Big Results from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M.

Registration in all the boroughs of the city yesterday showed a falling off from the figures of Thursday of 20,842. While the falling off from the day before was general through the city, political leaders said it was due to the fact that the weather was stormy and that the day was a holiday.

Leaders of all the political camps look for a big registration today, which will pull the total up to the figures of last year and those of 1913, the last Mayoralty year. The total registration yesterday in all the boroughs was 66,359. Last year the total registration for the fifth day was 76,037.

Following are the registration figures by boroughs for the fifth day of 191[illegible], 1916, and this year:

BRUCKNER ANSWERS MAYOR

Tells Bronx Audience He Is Not Pro-German.

Representative Henry Bruckner, now the Democratic candidate for Borough President of the Bronx, speaking before a large audience at Hunt's Point Palace last night, took up his own defense against the charge of pro-Germanism made against him by Mayor Mitchel.

The charge is the outgrowth of Mr. Bruckner's failure in the last Congress to vote to table the so-called McLemore resolution warning Americans off belligerent vessels. Mr. Bruckner said last night that his vote on the measure was due to his objection to having it killed without prior discussion.

"In this hall last Saturday night the 'Fighting Mayor' told his audience that if the people of the Bronx knew the kind of man Henry Bruckner is they would have repudiated him at the primaries. It is very evident that the people of the Bronx knew the kind of man the Mayor is, for they surely did repudiate him at the primaries.

"Mayor Mitchel, in his attack on my Americanism, takes a shot and then runs away. He says I am pro-German, but he does not tell you why he thinks so, nor does he further substantiate his accusation, other than to say that I voted for the suddenly famous McLemore resolution. This resolution the Mayor is now trying to make so much political capital of—a national matter—was on record eight months before the last election in which I was returned to Congress for the third time by the largest majority given to any Democratic Congressman east of the Mississippi, with the exception of in the solid South.

"You have read in the newspapers, perhaps, that friends of President Wilson and official Washington itself have resented the meddling with national affairs in a purely local campaign. It is a well-known fact that Mayor Mitchel's usurpation of the American flag and his so-called 'war candidacy' have been frowned on at the Capitol.

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER.

This is the final day of registration for the election on Nov. 6. Polls will be open from 7 A. M. to 10.30 P. M. If you have not registered by tonight you cannot vote in the election.

in the tabulation from New York and Atlanta, the total announced from these districts standing just where it was last night. The report is therefore far from complete. Kansas City shows a change of only $600 for the day for the entire district—a change which officials admit is almost inconceivable. Chicago is credited with an increase of only $855,000 for the day, and Cleveland has only $76,000 more than reported yesterday, both reports indicating that only a small percentage of subscriptions actually made was reported to the Reserve Banks.

New England, with an increase for the day of $6,800,000, showed the biggest advance, its total of $48,000,000 being approximately the figure reported from Boston. San Francisco, according to the official report, added $6,044,200 to its previous subscriptions. Other additions were: Philadelphia, $1,129,850, Richmond, $2,131,450; St. Louis, $1,348,050, and Dallas, $300,000.

An unofficial report from Minneapolis said the State Deposit Board had adopted a resolution directing that State funds be withdrawn from all banks failing to push the loan and subscribe for bonds with their own funds, if their reserves warranted. This action is expected greatly to stimulate the sale.

Iowa, another State in which the work has been slow in getting under way, was reported tonight to be showing new enthusiasm. The State's quota, it was said, would be met by "hard and persistent efforts." Country banks, farmers, and wage earners particularly are lining up for the loan throughout the State.

Chicago continues a steady drive, and reports good sales in the various Illinois districts. The Chicago flying squadron obtained 4,500 subscriptions yesterday.

Cleveland reported tonight that its district showed an unofficial total of $60,000,000, about $18,000,000 of which came from the city itself. The big Columbus Day drive in Columbus, Ohio, was somewhat of a disappointment because of a snowstorm. All bankers and their employes turned out and worked for the loan, however.

South Shows Greater Interest.

Quickened interest was displayed in the South today. Atlanta tonight reported subscriptions were coming in steadily. Nashville got $2,500,000, and two Atlanta banks subscribed $1,500,000 each. Great rivalry is being stirred up in Southern army training camps over which shall buy the largest amount of bonds, and good sales are resulting. One brigade at Camp McClellan bought $107,000 worth of bonds, and the enlisted men at Pensacola invested $14,000.

Thomas H. West, Chairman of the St. Louis Union Bank, made an individual subscription of $250,000 today, and Charles B. Rawlins, Grand Secretary and Treasurer of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, announced that his organization would subscribe $100,000. Plans are under way to induce members of the Patriotic Parents' Association, about to be formed, to sell five bonds each.

Many cities failed to report today because their banks were closed on account of Columbus Day.

Lieutenant John Philip Sousa, a native Washingtonian, former leader of the United States Marine Band, will return to Washington tomorrow morning, again in navy uniform, at the head of his newly organized band of 250 pieces from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station at Chicago. The band, which was organized for the navy after the war began by Sousa, who volunteered and was commissioned as a Lieutenant, is touring the nation in encouragement of the second Liberty Loan. After spending the busiest sort of a day here tomorrow the band will leave for New York at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

Four big open-air concerts will be given in connection with the Liberty Loan, and naval recruiting campaign. That the famous bandmaster will have one of the busiest days of his career is indicated by his program for tomorrow as prepared at the Navy Department today. It follows:

Arrives in Washington 9:30 A. M.
Proceeds immediately to navy yard by special car. Navy yard trucks will be present to assist in handling instruments.
Meeting at the navy yard, 11-11:30.
Address by Secretary of the Navy and other speakers.
11:45—Leave navy yard for north steps of Treasury by special car of Capital Traction Company.
12:15-12:45—Concert and speeches on the north steps of Treasury.
1 P. M.—Dinner at Epiphany Church.
4 P. M.—Assembly of band on Pennsylvania Avenue, between Sixth and Seventh Streets. March down Pennsylvania Avenue to south steps of Treasury, where concert and speeches will be held at 4:30.
6 P. M.—Supper at Epiphany Church.
7:30 P. M.—Concert and speeches on the steps of Municipal Building.
Lodging and breakfast at National Hotel.

The band will leave here for New York at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

HOLIDAY FAILS TO HALT LOAN EFFORTS HERE

Gain Estimated at $5,000,000, Although Banks and Business Houses Are Closed.

Although the first half of the four weeks' campaign for Liberty Loan subscriptions will close tonight, applications received in the New York Federal Reserve District thus far approximate slightly more than one-fifth of the billion and a half that the New York Committee has set out to collect. Yesterday being a holiday, the banks and business houses were closed, and consequently there was little news regarding new subscriptions. The Publicity Department of the Liberty Loan Committee estimated the day's gain as $5,000,000, the total for the eleven days advancing to $325,000,000. The books of the Reserve Bank showed tabulated subscriptions amounting to $243,515,400, an increase of approximately $13,000,000 over the previous day's figures.

A great many subscriptions that are known to have been signed have not yet been forwarded by the reporting banks to the Federal Reserve Bank, and there are no doubt many applications in the mail which will not be tabulated until today or Monday. Based on the expected daily average of $62,500,000 for the twenty-four week-days of the campaign, (the committee counted Columbus Day as a week-day,) the total for the eleven days should have aggregated $687,500,000, while as a matter of fact the estimated total for the period is only $325,000,000. This deficiency of $362,500,000 will have to be made up in the next two weeks if this district is to attain its full maximum allotment of $1,500,000,000.

A great many individuals and corporations have held off making subscriptions, and for that reason the volume of applications turned in during the closing days of the campaign will be considerably larger than the average of the first two weeks. In the case of corporations, the decision of subscribing rests with the Boards of Directors, who have not held a meeting during the last fornight, but will do so next week.

Poor Results Expected at First.

The reports from Washington showing that the subscriptions filed in districts outside of New York have not been large did not cause surprise, especially in view of the fact that admittedly many of the out-of-town institutions which had received applications from their customers had not yet made returns to their respective Federal Reserve Banks. Even before the campaign opened it was predicted that the first two weeks would show poor results, and that the real aggressive "drive" would be made in the succeeding fortnight. Bankers are not at all discouraged, but they realize that there is a great deal of hard work before them, and they only hope that the people, rich and poor, will appreciate the fact that every man and woman has a patriotic duty to perform, and that without their aid America's second war loan cannot be the great success they desire it to be.

| United States Mortgage and Trust Company | $3,000,000 |

Tobacco Trade Takes $3,400,000.

It was announced that the German Press Club has subscribed $2,000 to the Liberty Loan.

The Tobacco Trades Committee has finished its campaign for $3,000,000 of subscriptions. It succeeded in raising $400,000 in excess of that amount.

The Adjutant General's office at Governor's Island announced yesterday that the new soldiers of the national army, in training at fifteen camps throughout the country, has subscribed, up to Thursday night, for approximately $2,000,000 of Liberty bonds. Following is the official report of subscriptions at each camp:

| Camp Funston | $366,350 |
| Camp Kearny | 290,150 |
| Camp Shelby | 266,200 |
| Camp Meade | 224,350 |
| Camp Upton | 126,150 |
| Camp Jackson | 111,150 |
| Camp Bowie | 70,450 |
| Camp Gordon | 51,100 |
| Camp Travis | 49,850 |
| Camp Greene | 27,500 |
| Camp Devins | 21,350 |
| Camp Sevier | 19,400 |
| Camp Wheeler | 18,800 |
| Camp Logan | 15,100 |
| Camp Wadsworth | 6,400 |

Only Camp Dix at Wrightstown, N. J., has not reported its total.

In making known the figures the Adjutant General's office announced that the average subscription at Camp Kearny was $26 per capita, and that the largest regimental subscription was obtained from the Eighth Illinois Infantry, which totaled $54,100. In the Second Infantry, stationed at Washington, every man in Company G subscribed, while bond buying throughout the army has averaged from 60 to 90 per cent. for each regiment thus far, with the ordnance division leading at 92 per cent.

The soldiers guarding the Port of New York, the men who are manning the big gun batteries at Fort Hamilton, Fort Totten, and Fort Wadsworth, are going to hold a celebration to help the Liberty Loan. On Oct. 24 there is scheduled a field day at Fort Hamilton, at which 2,000 soldiers will take part. There will be a football game and other athletic events.

James W. Gerard Sends Message.

The Liberty Loan Committee received yesterday the following telegram from ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard, who is now in Los Angeles:

"The Liberty Loan must not fail. Failure means that we resign from the war, that we confess we are not even willing to put up money to back the men ready to risk their lives. We are on the edge of victory. A little nerve and we will win."

Harvey D. Gibson, President of the Liberty National Bank, came out with a statement yesterday to the effect that the new 4 per cent. Liberty Loan bonds would have the broadest market of any security in the world. "The bonds will be readily convertible into cash at any time both by large holders or by those who hold as small an amount as $50," he said. "The bonds will be the best-known security and can be bought or sold in any town or city in the United States and all the large cities of foreign countries. The soundness of their value as an investment is recognized to be the greatest of any security, for the reason that they are the first obligation of the United States, backed up both financially and morally by the people and the wealth of the United States of America."

Frank W. Woolworth, President of the F. W. Woolworth Company, said that the large corporations and businesses seemed to be doing their part in the purchase of the war bonds, but that if the loan did not prove an overwhelming success it would be due solely to the inertia of the rank and file of the business men of the country.

"I am a great believer in thrift," he said, "whatever success I have had in the mercantile field has been due largely to the effect that I have tried to make every dollar work to the best advantage. Investment in the Second Liberty Loan today is the best example of thrift that the people of the United States can show.

"War is the great business of the country this year and nothing else counts. Retail business must go on with undiminished activity, for the necessities of the people must be supplied. But to the retail merchants I would like to convey the thought that unless the war is won and won quickly a constantly increasing number of them will have to put up their shutters."

Members of the Distribution Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee, and the staff of the publicity department conferred last night with leading newspaper editors and publishers regarding the Liberty Loan campaign at a dinner held at the Links Club, 38 East Sixty-second Street.

CAMPS ENTHUSIASTIC FOR THE LIBERTY LOAN

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 12.—"Both your lives and money and the dough at the rate of $1,000 a battlesight yard!" is the cry that started in the training camp today. In the fly-wedge move of the Liberty Loan Committees to have the pioneer training camp of the country set an example of patriotism, and tonight the Executive Committee was able to announce that the camp subscription had reached the figure of $291,000.

Going on the basis of the battlesight yard, (Springfield rifle, the committees have $547,000 in subscriptions to the loan to obtain, and there is not a man in camp tonight who has the least doubt that the figure will be met. To the soldier and theman in training the battlesight is plain, but to the civilian probably not understood. The sight on a Springfield rifle is raised for shooting at known distances, but in battle it lies flat on the barrel, the soldier taking his aim through the V slot, and it is accurate in its delivery at 547 yards, and therefore known as the "battlesight," and the committee selected this figure, with the three ciphers added, as being appropriate, and hence the cry, "We want one thousand for every battlesight yard!"

Today the thirty-foot thermometer was put up at the camp post office building to keep the companies posted as to how the Liberty bond loan was climbing, the battle figure being at the top in large red letters and reading from top to bottom "Battlesight Loan Campaign."

One student of the camp is a regular army man who came here with $4 in his pocket. The regular has practiced every conceivable kind of economy, and three days ago was paid off for the month of September and eight days in August, which together with some railroad fare, amounted to $130. He subscribed today for two bonds, paying cash, and tonight at the camp theatre something about this man will be told on the moving picture screen.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, YAPHANK, L. I., Oct. 12.—A large clock which can be seen by half the camp has been placed on the signal tower of Hill 77 to register Camp Upton's subscriptions to the second Liberty Loan. Today's figures are $270,000, subscribed in the two days after authority came from Washington for soldiers to allot part of their pay toward purchase of Liberty Bonds. In seven minutes yesterday Company I, 307th Infantry, subscribed $2,100, and in divisional Headquarters Company every man has bought one bond.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Oct. 12.—National army men at Camp Dix, it was announced tonight, had subscribed $403,150 for the Second Liberty Loan in the first day's drive to sell $1,000,000 worth of the bonds here. This is an average of about $20 a man and Major G. W. Cocheau, in charge of the campaign, was so pleased with the showing that he decided to set the goal at $2,000,000 for this cantonment. There were two subscriptions of $50,000 each, but the majority of the bonds sold were of the $50 and $100 denomination.

It was announced at divisional headquarters that Theodore Roosevelt, Henry Morgenthau, and Dr. Henry van Dyke woul visit the camp within the next two weeks to speak in the interest of the loan.

AYER, Mass., Oct. 12.—The subscriptions at Camp Devins to the Liberty Loan, according to reports today, have reached $294,800, of which $196,000 was raised in the big drive Thursday. The 303d Heavy Artillery, including Maine and New Hampshire men, claims the lead of the camp with subscriptions of over $107,000. The largest individual subscription was made by James A. Garland of Buzzard's Bay, a private in the 302d Infantry, who tendered a $15,000 certified check as his share.

APPEAL TO COUNTRY'S BANKS.

General War Loan Committee Calls for Redoubled Efforts.

The General War Loan Committee of the American Bankers Association, an organization which has a membership of nearly 18,000 banks and trust companies, issued an appeal yesterday to the bankers of the country, directing their attention to the fact that they are facing the greatest responsibility in their existence, and that it is their duty to work energetically for the success of the second Liberty Loan.

"The business of the banker will not be as usual," the statement says. "On the contrary, it will be quite unusual. Loans and rediscounts will need to be temporarily expanded. The safety of the nation depends upon a proper handling of the problems of financing. Every dollar must be made to do its maximum service.

"The cause is just. America has gone in for victory. Much depends upon the second Liberty Loan. It cannot be allowed to fail. Four million subscribers were marshaled in the first campaign. Ten million more must be added in the second drive. Citizens of Great Britain subscribed $5,000,000,000 to her last war loan. The population of the United States is double that of Great Britain. Our people are no less prosperous and patriotic. They will respond, but must be reached through personal appeal. No one can reach them as can the banker. He knows the people of his community, knows their habits, circumstances, and debt-paying ability. It is, therefore, necessary that every banker double and redouble his efforts.

"Some bankers have faltered because of fear of disturbance to their deposits. This situation has been met by others through promotion of the sale of bonds on the partial payment plan. It is better to mortgage the future savings of the people than to have money withdrawn from banks and consequently from business. The fact that the funds arising from the sale of Liberty bonds will be spent in America and will gradually return to the banks through the channels of trade should not be overlooked.

"To win this war the bonds must be sold, production must be stimulated, savings must be increased, and waste must be eliminated. These things can be accomplished only through wholehearted co-operation and determined effort on the part of every banker. The success of the second Liberty Loan will cast an everlasting shadow of gloom across the German Empire. Failure to promptly sell the bonds means increased taxation. The bankers have never failed to answer the call of the nation, and they won't fail now."

SMOOT SURE OF SUCCESS.

Says Two Other Loans of Three Billions Will Be Floated.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, frequently referred to as "the business man of the Senate," expressed tonight his conviction that the people of the United States were at last fully alive to the size of the contract the Government had undertaken in entering the world war and that they were going in to win. He declared that the second Liberty Loan would prove a success and furthermore, that two other loans of $3,000,000,000 each to be floated before next July would be fully subscribed.

"There is no question about the Liberty bond issue being taken," Senator Smoot said. "It must be, and not only this one but two other issues that are to follow in this fiscal year. We have arranged to advance $7,000,000,000 to our allies. Of that amount there has been advanced $2,850,000,000. The biggest business problem in this country at present is to win the war. No loyal American is going to question what it costs. Our duty is to win and count the cost later."

Gone To Earth

By MARY WEBB,

Author of "The Golden Arrow"

The New York Evening Post says:

"Fidelity to nature that marks the early character description of 'Gone to Earth' and the mingling of humor and beauty in the novel is rarely well done. The picture of the half gypsy girl with tawny hair and the feat of a born dancer with her pet fox and her kindness to all things; the sketch of the abstracted, callous old harper with whom she has no tie but one of blood, will not be forgotten easily."

MITCHEL RECALLS RULE OF TAMMANY

Says Election of Hylan Will Bring Back Days of Dirty Streets and Police Graft.

REVIEWS RECENT PROGRESS

Asks W. R. Hearst About Times When He Called Murphy a Snowfall Grafter.

Although he made no campaign speeches last night, Mayor Mitchel continued his attacks upon Judge John F. Hylan, the Tammany Mayoralty candidate. He recounted in a statement the improvements of his administrations in various departments, which, he said, would all be changed if Tammany Hall got in power. The Mayor specifically pointed out the changes that had been made in the Police and Street Cleaning Departments.

"I could go on, and I shall do so shortly, through the whole long list of departments to illustrate the difference between government for the city and government for Murphy.

"But unless the breathing spell of good government that this city has had has dulled its memory, it should not be necessary for me to cast back for details of the misrule which made New York City's government a byword throughout the nation.

"The past has proved that New York City cannot have a good government and a Murphy government at the same time.

"Judge Hylan stands for a Murphy government; he stands for a Hearst government. A vote for him is a vote for the anti-American policies of Mr. Hearst and for the anti-New York policies of Mr. Murphy."

In his statement the Mayor said that William R. Hearst, "the chosen guardian of Judge Hylan's national ideals," is willing to "clasp hands with Murphy, the man who hopes to show Judge Hylan how to run New York." The Mayor dug up the past utterances of Mr. Hearst and showed how he once opposed Murphy and "Murphy government." On Oct. 20, 1905, the Mayor recited, a Hearst editorial said, speaking of Mr. Murphy's candidate:

"He has spent more millions than ever in the history of the city cleaning the streets, yet we have the filthiest thoroughfares that this generation has seen. Much of the money has been stolen; the rest of it wasted. Murphy's firm, of course, received most of it. In old times contractors received pay for each load of snow actually removed. Murphy's firm is paid on estimates of the snowfall in the streets. He is paid for all that snow that melts, all the snow that blows away."

"Department by department," said the Mayor, "the influences that control Tammany have proved their unfitness for power." He said that the present administration has shown that the greatest city in the United States could be the best governed if it has in power men who think first and only of the city.

Regarding the Police Department the Mayor said:

"Today the Police Department of the City of New York is the admiration of the entire country. Today the public respects its police and the police respect the public. Police graft and licensed gambling are a thing of the unsavory Tammany past. Today a New York policeman's badge is a badge not of shame, but of honor. The police force is ruled not by the politician or the criminal, but by the best Police Commissioner that the city ever had."

Speaking of the Street Cleaning Department, the Mayor said.

"Today New York has a Street Cleaning Department which has made New York City the cleanest city in the United States. During 1916 38,000 warnings against dirtying New York streets were issued; 200,000 more loads of rubbish were removed in 1916 than in 1913. The budget of the department has been reduced $139,000. Snow removal has been so revolutionized that what used to cost the city $100 now costs it only $32, although the wages paid to street cleaners are higher now than under Tammany.

"Most important of all, the streets that have received the closest attention are streets in the congested districts, where dirty streets mean sickness and death to the children of the poor.

"It should not be necessary for me to remind the public of what New York's streets were under Tammany. Rotten pavements littered with rubbish were the rule rather than the exception. A show of cleanliness was made on streets like Fifth Avenue, but the congested districts of the city were so neglected that the people of the east side rose in rebellion."

The Fusion Campaign Committee announced yesterday that a Mitchel drive would be made by "flying squadrons" from now until the end of the campaign. The movement will start today by volunteer Mitchel speakers. These volunteers will use a "tank" in their drive. The announcement said:

"Squadrons will fly by automobile to every street corner where voters can be gathered together to hear a campaign argument. Each evening the autos, with banners and bugles and loaded with speakers and literature, will strike out into the city.

"The 'tank' will be a truck carrying four or five 'heavy guns,' skilled orators who will work as a team, each tackling a campaign issue on which he is expert.

The 200 or more speakers who have already volunteered gather every afternoon at Fusion headquarters, 244 Madison Avenue, corner of Thirty-eighth Street, and take two hours of training on presentation of campaign issues. The "flying squadrons" start out Saturday evening.

When Emory R. Buckner, Chairman of the Fusion Campaign Committee, was asked yesterday if he thought that Judge Hylan would accept Mayor Mitchel's challege for a debate, he said: "Hylan is hiding in Murphy's subcellar with Murphy on the trap door. Mayor Mitchel is trying to drag him out where the people can see him and size him up. Mayor Mitchel is working for the citizens of New York and Judge Hylan wants his job. The Mayor wants to meet him before his employers and explain just why Hylan should not have Mitchel's job. If Hylan comes out of the subcellar the election will be won by Mitchel, and Hylan's advisers know it. Therefore he won't come out."

Chairman Buckner said that Mitchel banners were flying in front of every Republican district clubhouse except five in Manhattan.

GILROY FOR MITCHEL.

Son of Former Mayor Commends Mayor's Administration.

Thomas F. Gilroy, Jr., son of the late Mayor Gilroy, wrote a letter to Mayor Mitchel yesterday saying he indorsed the Mayor's candidacy.

"It is fortunate that the voters have a chance to express by their votes not only their patriotism at this critical time, but, at the same time, can do an absolute service to the city by electing yourself after a four years' administration, in which you have shown what efficient city government can be," Mr. Gilroy wrote. "Since I have been a voter it has not been within my personal knowledge, and I do not recall from my reading of the city's history any case before this campaign in which a Mayor offered himself for re-election and pointed with pride to the Police Department as an asset and as an additional reason for his election."

BENNETT WANTS TO DEBATE

Will Face Mitchel or Hylan, or Both, He Says.

William M. Bennett, Republican candidate for Mayor, jumped into the fray last night with a challenge for both Mayor Mitchel and Judge Hylan, his Tammany rival, to debate the issues of the campaign with him. He wrote a letter to each, daring them to take up his challenge.

Mr. Bennett issued his challenge after Judge Hylan's speech last night had made it certain that the latter would not accept the Mayor's challenge to debate.

"I regard it as a most excellent idea," said Mr. Bennett. "I not only am willing to participate in a joint debate with either Mr. Mitchel or Judge Hylan singly, but I am also willing to participate in a triple debate between Mr. Mitchel, Judge Hylan, and myself. I will stand my share of the expense of the meeting, and will let the other two gentlemen select the time and place.

"I will discuss any issue of the campaign that either of the gentlemen may desire to raise. I will insist, however, that these two gentlemen declare themselves as to whether they are willing to countenance the gross primary frauds that have been committed by both Republicans and Democrats in the recent primary. The frauds in Manhattan and the Bronx with a view to counting me out were committed by Mr. Mitchel's backers and for his benefit, and yet he has not raised his voice to urge the punishment of those who committed these frauds, nor has he rendered any assistance to any of the District Attorneys to bring about their punishment."

Mr. Bennett said that he would insist upon a statement from Judge Hylan as to whether he was willing to run on the same platform with Sheriff Riegelman, who "was nominated for Borough President of Brooklyn by the same methods that were used to assist Mr. Mitchel in New York and Bronx."

"I shall also demand," said Mr. Bennett, "that in order that the audience may have a true appreciation of the situation each candidate shall state the names of contributors and the amounts of contributions to his campaign fund."

According to a statement sponsored by the Bennett Campaign Committee yesterday, the Union League Club indorsement of Mayor Mitchel was not by unanimous vote.

TAKES OVER SHIPS ABOVE 2,500 TONS

Southern republics for American goods are said to be beyond the reach of most of the people, because of the high freight rates.

The rates fixed by the board will cut sharply the present charter rates charged by the American vessels for carrying Government supplies. It is the intention, it is understood, to apply them later to any foreign ships chartered in the United States. The chartering will be in the hands of the Shipping Board's chartering commission, of which Welding Ring of New York is the head.

For freight vessels, the monthly rates per ton, figured on time charter on a basis of deadweight tonnage, are as follows:

More than 10,000 tons, $5.75; 8,001 to 10,000 tons, $6; 6,001 to 8,000 tons, $6.25; 4,001 to 6,000 tons, $6.50; 3,001 to 4,000 tons, $6.75; 2,500 to 3,000 tons, $7.

Vessels of a speed in excess of eleven knots will be allowed fifty cents a ton additional for each knot or fraction over eleven.

For passenger vessels the board adopted a twofold basis of classification: Class A, comprising steamers with a capacity of more than 150 passengers, and Class B, those with a capacity of from seventy-five to 150 passengers. Steamers in both ratings are further classified according to speed. Passenger steamer rates, based on time charters, and figured gross register, are:

Class A: Ten to eleven knots, $9 a ton; twelve knots, $9.50; thirteen knots, $10; fourteen knots, $10.50; fifteen knots, $11; more than fifteen knots, $11.50.

Class B: Ten to eleven knots, $8 a ton; twelve knots, $8.50; thirteen knots, $9; fourteen knots, $9.50; fifteen knots, $10; more than fifteen knots, $10.50.

ADMIRAL MAYO BACK FROM WAR COUNCIL

Visited British Grand Fleet and Our War Craft in Anglo-French Waters.

PLEASED WITH OUR TARS

Says They Are Making a Creditable Name for Themselves and the American Navy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—With the safe return to the United States of Admiral Henry T. Mayo, Commander in Chief of the United States Atlantic battleship fleet, and his staff from England, officials of the United States Government will enter upon a series of conferences on which the policy governing the use of the American Navy in the near future will be based.

Secretary Daniels today announced the safe return of Admiral Mayo, and indicated that conferences regarding the Entente and American naval situation would begin immediately after the arrival of the Admiral in Washington. While in London Admiral Mayo participated in the naval conference of the Entente Allies, came into intimate contact with activities in the British and French navies, and had a series of confidential talks with Vice Admiral Sims, who was able to give him word-of-mouth information he did not care to intrust to the cables or to mail pouches.

The appended statement was authorized by Secretary Daniels:

"Admiral H. T. Mayo, U. S. N., and his staff have returned from England. The purpose of the visit of Admiral Mayo to England was to permit him in conference with the other officials of the allied navies to become intimate in every detail with the situation as it is at present, what had been done before, and to discuss the plans for the future. The British Admiralty extended every courtesy and every facility to promote the success of this mission.

"Admiral Mayo will proceed immediately to Washington, and will there make a full report to the Secretary of the Navy.

"Admiral Mayo visited the English fleet and our own forces in British and French waters in order that he might familiarize himself with the conditions under which the allied forces are operating."

Secretary Daniels and other high officials of the navy are highly gratified over the success of the Mayo mission. Every effort had been made to keep secret the fact that he had been sent to London. The press had been taken into the confidence of the Navy Department at the time of the Admiral's departure, but was asked not to mention the mission in advance of an authorized statement being issued. With one exception, the injunction imposed on the press by the Navy Department was rigidly observed. It was largely on account of the desire to safeguard the Admiral during his transoceanic voyages that this request for secrecy was made by the department.

Admiral Mayo arrived yesterday at an Atlantic port with his full staff of fourteen officers from England and left immediately for Washington. He declined to make any comments on the war or on the mission which took him abroad, but was enthusiastic over the work done by the American destroyers fighting submarines on the other side.

"I was very much struck with the achievements of the destroyers and pleased with the facilities and courtesies extended to them by the officers of the British fleet, who worked with them in the most fraternal spirit," the Admiral said. "In addition to their good work afloat in reducing the activities of the enemy submarines, the crews of the destroyers have been commended for their behavior ashore and are making a creditable name for themselves and the American Navy."

SEEADLER DECEIVED A BRITISH CRUISER

German Raider, Held Up in the Atlantic, Passed Off as a Norwegian Lumber Carrier.

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 12.—Details of how the famous German commerce raider Seeadler, which preyed on allied commerce for seven months in the South Pacific before meeting her fate on the reefs of Mopeha Island, passed inspection of a British cruiser by assuming the disguise of a lumber carrier, were revealed here today by Captain Hador Smith of the American schooner R. C. Slade, one of the victims of the German craft.

After capture by the British and subsequent escape the Seeadler put into Bremerhaven, a German port, and in December, 1916, fitted out as a motor schooner under command of Lieutenant von Luckner, with a crew of sixty-eight, half of whom, according to Captain Smith, spoke Norwegian.

With forged Norwegian clearance papers and two four-inch guns concealed by a deckload of lumber, the vessel put to sea, encountered a British cruiser, passed inspection, mounted her guns, and proceeded to sink thirteen vessels in the Atlantic, two of them Britishers, Captain Smith said.

The last ship captured in the Atlantic was a French bark, on which 300 of the Seeadler's prisoners were sent to Rio de Janeiro. The Seeddler then rounded Cape Horn and began a campaign of destruction in the South Pacific.

REGAINS HIS CITIZENSHIP.

Crockett, Late of the British Army, Now in the Engineer Corps.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The first man to take advantage of the Repatriation act, passed last week by Congress for the purpose of restoring to American citizenship men who had served in the armies of the Allies in the European conflict, is Sherrill C. Crockett, 20 years old, a native of Montgomery, Ala. Mr. Crockett appeared today before Chief Justice Covington of the District of Columbia Supreme Court and took the oath of allegiance to the United States, the land of his birth.

Young Crockett entered the British Army and served two years. He was wounded at the Dardanelles and was in a hospital at Malta and in England for seven months. He saw service both with the Gloucestershire Regiment and with the Nineteenth Hussars. In the Gallipoli campaign his regiment lost 1,000 men in one day and was referred to by Ian Hamilton as an example of how green troops without officers would continue to fight. Every officer above the grade of Corporal was killed in this battle, Mr. Crockett says.

When he had recovered he was sent to France, but did not get into the trenches on the western front before his enlistment expired, and he obtained his honorable discharge. Mr. Crockett returned to America in December, 1916, and has been at his home in Alabama. He recently was appointed field clerk in the Engineer Corps and expects soon to revisit France, but this time in the American uniform, which he wore in court today.

Telling Recruits Why We War.

AYER, Mass., Oct. 12.—The "army of thinking men" for which General Pershing called is being prepared for at Camp Devens by means of talks by the company commanders. These began today with remarks on the history of the war, laying special stress on this country's reason for entering it. The officers made clear to the men that they were fighting not for England or France, or for any sentimental desire to discharge ancient obligations, but for American honor and for the protection of democratic government.

Keep the Home Fires Burning

Our soldiers do not leave their homes to fight in foreign lands for national conquest or for personal glory.

They go to preserve the freedom of their country and the lives of their mothers, sisters, wives, and children.

They fight to keep the home fires burning; their loved ones safe from the appalling fate of the women and children of Belgium.

Their valor will be in vain; their lives will be uselessly sacrificed; the cause they fight for will be lost, if we who remain at home do not back them up with our money.

Shall the Prussians come across the sea to conquer and enslave us, or shall our sons strike the final blow that will drive them back in overwhelming defeat and come safely and triumphantly home?

The answer to this question must be made now. It is squarely up to the American people—to you, personally.

Help win the war—quickly and decisively. Buy Liberty Bonds. Put every dollar into them you can possibly spare.

You can buy them at any bank or investment house, on easy partial payments. Keep the home fires burning.

SECOND DRAFT CALL MAY COME THIS YEAR

Washington Authorities Discuss Assembling Another 500,000 Men in December.

SHORTAGE IN ALL CAMPS

Some Cantonments Have Room for a Full Brigade—Need 50,000 More Men Now.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Discussion of the advisability of expediting the call for the second increment of the draft army is in progress at the War Department, and it appears likely that the date may be fixed for some time in December or January.

Mobilization of the first increment of 687,000 men is now far enough advanced to show clearly that there will be a big deficiency for the seventeen national army divisions. More than 250,000 of the first increment are still to be assembled, but it already is evident that there will be available at the sixteen cantonments quarters for an additional regiment at each post and at some for a full brigade.

The strength of the new regimental organization is 3,600 men. With a regiment lacking at each cantonment, this alone would mean a shortage of nearly 50,000 men. In addition there has been authorized a separate division of negro troops, which means nearly 30,000 men withdrawn from the original number assigned to the sixteen cantonments.

The shortage is due in part to the necessity of taking draft men to fill up National Guard divisions. Two complete national army divisions of Southern troops have been absorbed in this way. The remnants of three other Southern divisions will be consolidated to form a single divisional unit, and the surplus men from other camps will be sent South to make up the missing divisions.

Drafts on the national army forces also must be made to fill up the aviation service, the Medical Corps, and the service battalions needed behind the fighting lines abroad. Eventually there will be 250,000 men in the last-named service alone, and aviation and the medical service will take nearly as many more, although not all of them will be taken from the national army.

Several factors are operating to delay the calling out of the second increment to make good these shortages. Clothing and equipment are coming forward only at a rate sufficient to meet the demands of the forces already called, and the railways have been overburdened with the job of moving the army and its necessities without hindering freight shipments vital to the Allies.

Fixing the date of the call for the second increment probably hinges also upon the careful study being made by Provost Marshal General Crowder and his assistants of the results of the plan followed in assembling the men already called. Many questions have arisen which it may be desirable to avoid hereafter, and substitute regulations to guide both local and district boards, prepared in the light of what actual experience taught, may be issued to govern the second call.

KANSANS WANT NO NEGROES

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., Oct. 12.—A protest against the sending of 12,000 negroes of the draft army to Camp Funston and the transfer of 14,300 white soldiers of the national army, now in the cantonment, to other camps in the United States was made today by Mayor W. H. Thompson and six other city officials in a telegram to Secretary of War Baker.

The protest was occasioned by orders received today at the camp from the War Department authorizing the transfer of the 14,300 white soldiers to make place for the negroes.

The telegrams declare that Junction City has no negro population.

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER.

This is the final day of registration for the election on Nov. 6. Polls will be open from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. If you have not registered by tonight you cannot vote in the election.

THE COMING DEMOCRACY

By HERMANN FERNAU, Author of "Because I Am a German"

At every turn it is apparent that Herr Fernau understands not only the real thought of his countrymen, but the specious doctrines on which they have long been fed. His indictment of Germany's political system never descends to shrill vituperation. # YAPHANK TO HAVE POLITICAL BATTLES

All Mayoralty Candidates Accept Bell's Invitation to Speak There.

HILLQUIT WOULD GO, TOO

Socialist, with Pacifist Plank in Platform, Will Appeal If General Bars Him.

All of the forces engaged in the Mayoralty campaign are preparing to take advantage of the offer of Major. Gen. Bell to permit political parties with a place on the ballot and candidates who have qualified under the law to campaign among the drafted men at Camp Upton. A majority of the men at this camp have a voting residence in this city.

At the headquarters of the Mitchel Fusion Committee, it was said last night that a subcommittee was considering General Bell's offer. Emory Buckner, Mayor Mitchel's campaign manager, said, however, that no active steps had yet been taken to carry his campaign into Camp Upton.

"Mayor Mitchel will get most of the soldier vote, anyhow," said Mr. Buckner. "I guess they will all vote under the target. (Mitchel's emblem on the ballot.) "If we do determine to make a campaign among the boys we will cheerfully subscribe to all the conditions laid down by General Bell. There are no doctrines of a treasonable nature or anything subversive of military discipline in our platform."

The Democratic Fusion Committee has already taken steps to open permanent campaign headquarters on the outskirts of the military encampment at Yaphank. This will be used as a centre for the distribution of campaign literature among the drafted men at Camp Upton. A large supply of campaign posters has already been sent out for use in the vicinity of the camp and within the camp itself if the Federal authorities will permit. Watchers for the polls will also be sent to Camp Upton. County Clerk William Schneider, Chairman of the Democratic Fusion Committee, will have personal charge of the work among the soldiers.

Ex-Senator William M. Bennett will make a personal campaign at Camp Upton. Frank D. Wilsey, Chairman of the Bennett Campaign Committee, made formal application to General Bell yesterday for a permit.

At the Socialist campaign headquarters, 7 East Fifteenth Street, Usher Solomon, Secretary of the Socialist State Committee, and Manager of the Hillquit campaign, said the Socialists surely would declare themselves in under General Bell's offer.

"We comply with the requirements," said Mr. Solomon. "We are 'a political party entitled to a place on the ballot.' If other parties are going to be permitted to send speakers to the camp we will insist on the same right."

The attention of Mr. Solomon was called to the fact that Major Gen. Bell in his order had declared that "no permits will be granted to political parties whose platforms include doctrines of a treasonable nature or tendency, or subversive of military discipline." There is a pacifist plank in the Socialist platform.

"Will that shut you out?" Mr. Solomon was asked.

"Well, we will give General Bell a chance to show what his idea of fair play is," was his reply. "In any event, his authority is not final. There is the Secretary of War, you know. There are many Socialists at Camp Upton and we have a right to expound our principles and advocate the election of our candidates."

"How many Socialists do you think there are at the camp?" Mr. Solomon was asked.

"I would say that 50 per cent. of the drafted men there are either Socialists or socialistically inclined."

BELL REWARDS SERGEANT.

Keeps Promise He Made Twenty-one Years Ago When a Lieutenant.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, Yaphank, L. I., Oct. 12.—Sergeant Edward Busick, United States Regular Army, unassigned, reported for active duty with Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell today. Twenty-one years ago Busick was a private in Troop G, Seventh Cavalry, then stationed at Fort Apache, Ariz. Major Gen. Bell then was a First Lieutenant in temporary command of Troop G. He received orders to report in Washington. Private Busick spent most of the night with his Lieutenant, packing the officer's effects. On leaving Fort Apache the Lieutenant said: 'Busick, I may never see you again; but if I can ever do anything for you, let me know."

A month ago Busick obtained a furlough and came to Camp Upton. His service stripes indicated that he had fought through four campaigns. He was a Supply Sergeant in the coast artillery, stationed at Fort McKinley, Portland, Me. The Sergeant walked into Camp Upton headquarters and waited until an officer appeared wearing on his shoulderstraps the two stars of a Major General. The officer recognized the white-haired Sergeant.

"Well, Busick," said General Bell, "I've not forgotten the promise I made you at Fort Apache. You will sleep in my quarters tonight and tomorrow tell me what I can do for you."

That night Sergeant Busick occupied a room in the officers' quarters on Hill 77. In one adjoining room Major Gen. Bell slept, and in another Brig. Gen. Evan M. Johnson.

"Now, tell me what you want," said the General to Busick in the morning.

"Active Service under you, Sir," replied Sergeant Busick.

"Very well," said General Bell. "Report back at Fort McKinley and apply for a transfer here."

Sergeant Busick returned to Portland, received his transfer papers, and today reported to General Bell for active duty.

A detachment of soldiers numbering 2,065 went to Yaphank yesterday. This brings the total of men called up to 70 per cent. of the draft, and the remaining per cent. will be in camp by the end of the month. Eleven hundred men from the Bronx left by the ferry at East Thirty-fourth Street, and the others departed from the Pennsylvania Station and the Long Island terminal in Brooklyn. Relatives and friends cheered as the soldiers entrained. James H. Livingston, a brother of Jacob A. Livingston, Republican County Chairman of Kings, went to the camp as a private.

SUSPECT GERMAN PLOT TO POISON AVIATORS

Secret Service at Work in Every Flying School, Following Princeton Arrest.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 12.—Letters and other documents taken from Samuel O. Livingood, the Princeton aviation student, charged with conspiracy against the United States Government in having in his possession cyanide of potassium, are being investigated by Secret Service agents who have been sent to every aviation school in the country. While the strictest secrecy has been imposed on the operatives, it became known today that they have obtained evidence of such a nature as to warrant a search of the effects of all the men enrolled in that branch of the military service.

In the belief that German agents, attempting to bring about a reign of terror in the aviation camps, are responsible for the conspiracy, the Secret Service operatives are at the records of every man enrolled at the cantonments.

Within a few days after he arrived at Princeton Livingood began a series of visits to Trenton. When asked about these trips he usually avoided the subject, and his fellow-classmates began to be suspicious.

In tracing these visits the Government authorities have learned the names of several persons who met him in Trenton. From them they have obtained considerable information, which has been turned over to the military authorities at Governors Island, where the student will be put on trial next Monday.

Captain Rodman Gilder, who discovered the poison in Livingood's trunk after he had acted on the reports of the students that they believed the man to be decidedly pro-German, has placed in the hands of the special agents at Washington all the information he has received.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Official confirmation of the fact that a soldier had been arrested and sent to Governors Island to be court-martialed in connection with the discovery of cyanide of potassium, a deadly poison, at the aviation school at Princeton, was given by the Government today.

It has been alleged that this poison was taken to the barracks of the aviation school for use in connection with a plot to injure the army's aviation plans by killing off student fliers. Full particulars of the arrest have been sent to the War Department, but pending further investigation, and the trial of the soldier under arrest, details are withheld by officials, except as given in the following official statement which was authorized by the War Department this afternoon:

"At an inspection of the barracks at the aviation school at Princeton, N. J., a small quantity of cyanide of potassium and chloral hydrate was found. A soldier, in whose possession the poison seemed to be, was placed in arrest and taken to Governors Island, N. Y., for trial by court-martial."

Baker Moves Negro Troops from Camp Ordway After Shooting of Aged Carpenter.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Negro soldiers on guard duty at Camp Ordway here were ordered withdrawn tonight after the killing of Andrew J. Cooper, an aged carpenter, by Private Jerry Ward and a resulting strike of about 700 workmen. In announcing the order, Secretary Baker said no decision had been reached as to who would replace the negroes, members of the First Separate Battalion, District National Guard, but that civilian watchmen probably would be employed until the camp was completed.

Cooper was shot when going into the camp on his way to work. Ward, who immediately was arrested by the military, said the carpenter was not using the proper entrance and failed to obey a command to "halt." Friends of the dead man said he was slightly deaf and probably did not hear the sentry.

Revival Meetings for Jews.

Goldstein at the meetings among the Jews to be held tomorrow morning at the Mount Morris Theatre, 116th Street and Fifth Avenue, at 10:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Institutional Synagogue. Congressman Isaac Siegel, President of the Synagogue, will preside.

HONORS FOR WAR FLIERS.

Aero Club Provides Medal in Three Classes for Achievements.

A "Medal of Merit and Honorable Distinction" to be awarded to American and allied aviators for achievements has been created by the Aero Club of America, which appropriated $10,000 yesterday for the design and fabrication of the medal in three classes, bronze, silver, and gold. The creation of this honor mark is in line with the suggestion of the Foreign Service Committee of the club, which reported that America alone among the nations offered no especial reward for aeronautical heroism or service.

The club, through its Foreign Service Committee co-operating with the Aero Club of France has established a "Service and Information Office" in Paris for the assistance of American airmen.

Will Hylan Answer?

The Murphy candidate, Judge Hylan, for the want of a real argument, has resorted in every speech to generalities of the most flagrant kind.

He has made charges which he has failed to support with facts.

Mayor Mitchel on Thursday challenged Judge Hylan to a public debate. He said:

"I will meet Judge Hylan on the platform of Tammany Hall or I will meet him in the Brooklyn Academy of Music. I will meet him in Cooper Union, or I will meet him on the river front. I demand from Judge Hylan the right that every American has, to meet his slanderer in the open and stand or fall upon the justice of his cause.

"If Judge Hylan can substantiate any charge of wrong-doing the people are entitled to know it, and I am not fit to be their Mayor. If, after making these charges and innuendoes, Judge Hylan cannot substantiate them, he is unfit to be either candidate or Mayor.

"This is a time in the affairs of the nation when Americans are offering up their lives and their blood to prove the sincerity of their beliefs. This is a time when the faker and the hypocrite must seek shelter from an aroused public opinion. If Judge Hylan is not a faker, if he is not a hypocrite, if he really believes what he says, I challenge him to come forward and meet the issue face to face. To make it entirely specific, I challenge him to meet me on Saturday night at any place he names."

It is now up to Judge Hylan to meet Mayor Mitchel or withdraw his scurrilous charges.

HUNTINGTON BOOKS OF VALUE MISSING

Six of Americana Reported to Have Been Taken from Collector's Library.

SOME VOLUMES REGAINED

Thefts Revealed When the Owner Recovered a Costly Work Which Had Been Sold to a Dealer.

Valuable books have been taken from the library of Henry E. Huntington, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, known as the finest private book collection in the world, it was reported yesterday. It is understood that the purloining of the volumes from the $5,000,000 collection was done, at least in part, by a person who is not now in New York, and whose whereabouts is a subject of inquiry by agents acting in the interests of Mr. Huntington. It is reported that at least six books of high value, Americana, were taken from the collection.

Mr. Huntington has recovered some of the missing books. In circles of dealers in valuable books there was told yesterday an interesting story of how Mr. Huntington recovered a valuable specimen of Americana which had been taken from his collection. This story had it that several weeks ago, while Mr. Huntington was at his home in Pasadena, Cal., a man went to a well-known dealer in rare books in this city and offered him the volume, for which the dealer paid $1,000. The man who sold the book was not known to the dealer.

Knowing of Mr. Huntington's love for Americana, this dealer, upon the return of Mr. Huntington to New York a week ago, according to the story, offered the book to Mr. Huntington for $2,000. The story was that Mr. Huntington at once recognized his book and kept it. It was said that it was from the recovery of this book and the subsequent investigation by Mr. Huntington and his librarian, George Watson Cole, that the loss of other books was discovered.

The book dealer concerned in this story denied yesterday that it was correct, although admitting that he had reason to know that Mr. Huntington had lost some books recently. He said it was not true that he had lost $1,000 by being involved in a transaction over one of Mr. Huntington's books.

No Statement for Public.

Mr. Huntington himself was in Newport News, Va., yesterday, and could not be reached to verify the reported loss. Mr. Cole, who was with Mr. Huntington in California, and who returned to New York with him, when asked yesterday about the reported loss from the collection over which he had charge, said: "We have no statement for the public." He added that it was a matter that Mr. Huntington would not wish to discuss, and said further that he had no knowledge that any books were missing from Mr. Huntington's collection. He suggested that Mr. Huntington would be much displeased to have anything published about the affair.

It is said by experts that no collector in the world has ever expended so much money on a book collection as has Mr. Huntington. His purchases in the Hoe collection sale alone amounted to $1,000,000. He paid a somewhat similar sum for the Bridgewater House Library of London last year. This collection was bought en bloc by George D. Smith, who turned it over to Mr. Huntington. It included the matchless Chaucer manuscript. He also purchased the Britwell collection of Americana in London last year. Mr. Huntington is also the possessor of the famed Guttenberg Bible. He has bought a large number of collections en bloc. He paid $1,000,000 for the E. Dwight Church collection of Americana; for a part of the Duke of Devonshire collection of rare books he is said to have paid $900,000, and the Chew Library is said to have cost him $500,000.

His library is known to collectors as a mass of never published letters, memoirs, and manuscripts. In a compartment in the library is the diary of Benjamin Franklin, only part of which has been printed. This copy, once the property of the late John Bigelow, is valued at $100,000. His Americana collection covers completely the whole history of America, beginning with letters of Columbus written when he was planning the voyage which resulted in the discovery of America, and reaching down through Colonial and revolutionary times to the present day. The original manuscript of Herndon's "Life of Lincoln" is in his collection, as is also the manuscript of the memoirs of General William Tecumseh Sherman.

Paid $50,000 for Bible.

The most famous single article in Mr. Huntington's collection is the Guttenberg Bible, for which he paid $50,000. This is known as the "42-line Latin Bible," and was sold to Mr. Huntington from the Hoe collection. It was bought by Mr. Smith for Mr. Huntington against the bidding of Quaritch of London and other famous dealers, who ran the price up. The late J. P. Morgan up to that time held the reputation of being the owner of the costliest book in the world, having paid $29,000 for a Guttenberg Bible.

In acquiring his magnificent collection of 75,000 books Mr. Huntington has become known among all collectors and dealers for his readiness to pay almost any sum for a book he wanted.

In addition to his books, Mr. Huntington is the owner of a number of valuable paintings. He won a suit in London early this year for $100,000 from a firm of art dealers, who sold him a painting for a genuine Romney which was not genuine.

Mr. Huntington's collection is now being sorted and catalogued under the direction of Mr. Cole, who compiled the Church catalogue. He has had a number of experts assisting him in this work. This work led to the discovery that Mr. Huntington possessed a large number of duplicates, and in the last year there have been several sales of these duplicates, the collection retaining the most perfect copy of the particular book.

The coming Anderson sale will be opened by an offering of Huntington duplicates estimated to be worth $100,000.

LEAVES HER CAVE MAN.

Pretty Yonkers Woman Refuses to Live with Husband Under Palisades.

Mary Yahundis, 25 years of age, is one of the prettiest women seen in Special Sessions in Yonkers in some time, but despite that, her husband, John Yahundis, prefers to live alone in a cave on the side of the Palisades rather than in an apartment with his wife. That was brought out at a conference between the couple and Probation Officer Lesnick yesterday. Yahundis insisted that he would live in the cave whether his wife did or not, and the wife was equally insistent that she would live in an apartment in Yonkers whether her husband did or not. The couple finally agreed to separate, John going to his cave and Mary to her apartment.

The couple came from the Bahama Islands about five years ago. Yahundis became a guard in the Interstate Park, near Alpine. He finally decided, his wife says, that as wanted to get back to the "simple life," and picked out a cave for them. The wife went there, stayed two days, and returned to Yonkers.

GUILTY OF RACE RIOT DEATH

Two Whites Sentenced for Killing Negro in East St. Louis.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Oct. 12.—Herbert Wood and Leo Keane were found guilty this afternoon of the murder of Scott Clark, a negro, who died of injuries suffered in the recent race riots in East St. Louis, and the penalty was fixed at fourteen years' imprisonment. Wood and Keane were the first white men to be tried on charges growing out of the race riot.

The jury was out two hours. Ten negroes were found guilty last Sunday, and each got an indeterminate sentence of fourteen years.

Witnesses for the State testified that Wood and Keane were arrested as they were dragging Clark along the street by a rope, which had been fastened about his neck. Keane is only 17 years old.

Next Monday three more white men will be placed on trial on charges growing out of the riot.

The Mexican Problem

By

C. W. Barron

Author of "THE AUDACIOUS WAR"

In 1914 Mr. Barron went to Europe, soon after the breaking out of the War, to find its causes and probable duration. His book "The Audacious War" was the first to clearly set forth the Hohenzollern ambitions and the world peace that must ultimately result from their defeat.

When the Allies' fuel oil base in Mexico seemed endangered, Mr. Barron went to Tampico to investigate the oil situation. He found a larger problem and devoted himself to a study of the question of what would redeem Mexico. The result is his book, "The Mexican Problem."

Don't miss the strong poem, the clear foreword and the illuminating introduction of Dr. Talcott Williams. From these you will learn history and the causes of all wars as you never found them set forth elsewhere.

"The Mexican Problem is to my thinking worth its weight in gold—of all recent books the best by many degrees."

"Since reading Mr. Barron's book, I am conscious of a larger sympathy with the people in Mexico, and of a conviction that they are more worthy of saving of redemption, than I had supposed. One cannot help feeling glad to know that there is so much more of real good in them than previously supposed."

"The book conveys to the reader a knowledge of Mexico and the needs of its people in a way not heretofore adopted by any others attempting to give information on the subject.

"In fact, the whole book is a compendium of terse, trenchant and sententious wisdom on the Mexican Problem."

Facts and Principles Taken from the Book that are Worth Remembering

"The United States can never take its proper attitude in co-operative democracy toward its sister republic until two popular yet absolutely false impressions of Mexico are removed. These popular fallacies are:—

"First, that the natural wealth of Mexico has furnished a base for contending business interests from the United States to promote Mexican quarrels.

* * * * * * "That is the need of Mexico today—opportunity to labor, opportunity for the family, opportunity for food, clothing, better shelter, and better social conditions.

"And this is exactly what American and European capital and organization have brought to Tampico, attracted by its underground wealth, and this is what will ultimately redeem Mexico and forward her people by industrial opportunity."

French Official Photographs

THE first detailed description of the presentation by General Pershing to France's great hero of the magnificent album—a unique memorial of Marshal Joffre's and the French Commission's historic visit to America—will appear in to-morrow's New York American.

An intimate and unusual view of Joffre in the Ecole de Guerre at Paris, where he directs the strategy of France's armies, is one of the features of the account. French official photographs of the ceremony illustrate it.

This memorial, offered by Mr. Hearst, was officially accepted by the French Commission on May 13. It could not be completed before the Commission sailed. So General Pershing officially presented it in behalf of Mr. Hearst when the memorial arrived in France.

SOX ON DEFENSIVE IN WORLD'S SERIES

SALLEE MAY PITCH TODAY

McGraw Will Have No Such Trouble Finding a Pitcher as Confronts Rowland.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Instead of being a hopeless second choice, the Giants will go into the fifth game here tomorrow a favorite in the betting over the White Sox. Manager Rowland is up against the mistake of placing too much confidence in one pitcher. Before this series the Sox leader and, in fact, all the players were sure that Eddie Cicotte could win four games from the Giants if necessary with just a few days rest between the games. When it was hinted that the other Chicago boxmen were not as effective as the knuckle ball artist, the Board of Strategy of the Sox said that they did not worry about that because Cicotte could carry the burden of the pitching without trouble.

Cicotte has not proved to be the wonderfully effective pitcher that the White Sox expected him to be. While his pitching has the novelty of variety and the mystery of a slight rise as it approaches the bat, this new wrinkle was not enough to fool McGraw's batsmen more than once.

Rowland now faces a tough situation, for his confidence in Cicotte must be shaken after the defeat of Tuesday. According to the gossip among the White Sox players, Rowland will send Cicotte against the Giants tomorrow, with Red Russell as the next choice. Russell will be the first selection if the day is cloudy and dark on account of his great speed. This speed, however, is often accompanied by fits of wildness which may result in Red's retreat to the clubhouse in favor of Dave Danforth.

Russell doesn't become such a dangerous factor, for even if he did pitch wonderful ball for a few innings and was derricked before he grew too wild, his relief pitcher Danforth, would probably fail as a rescuer, as Danforth got an unmerciful lacing in the short time he was in the box on Thursday.

Chicago on Defensive Now.

With the Sox pitching staff deplorably weakened and with the famous reversible outfield failing to live up to its reputation, the Sox are now on the defensive instead of wielding the whip hand as they were here a week ago. With the change in the complexion of the series, there has been a change in that intangible thing which baseball men call the break of the game. In the first two games if there were any little streaks of luck to aid one club or another, they usually favored the White Sox. In the second two games, the breaks fell in favor of the Giants.

It is pretty certain that Manager McGraw will send Slim Sallee against the White Sox tomorrow. McGraw figures that the skillful left hand pitching that the Giants are serving to Rowland's men is going to win the series. It is doubtful now if Perritt, the only right hander McGraw was figuring to use, will start a game. For the first time in the history of the game it will be entirely and exclusively a southpaw series.

It will be quite a feather in the cap of Manager McGraw if the Giants triumph, for as a general thing left-handed pitching, except by a few stars, has always been considered too erratic to trust in a crucial baseball test. It looks now, however, that the three portsiders, Benton, Sallee, and Schupp, were going to establish for all time the fame of left-handed pitching.

Herzog Predicted Correctly.

Captain Charley Herzog of the Giants had the prediction about right on the night before the series opened in Chicago, when he said: "This series is going to be won by long-hits and the Giants have the long hitters. All the world's series that I have seen or played in during the past half dozen years have been won by long hits. That's the way the Giants will win."

Thus far Herzog's prediction has been pretty correct. A long hit by Felsch won the first game for the Sox, a long drive by Robertson started the Giants on their way to victory in the third game, and Benny Kauff's homers embellished the fourth game with victory.

New York fans look for a big reversal in form from both Kauff and Zimmerman in this next game. There is no denying the fact that the guying of the South Side fans had both Zimmerman and Kauff so badly up in the air that they were not able to hit a balloon. Now that they both have started to hit before a home crowd it is believed that the nervous spell which affected their work has been broken and that they will be able to successfully withstand the Chicago joshing.

There is, of course, the possibility that the Sox will come through with another victory on their home lot, and that the Giants will take the sixth game back in New York on Monday, necessitating the flipping of a coin for the choice of the deciding game. If they do pull another game out of the series, Russell, as yet an unknown quantity in the world's series pitching, may have a chance. If he is anywhere near normal, Rowland may decide to use Russell, although the players believe that Rowland's great confidence in Cicotte will prompt him to use Eddie once more.

This fifth game is going to be quite a different kind of a contest than the first two games which Chicago saw. The Giants are a revived club since they were here last. Their confidence and aggressiveness has returned and the battle tomorrow promises to be the best of the series.

Chicago Wants Redress.

Chicago's back is up against the wall. Surprise and chagrin suffused the Windy City's world series fandom after the first battle in New York and the whitewashing of the White Sox. Surprise turned to horror and chagrin to dismay when the reluctant Chicago wires and the even more reluctant Chicago newspapers sowed broadcast the dire news that the Sox had turned the other cheek to the foe and had received another fearful blow.

Tonight all of these emotions are crystallized into a frantic yearning for redress. Local adherents of the White Sox appear to accept almost as a personal affront the episodes of the past two days in Gotham, and it is their fervent wish to see the benign and pleasing faces of McGraw's men trodden into Chicago turf under White Sox heels. This they expect to see accomplished tomorrow, and they are prepared to assist by launching a complete line of assorted noises at Heinie Zim, Benny Kauff, et al.

Chicago sportsmen and baseball fans, not always synonymous terms, are particularly aroused for two reasons. One is that they had received positive information from each other that the White Sox were "the class," and that the series would last only four games. The second reason is that certain writers have convinced them that the American League champions were assailed with constant abuse in New York, and battled their way through eighteen innings amid an ear-shattering chorus of shrieks, hisses, boohing, and epithets that rose high above the Polo Grounds and re-echoed from the distant Palisades.

As one who saved his hearing at White Sox Park in the earlier games, only by clapping his palms over his palpitating eardrums, can fervently attest, the contumely heaped upon the visiting National League champions so far exceeded in volume and unfriendly expressions that greeted the Sox in New York as a tiger's roar surpasses a kitten's purr.

The managers and members of the two teams and even the four umpires are going through the series with due courtesy and consideration for each other, which is much more important. The partisanship of the fans, held within due bounds, is the lifeblood of the game, and if they did not care enough about a thing to yell about it, they would not care enough about it to watch it.

The two battling teams reached this city this evening, the Giants landing at 4:50 P. M. and the Sox about three hours later. Both squads appeared in fine spirits and eager for the resumption of the fray. They journeyed overnight, however, from Indian Summer into the heart of Winter. Snow squalls fluttered into and round about Chicago, and the temperature is somewhere around the freezing point tonight.

A prolongation of these conditions over tomorrow would produce a day fitted for football, but not at all suitable for the national pastime, in which dexterity and pliability of the digits count for so much. However, everybody is hoping and rooting for old King Sol to to come to the rescue and warm things up sufficiently so that the contest may be fought under favorable circumstances for both players and onlookers. The Weather Bureau is clement enough to promise rising temperature for Saturday.

WEIGHT MARK FOR McGRATH

Olympic Champion Tosses Heavy Missile 43 Feet 1 1-2 Inches.

Matt McGrath, holder of Olympic and national championships at throwing the 56-pound weight, added further to his laurels at the final outdoor games of the New York Athletic Club held at Travers Island yesterday, when he heaved the missile, competing in the unlimited run and follow style, a distance of 43 feet 1½ inches. This effort eclipses the best previous mark recorded by more than two feet. The A. A. U. record for this style of throwing the "56" is credited to John Flanagan, who heaved the missile a distance of 40 feet 2 inches in 1904.

McGrath justified an assertion made several weeks ago at the last set of games of the Winged Foot organization when in a trial he sent the weight 43 feet 1 inch. On weighing the weight on this occasion it was found that it lacked less than a pound of the required figure and the record was disallowed. Yesterday, however, everything was up to the requirements and McGrath's figure will stand.

In the military division of the day's competition the laurels were divided between the soldiers of Forts Slocum and Hamilton, each representation achieving two victories. Fort Hamilton soldiers showed the way in the half-mile military novice and in the two-lap relay race, while soldiers of Fort Slocum accounted for the equipment race and hand-grenade throwing contest. The latter event furnished a surprise in the downfall of Sergeant J. T. Halley of Fort Slocum, who has been leading in this event since its inception. He started from scratch, conceding point handicaps to his fellow soldiers, and was hopelessly out of the running with 22 points. Private D. Sullivan of Fort Slocum, who had a handicap of 15 points, finished with 43 tallies for first place.

The summaries:

GOLF ON NEARBY LINKS.

While the heavy rains of yesterday afternoon curtailed to a considerable extent the usual holiday golf attractions, many of the clubs of the district got in their scheduled events before the downpour started, which afforded large crowds of local golfers an enjoyable day on the links. At the North Jersey Country Club forty lovers of the royal and ancient game played over the links in a thirty-six holes selected score competition in two classes. In Class A, H. W. Mason led with a card of 80, 9—71, and following him came W. G. Scott, 80, 8—72, and J. G. Berdam, 90, 14—76. Class B honors went to R. Cullis, who returned a card of 102, 30—72. The two next best scores were S. L. Sample, 103, 30—73, and H. N. Swayer, 96, 20—76.

The day at the Montclair Golf Club was interrupted by the heavy rain and the players out on the links were forced to run for shelter. A sweepstakes event was the attraction and the only card returned belonged to J. R. Noyes, showing 103, 12—91.

W. H. Holston and H. V. Gaines led a large field in a four-ball match played on the links of the Wykagyl Country Club yesterday, with a card of 76, 5—71, which was eight strokes in net better than the next best card returned. A. H. Brown and B. O. Wright, 90, 11—79, divided second honors with O. S. Lewis and R. Howland, 85, 6—79, while W. L. Zavier and L. F. Gray were fourth, with 93, 13—80. In the afternoon a four-ball competition against par was held and resulted in a victory for the combination of W. D. O'Brion and H. W. Sykes, with 4 down.

Low net prize in a thirty-six-hole event held on the St. Andrews Golf Club's course yesterday went to A. C. G. Hannesschr, who had a card of 181, 24—157 for the thirty-six holes. The low gross honors were divided between C. V. Benton and A. M. Brandt, who both went around the course in 174. In an eighteen-hole competition C. Pickhart showed superior and finished first with 105, 30—75.

A card of 97, 20—77 gave T. W. Lamar chief net honors yesterday in an eighteen-hole handicap event held on the links of the St. Albans Golf Club. This was one stroke better than the cards returned by A. Bass and W. C. Connors, which showed nets of 78. Bass's full card was 100, 22—78, and Connors's was 108, 30—78. The low gross honors of the day went to M. T. Murray, who had a 91.

Play for the championship of the Dunwoodie Country Club passed the second round as a result of the matches held yesterday. J. P. Downey defeated T. W. Niblett 1 up, S. Roberts defeated R. E. Forbes 5 up and 4 to play, M. G. McDonald defeated S. E. Aiken 3 up and 2 to play, and C. H. Hart defeated T. S. Turner 5 up and 4 to play.

The honors of the Red Cross handicap play held yesterday at the Nassau Country Club fell to G. W. S. Coleman, who completed the eighteen holes with a card of 96, 30—66. E. L. Young was second, with 96, 25—71, and P. Runyon, Jr., was third, with 89, 12—77. Other scores were: I. Richards, Jr., 93, 15—78; G. E. Fehys, 96, 16—80, and John Anderson, 110, 23—87.

IRVIN COBB HEARS CHEERS OF CHICAGO

But Players Miss Welcoming Reception by Leaving the Train at Englewood.

By IRVIN S. COBB.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—A large—despite the casualty reports emanating from New York on Wednesday and Thursday of this week—cheerful and optimistic crowd of Chicago enthusiasts gathered tonight at the La Salle Street depot to greet the White Sox returning from the eastern seaboard with their heads bloodied but ostensibly unbowed. To the reception accorded the local players there was but one drawback. They all got off the special train at Englewood, which is to Chicago what Flatbush is to Brooklyn.

So the newspaper photographers, who had convened to hold a camera carnival or snapshot orgy, with Clarence Rowland's gallant laddybucks for their targets, had to content themselves with taking pictures of Christy Mathewson, who is still regarded as being a figure in the world of sport, despite the fact that he managed the Cincinnati team. Mr. Mathewson, whose club has just won the post-season series for the championship of Ohio, R. F. D. Route No. 4, is looking remarkably well, considering everything. He reports Mr. "Garry" Herrmann, President of the National Commission, as being in excellent voice and spirits. The "Garry" is short for garruious, as you, dear reader, would know for yourelf did you ever hear Mr. Herrmann orate some night and the next morning at a big league banquet or something.

However, that is neither here nor there. The main point is that the stock yards favorites are back on home territory with their chances for taking the big end of the gate money just where they—meaning the chances—were exactly a week ago, and prepare, so their chief medicine man, Kid Gleason, told me this afternoon just as we were pulling out of Elkhart, Ind., to play their heads off tomorrow afternoon.

Snow a Little Previous.

However, the weather indications even as Mr. Gleason spoke were not so goshawful salubrious. During most of the day we ran through a snowstorm which had got its schedule twisted and descended upon the Great Lakes districts several weeks earlier than anybody expected it. When we pulled into this town tonight the prevalent atmosphere appeared to be better suited for Hallowe'en games or Thanksgiving Day revels than for the Indian Summer time pastime of wrestling for a pennant.

The climate, though, was the only chilly thing about the greeting for the White Sox. Chicago folks stand steadfast in their belief that their team can come back and jounce the giblets out of the McGrawites, and they regard the jubilation as having been merely retarded by what occurred during the little jaunt over to New York, and apparently have no doubt as to the final outcome.

There is this to be said for Chicago fandom—it sticks. New York loves a winner. Chicago loves to win, but doesn't entirely lose its regard for the objects of its affections when they chance to be in the dumps. The crowd that would turn out in New York for a team that had gone scoreless for twenty-two painful and consecutive innings would closely resemble a Coroner's jury waiting to view the remains, but I am sure there were a thousand persons of both sexes in the station here tonight when we piled off the cars—persons whose sole business there, seemingly, was to smile upon the White Sox and tell them—the said Sox—how good they were and how certain to win eventually.

It is a wonderful experience for one who has never before enjoyed the situation to travel on the same train with an outfit of championship contenders in the heated midst of a closely debated and badly snarled-up championship series. One learns something then of the terrific strain upon the players—that terrific strain which the professional baseball experts so delight to describe. One has opportunity then to see at first hand and close range how the stress of impending conflict upon the diamond and the thoughts of what has just gone before in the way of defeat and victory affect these highly-strung young athletes.

Appetites Must be Lost!

One observes them in the dining car at breakfast time endeavoring to hide their nervousness by eating triplicate orders of ham and eggs and, then still intent on concealing their real feelings, telling the waiter to bring them ten or twelve griddle cakes. This artifice fools no one. One is informed as to their real state of mind by watching them when they, still wearing a manner which they strive to make appear casual, drink a second large pot of coffee apiece.

One finds them in the club sleeper in such an exhausted condition from the constant tension that they will nap for five or six hours on a stretch, only rousing to polish their scarfpins and dropping right off again. And—most interesting sight of all and most illuminating as offering an insight into the harassing ordeal which must inevitably be their portion in these cruelly racking interludes between games—one peeps into the smoking compartment and sees five or six or seven, or possibly eight—but never more than eight—all grouped about a small table, all with rapt expressions, all with intent lines on their faces, all harkening to their wily old mentor, Kid Gleason, as he instructs them in the rudiments of the great American game; now chiding this one for trying to fill an inside straight, now commending that one for staying out of a raised pot when he had nothing better than a measly little old two pairs, now bidding a third one to go ahead and deal, and not to forget to ante up, either.

Oh, yes, the mental wear and tear upon a team in the midst of series is a frightful thing! I don't see how these men, trained athletes though they be, can stand it.

KNOX FIRST IN ROAD RACE.

Wins Six-Mile Event of Tremont Business Men's Association.

With the aid of the limit handicap allowance of 4 minutes and 30 seconds, J. P. Knox yesterday carried the colors of the Home News A. A. to the front in the six-mile road race of the Tremont Business Men's Association held over a course of three miles, traversed twice, in the Bronx. Knox's time was 38:22. Indications of the popularity of this amateur sport were shown in the large number of entries received for the event, for it was estimated that 150 aspiring runners got away with the starting gun, and they furnished an interesting spectacle to those who saw snatches of the race as the field passed on its two-lap journey of the three-mile course.

The fast time honors went to Otto Laakso of the Kaleva A. C., who started from scratch and finished in seventeenth position in 35:18. The team honors went to the harriers of the St. Christopher Club with a total of 24. Representatives of the Paulist A. C. were second with 38, and third prize went to the St. Anselm A. C. with 58. The order of finish of the first ten runners follows:

J. P. Knox, Home News A. A., (4:30,) 38:22; J. Viberg, Swedish-American A. C., (4:30,) 38:23; Max Bolland, Paulist A. C., (1:45,) 35:56; J. McGuinness, Mohawk A. C., (2:30,) 38:43; P. Smirgilio, Mohawk A. C., (4:15,) 38:32; S. Jackson, St. Christopher Club, (1:45,) 36:05; C. Lauth, unattached, (2:45,) 37:08; P. A. Hohl, Hollywood Inn A. A., (3:15,) 37:43; F. Mosher, Pennant A. C., (4:30,) 39:07; P. Tourlidis, unattached (2:45,) 37:23.

MINOR GAMES RULE TODAY.

Prominent Elevens Pitted Against Lesser Teams on Gridiron.

Most of the more prominent football elevens of the East are meeting elevens of less prominence today in what seems the first Saturday of practice games of the season. Brown and Georgetown, two mighty teams, were in action Thursday, and will not play again until next week. Georgetown, with Gilroy and McQuade in the back field, seems again to have an outfit of formidable strength, one which may have to be reckoned with at the end of the season if any honors are to be distributed at that time.

West Point probably has the hardest game of the day to take its attention. Its heavy, powerful team is to play the Virginia Military Institute, for years termed the West Point of the South, because of its military standing, however, and not because of its football strength. This season the Virginia cadets have an unusually strong eleven, and hope to make a bid for victory against Elmer Q. Oliphant and the rest of the stars on the West Point team. The Virginia boys arrived in New York last night, and were quartered here, but will go to West Point this morning.

Harvard's "informal" eleven will get another chance to prove its prowess today, when it meets the Naval Reserve team at Cambridge. Several of the players who were practicing on the Harvard 'Varsity have joined some branch of the service in the last week, but young Horween is left, and Harvard enthusiasts believe that in this youngster Harvard has enough power to sweep aside any of the opposing teams which invade Crimson territory.

Dartmouth expects no great trouble against Middlebury. However, Middlebury has been able to bring out several strong teams in the past, and in this unusual season, in which most of the colleges are building teams out of new material, Middlebury might just as well rush to the fore as any other eleven.

West Virginia had such success against the Navy last week that it will start against Carlisle today with supreme confidence. The Navy plays Maryland State, and should find no such opposition as obliterated a twelve-year record for Gil Dobie last Saturday. Most of the other big teams have no powerful opponents to meet.

GOLF MEDAL TO NEWTON.

Little-Known Player Gets Staten Island Title Leadership.

Another golfer, comparatively unknown in a competitive way, made a decided bid for the Staten Island golf championship in the qualifying round and match play of that tournament, held at the Richmond County Country Club yesterday. He was F. C. Newton of Richmond County, and he won the qualifying medal with a well-balanced card of 82, 41 out and 41 in. In all its eighteen years of competition the Staten Island title affair invariably provides a dark horse. Newton was that party yesterday. After he had acquired the medal from a field of seventy-five performers he met B. S. Battone of Fox Hills in the first round of match play and disposed of Battone by 4 up and 3 to play.

A. L. Walker, Jr., of Richmond County, present national interscholastic champion, had the second best qualifying score, and probably the hardest match of the day, in his first round, since he was pitted against M. L. Fearey of Richmond County, the present champion. Young Walker had 48, 37—85 in his morning journey, and then had to go to the seventeenth green to keep Fearey out of the running and to win, 2 and 1. Walker was always up on his opponent, however.

A. F. Kammer of Fox Hills, who had won the Staten Island title four times, had a qualifying card of 45, 41—86, and then eliminated J. W. McMenany of Fox Hills at 5 and 4. W. Roy Barnhill of Fox Hills, another title seeker for some time in this fixture, had an early card of 49, 39—88, but did immeasurably better in disposing of E. De Planque at 3 and 1. Others successful in the championship flight were A. C. Palmer of Fox Hills, E. H. Armstrong of Fox Hills, H. R. Catlin of Richmond County, and L. G. Spindler of Fox Hills, which gives Fox Hills a predominance of players in the honor division. Enough players were on hand to make up four sixteens, which will furnish amusement for the contestants today and tomorrow. The qualifying scores of the first sixteen follow:

Championship Sixteen, First Round—F. C. Newton defeated B. S. Battone, 4 and 3; A. F. Kammer defeated J. W. McMenany, 5 and 4; W. Roy Barnhill defeated E. De Planque, 3 and 1; A. C. Palmer won from W. P. Lough by default; A. L. Walker, Jr., defeated M. L. Fearey, 2 and 1; E. H. Armstrong defeated Kenneth Twining, 1 up; H. R. Catlin won from H. R. Griffith by default; L. G. Spindler defeated B. T. Allen, 3 and 2.

Second Sixteen, First Round—M. J. Pitou, Richmond County, defeated J. R. Ellerman, Richmond County, 1 up; A. E. Goddard, Richmond County, defeated J. K. McCarthy, Fox Hills, 1 up; F. Reilley, Fox Hills, won from J. O. Liggett, Richmond County, by default; W. C. Van Clief, Richmond County, defeated J. H. Turner, Fox Hills, 2 and 1; O. L. Williams, Richmond County, defeated A. J. Denico, Fox Hills, 7 and 6; Frank Allaire, Fox Hills, defeated M. W. Gaines, Richmond County, 3 and 1; W. E. Rochan, Richmond County, defeated J. D. Barnhill, Fox Hills, 2 and 1; E. A. Hadlock, Fox Hills, won from W. S. Van Clief, Richmond County, by default.

MACKIE BROTHERS BEATEN.

Isaac and Dan Lose to Kerrigan and McNamara by 5 and 3.

After covering the many acres of the Century Country Club with rapid strides yesterday, Tom Kerrigan of Siwanoy and Tom McNamara of Taplow defeated Isaac Mackie of Canoe Brook and Dan Mackie of Century at the sixteenth green of an eighteen-hole four-ball match. The rain had just started when the quartet of professionals reached the sixteenth and at the same time it was discovered that Kerrigan and McNamara were leading by 5 and 3, so the match ended right there and the large gallery outsprinted the players to the clubhouse and shelter. Kerrigan did the best of the four. He had an approximate 68 for the sixteen holes, while McNamara went that far in 70. Neither of the Mackie brothers could do as well as McNamara.

BROWN IS WINNER OVER HOLY CROSS

Straight Football Enables Providence Team to Take Contest by 27 to 6 Score.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 12.—Brown won its third game of the season here today by crushing Holy Cross under a score of 27 to 6. The Brunonians scored their first touchdown on straight football with Brooks and Coulter carrying the ball through the line. With the ball on the four-yard line Brooks smashed through the centre left tackle for a touchdown. Gordon kicked the goal.

During the second period the play switched back and forth until only three minutes to play, when Brown opened up with a forward pass, Gordon to Brooks, bringing the ball to the Holy Cross twenty-eight-yard line. Brooks here kicked the ball through the uprights for three points.

In the third period Daley, the Holy Cross full back, attempted a drop kick, but Armstrong of Brown picked up the ball and ran seventy-five yards for a touchdown. After an exchange of kicks Coulter recovered a fumble and ran thirty yards for a touchdown.

In the fourth period, with the ball on the Holy Cross thirty-yard line a forward pass of fifteen yards put Coulter in a position to add three points to the score. Just before time was called Conway blocked a bunt on Brown's ten-yard line and scored a touchdown for the purple.

FORDHAM WANTS REVENGE.

Will Meet Norwich, Which Won in 1912, 28 to 0, Here Today.

Fordham will meet Norwich University on Fordham Field this afternoon. The Maroon team has a score to settle, as the Vermonters, in their last visit in 1912, triumphed by a score of 28 to 0. Fordham's "war" eleven is pointed to avenge this defeat today.

Coach McCaffery gave the players a long but light workout yesterday afternoon. Brennan practiced kicking out to Frisch and Dempsey and several kick-offs were attempted. Both teams were drilled in formations for nearly an hour, with Brennan directing the plays from quarter. Coach McCaffery was undecided last night as to whether Bill Erwig would play in today's game. If Fordham can keep ahead in the game the back will not be used in order to save him for the rest of the season.

The team was kept on the field during the afternoon to get accustomed to the adverse weather conditions which will probably prevail this afternoon.

Fordham will line up as follows:

The Fordham squad, except for a few substitutes, is in good condition. The game will start at 3 P. M.

WHITE VICTOR AT SHAWNEE.

Flushing Leader Wins Match, but Storm Stops Second Round.

SHAWNEE, Oct. 12.—Golfers were fortunate in finishing one round of the match play of the invitation tournament on the links of the Shawnee Country Club today before one of the worst storms that has hit this place in years made further play impossible. Under the circumstances, the committee postponed the second round matches in four eights until tomorrow. Winners in the first division were Gardiner W. White of Flushing, who won the medal yesterday; Alec Coles of the home club, Reginald S. Worthington, another Shawnee man, and Max H. Behr of Baltusrol.

The last named had a peculiar round in his match with S. H. Ivison of Cherry Valley. Trouble in the early stages prevented Behr from doing better than 46 to the turn, but as his opponent was having trouble as well, the Baltusrol man started the inward journey with a comfortable lead. Throughout the last nine, however, the former New Jersey champion never made a slip, and, after winning the match by 7 up and 5 to play, he continued on, getting the last nine in 36.

Because White hashed several holes going out, he found himself all even with F. C. Hall of Montclair. The latter was off his drive, but usually made amends with good approaches and deadly putting. There was no withstanding White coming home, the Flushing man winning 5 straight holes and the match by 5 up and 4.

The summary of the first two eights:

First Eight.—First Round—Max Behr, Baltusrol, beat S. H. Ivison, Cherry Valley, 7 up and 5 to play; Reginald S. Worthington beat Dan P. Healy, New York, 2 up and 1 to play; Alec Coles, Shawnee, beat C. F. Van Vleck, Baltusrol, 3 up and 2 to play; Gardiner W. White, Flushing, beat F. C. Hall, Montclair, 5 up and 4 to play.

Second Eight.—First Round—G. W. Statzell, Jr., Aronimink, beat F. J. Sheble, Shawnee, 1 up; Captain E. M. Sawtelle, Englewood, beat G. A. Fogarty, Essex County, 1 up; George Rodenbaugh, Shawnee, beat C. C. Worthington, Shawnee, 2 up and 1 to play; H. B. Newton, Frankford, beat C. M. Hicks, Atlantic City, 5 up and 4 to play.

Boxing Bouts Tonight.

MANY UPSETS AT LAUREL.

Malheur Pays $129.10 for $2 Ticket in Seventh Race.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 12.—Rain not only spoiled the Columbus Handicap, which had attracted a large entry of fine sprinters, but made it difficult for those who braved the weather today to pick winners. In the handicap Joseph E. Widener's Naturalist was overlooked in the small field of five, but this imported son of Rabelais was at home in the sloppy going, and, taking the track soon after the break, kicked the mud in the faces of the other contestants throughout. Ed Cudihee, strongly played because of his mud-running reputation, was outrun all the way, and finished outside the money. W. S. Kilmer's Tom McTaggart chased the winner home, and Emil Herz's Harvest King dropped into third place.

There were greater surprises than the victory of Naturalist, which paid 16 to 1. A day which alternated the victories of favorites with those of rank outsiders concluded with the greatest shock of all when L. G. Miller's Malheur captured the seventh race at a mile and an eighth. ## INVENT NEW TENNIS GAME.

Women Add Men to Shuffle Doubles in Tourney.

Tennis in a new and complex garb was the feature of the tournament for the United States National Lawn Tennis Ambulance Fund at the New York Lawn Tennis Club yesterday. Shuffle doubles was invented not long ago, but now there has been added to the repertoire of the game a progressive shuffle mixed doubles which is founded on the progressive principle as applied to cards. Five games are played in each match, the winners on the first court advancing to the second court and pairing with the losers. This innovation proved attractive to the twenty-two participants, even though it did not provide a real test of skill.

The members of the New York Lawn Tennis Club made a highly creditable showing in aid of the Red Cross, for $500 was raised. Some time ago the Hamilton Grange Tennis Club raised $500 on the condition that the New York Club provide an equal amount for the equipping of an ambulance. The success of the undertaking means that one ambulance at the front in France will bear the name of the New York Club on one side and that of Hamilton Grange on the other.

Miss Marie Wagner, who has been having remarkable success in the shuffle doubles tournaments which have been held thus far, was the victor among the women yesterday, her total of points being 43. Mrs. W. H. Pritchard and Mrs. Bernard Stenz were tied for second, with 35 points each. Among the men Elliott Binzen of Fordham and H. Arnold tied for the first place, each having 51 points.

SABINE FERNLIKE JUDGED BEST DOG

Bronx County Kennel Club Has Record Entry of 679 for One-Day Show.

There were more dogs in Bronx County yesterday than ever before, according to Wilbur H. Purcell, statistician of canines. They were not roaming at large around the thickly populated avenues of this thriving district, but were comfortably benched in the old Second Battery Armory at Tremont and Bathgate Avenues for the second annual show of the Bronx County Kennel Club. On the two floors of the building there were 679 high-class specimens of man's best friend, and this constituted a record number for a one-day exhibition, the previous best standing to the credit of the Nassau County Kennel Club when that organization held its first show at Belmont Park.

International complications nearly came about as a consequence of the crowding caused by the large entry. The sporting dogs were on the ground floor with the judging ring for the scrappy Irish terriers next to that in which the English setters showed off their fine points. When the aggressive terriers got tired of snapping at each other some of them turned Sinn Feiners and dashed under the ropes for a nibble at their traditional enemies in the adjoining ring. No casualties were recorded, however, and in all probability the terriers were inspired with the notion that an exhibition of their fighting nature would impress the judge in their favor.

The Irish breed was represented by some very fine dogs, and the Holmehill Kennels' ch. Wrose Badger, which gained the award in winners, was fit to hold his own in any company. Previous to being shown in this country he had carned championship certificates in England and Canada, and only last Saturday achieved a triple crown by completing his United States championship at Danbury. Wrose Badger was in wonderful condition for this season of the year, and this aided him in scoring over John Keating's Crow Gill Teddy, which had won in the limit class.

In the judging for the best dog in the show ch. Wrose Badger and some exceedingly smart Airedales were overlooked, the supreme honor going to Thomas Rice Varick's smooth fox terrier, Sabine Fernlike, which showed such quality that she was unopposed in the winners bitches division of her class. Another unnoticed in the competition for the best in the show was the Briergate Kennels' Briergate Brightbeauty, which many experts insist is the best female Airedale in the country. She achieved distinction in her own breed, however, by defeating in the winners' class Elms Primus, which was adjudged the best of all breeds at the Danbury show.

At the Fulton Theatre last night the ancient Hibernian part, known to the poet as O'Time, actually did turn backward in his flight. In the olden days, longer ago than any one now alive can remember, many plays centred in the erring and unfortunate mother who, having abandoned her baby to strangers, turns up in their household later to encounter her child and be beset by a sudden and overwhelming attack of Mother Love. One version of the fable was called "Miss Multon," and was long extant in the twice-a-day-and-every-week. "Zaza," the dazzling première of which is still remembered by a few straggling graybeards, was a closely related variant. Florence Roberts, who for some inscrutable reason periodically blows in upon Broadway with a play that she hopes to make popular in the West, has now given us "The Claim."

She is a barroom singer in the Bigbug District of Arizona, and, like other heroines of the sort, is More to be Pitied than Scorned. In her racy, case-hardened way, she says that she left her baby on Muldoon's bar because the others were all too wet; but, even though the truth does not appear until the great scene of the third act, the sapient audience knows all along that she was driven to the deed by desperate poverty and the hunger of the child.

In these later years, to which the play introduces us, she is once more desperate, and has framed up a plot by which she hopes to blackmail the adoptive parent out of $20,000. Again the clairvoyant audience in its heart knows the truth. She wants to escape from her degraded life and bestow her voice, which all-night singing in barrooms has rendered so exquisite, upon grand opera. With such noble and well-conceived ambitions it is once again foreseen that when she encounters the child she will feel the full beauty and holiness of motherhood and stagger forth heroically into the night minus the $20,000 and plus the baby. She does, she does. Even in the youth of Richard Mansfield, Prince Karl celebrated the scene in song. The Mother and Her Child Were There.

The adoptive father is a rich but sentimental bachelor. Once when drunk in Flagstaff, hard by in the Bigbug district, he heard her sing "Annie Laurie," and was raised by that dynamic melody to the Heights. Now, while still unknown to each other as blackmailer and blackmailee, the two meet and "Annie Laurie" is sung again—to him and to the audience. Yes, "Annie Laurie." If there is a fault in the handling of the dramatic material it is that, with this touching incident, which happens in the first act, the audience, tried and true, knows what the end will be. It will be happy. After much agony and suspense the mother will emerge pure gold, and then, of course, the sentimental miner chap will marry her.

Charles Kenyon, part author of the present offering, has appeared before on Broadway as author of "Kindling." It was a sociological melodrama, and it enlisted the interest of a group of writer fellows who boosted it as the real thing in uplift. Certainly "Kindling" had a fresh idea, and it was developed with a genuine if crude and formless vigor. "The Claim" is technically far more even and sustained, though it does spill the beans in Act I., and it is possible that it will meet with prosperity out West among the Bigbugs and Flagstaffs. That is a question upon which Miss Roberts is an expert. But why Broadway? Why Broadway?

Roosevelt's Trainer Reticent.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 12.—Jack Cooper declined tonight to say a word about Colonel Theodore Roosevelt other than the Colonel was at his health farm for relaxation and to tone up. Cooper, a former pugilist, for the last twenty-five years has been trainer and physical culture expert.

HARRY LAUDER TELLS WAR FRONT HORRORS

WILL TALK TO U.S. SOLDIERS

Concert Tour Dates to be Interspersed with War Lectures for the Y. M. C. A.

Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, arrived yesterday from England to deliver lectures on what he saw at the battlefront in Flanders and France under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and to make a concert tour of the United States under the management of William Morris. He will visit the soldiers in camp at Hempstead, Yaphank and Wrightstown next week and tell them what they must face in France and what the Huns have done to obliterate civilization from the face of the earth.

Mr. Lauder's first appearance in New York will be as a lecturer at the Hippodrome on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 21, and his first theatrical performance will be at the Lexington Theatre on Oct. 22.

Mr. Lauder did not wear his usual kilts when he arrived yesterday, and was not met by the Scotch pipers who always welcome him in the port. Since his last visit to New York he has lost his only son, John, a captain in the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, who was killed in action in France.

"Americans do not understand what the war means," said Mr. Lauder to reporters, "because they are more than 3,000 miles away and cannot comprehend the frightfulness of the acts committed by the Huns. When they shall have seen the transports return to the United States and have watched the mutilated and maimed men hobble down the gangway, the blind soldiers led by their mates, and the paralysed and shell-shocked wrecks of humanity carried on stretchers, then they will realize what the war means to those who have been through the fire.

"Read all you can find and look at all the pictures obtainable of the havoc that has been done by earthquake, cyclone, and volcanic eruption in the past and you will not find anything that can compare with the destruction wrought by the Hun. It is so hellish that it outdoes the elements of God in the might of their wrath.

"Do not think that the Americans are going into this war for France or for England. You are going into it for yourselves and your wives and families. There is no talk of peace among the soldiers fighting in France and Flanders. They talk of the 'push.' No man asks or wonders when the war will end. Their only thought is what shall we do tomorrow. Five transports landed troops from America the day before I left my home, and I saw 22,000 soldiers pass my house; as fine a body of men as the sun ever shone upon.

"In one of our hospitals I saw a poor fellow who had one eye and half of his face blown away, and he talked with his mouth twisted up toward his ear. I asked how he received his frightful injuries, and he replied that it was through picking up a fountain pen in a German dugout just after it was captured. 'I was one of the first over the top,' said this remnant of a human, 'and as I fell forward in the dugout from which the Germans had just fled rather hurriedly, I noticed a fountain pen on the floor and put it into my pocket. Two days later I wanted to write a letter home to my wife and children and took the pen out to use it instead of a pencil. As I unscrewed the cap there was a violent explosion, and half of my face was blown clean off, as you see now.'

"That is one of the tricks the Huns have played us in this war. The crimes committed by the enemy are beyond description. There is only one hope in the world for the destruction of this blighting force of evil, and that lies in the united effort of the English-speaking peoples. When the American soldiers go into the trenches over there they are going to meet an enemy whose motto is 'Mercy to none.'

"I will try to give you a faint idea of what the destruction in France means. You are riding in a military automobile along a road made all but impassable by deep shell holes, pieces of charred wood, and loose stones. The officer who is escorting you explains that you are passing over the site on which three months ago there was a thriving village of 3,000 inhabitants. All that remains are a few curbstones that mark the former location of sidewalks. The town with its people have been wiped out by the Hun as if they had never been.

"On my visits to the front I saw the men in the trenches, in the hospitals, in the rest camps at the rear of the fighting lines, under all conditions, and never heard a complaint. They are all going to see it through, because every man there knows that Prussian militarism must be ended before peace can come to the world once more.

"I have here a piece of barbed wire which I obtained from a trench before Arras. It is six inches long and has twenty-four barbs, which hold a piece of tartan so firmly that it cannot be torn away except in threads. That little shred of cloth is all that remains of a Highland soldier who was hit by a shell as he struck the entanglements.

"I could tell you of deeds that I have seen and heard of committed by the Hun that would haunt your sleep, and not one word of exaggeration. By the memory of my boy who laid down his life for the cause you may rely upon it that I would not tell a lie.

"The £1,000,000 fund for which I am collecting," Mr. Lauder went on, "will be devoted to helping soldiers after the war who cannot help themselves. The fortunate ones who emerge from it scathless will not need any assistance to earn a living, and the blind soldiers are being taken care of by a special fund. Our intention is to get the maimed who are still able to attend to their trades and set them up in business. The money will be given to them, not lent. The shell-shocked and paralyzed men who are unable to work will have their rent paid for life, and they can keep their pensions from the Government to buy food. These men will be sent back to their native towns and arrangements made to have them taken out for an hour or two a day in go-chairs, so that they may see the trees and the sunshine once more. We do not want their lives to be all drab indoors."

Mr. Lauder was accompanied to this country by his wife and his brother-in-law, Thomas Vallance. The comedian looks older and thinner than when he was here last, and showed deep emotion when he spoke of the death of his son, for whom he had such great hopes. He walks with a cane because of a touch of rheumatism he contracted while visiting the trenches in Flanders, which are never dry, even in midsummer.

URGES PERMANENT ANGLO-AMERICAN UNITY

London Spectator Says Co-operation After War Is Vital to World's Peace and Progress.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Discussing an Anglo-American basis of peace, The Spectator, after expressing satisfaction at American military help, says:

"What we want to emphasize is the supreme importance of continuing these happy relations with America after the war, not merely for the sake of our own security, but for the sake of the world's peace. We do not want a formal alliance, but there must be some solid nucleus for the organization of man's pacific tendencies. This, we think, can best be found, not in a league of nations, but in an understanding between Great Britain and America.

"Let it be the guiding maxim of every British and Dominion Government that in no circumstances whatever must they fail to compromise any petty passing difference that may arise between them and the Administration at Washington. We do not doubt for a moment the willingness of the American people to respond in the same spirit. Were the British and American democracies to make clear to the world after the war that they are resolved to act on parallel lines for the maintenance of peace they would gain the support of all other democratic nations, to such purpose that no power would dare challenge the verdict of humanity."

The Spectator goes on to discuss the Venezuelan affair of 1902. It recalls that it was the personal intervention of the Kaiser while visiting Sandringham which induced England to adopt a policy inimical to the United States.

"Our Foreign Office was saved from the consequence of its blazing indiscretion by the firmness and wisdom of the American President," it goes on. "This is only one among the debts of gratitude we owe Colonel Roosevelt, but this debt in particular should never have been incurred. The Foreign Office had risked our friendship with America and our reputation as upholders of a sane and honest foreign policy to gain a smile from the German Emperor and a few thousands from defaulting Venezuelans."

Concluding, The Spectator says:

"We regard continued co-operation of the English-speaking peoples as absolutely vital to the peace and progress of the world. To the maintenance of friendship with America we should subordinate every development of foreign policy, however tempting momentary advantages might appear. The British and American peoples acting together may do much to convert the dream of a universal lasting peace into reality. There would be little hope of that if the two peoples united by the war were to fall apart again when the war came to an end."

COMPLAIN OF SPECULATORS.

Hippodrome Managers Ask Woods to Detail Detectives.

The management of the Hippodrome has appealed to Police Commissioner Woods to suggest a plan whereby the many ticket speculators who operate in front of the Hippodrome can be made to comply with the law. The fact that Sixth Avenue divides two police precincts at this point enables the speculators to stand in the street and beckon to passersby, at the same time remaining immune from police interference. Prospective customers are invited into nearby cigar and stationery stores and the actual transaction is concluded within the building.

The Hippodrome management, in a letter to Mr. Woods, suggests a system of co-operation between the police of the two precincts or the use of plainclothes men not limited by precinct borders.

SUE OVER T. F. RYAN'S TAXES

Virginia Taxpayers Fight Proposed Compromise Agreement.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 12.—Thirty-three taxpayers of Nelson County brought suit today attacking the compromise agreement proposed by county officials as to the amount of Thomas F. Ryan's back taxes, long the subject of controversy.

The taxpayers' suit takes the form of an action to compel the County Treasurer and former Treasurer to deliver $239,250, which, it is alleged, is rightfully due the county.

WHERE DOES GOVERNOR WHITMAN STAND?

This is war time. In war time men do things differently; their customs, many of their rules of conduct, are modified. This is true in politics. It is particularly true of party regularity. Congress has given the country a splendid example. It forgot the strifes of politics, Republican Senators joined with Democratic Senators, Republican Representatives with Democratic Representatives, as one party giving solid support to the Government, responding to the appeals of the President, and granting to the Administration, Democratic though it be, the authority and the vast supplies of money needed for the prosecution of the war. All over the country the party line has been effaced, patriotism displaces party regularity.

It is not so in this city. There are thousands of Republicans, many party leaders, who bow to party regularity above any consideration of public welfare, and fatuously cling to the perfectly hopeless candidacy of Mr. BENNETT because in the rump primary he at length, after much confusion, was declared to be the Republican nominee, triumphing over Mr. MITCHEL. These Republicans are out of harmony with the men of their party throughout the country. They are striving to do the city immense harm by bringing about the election of Judge HYLAN as Mayor and restoring the old corrupt, slovenly, wasteful, shameful conditions of Tammany rule in New York.

CHARLES S. WHITMAN, Governor of the State, is the Republican leader in New York. Before the primaries he committed himself to the Fusion cause, to the re-election of Mayor MITCHEL. But since Mr. BENNETT was declared to be the candidate of the Republican Party Mr. WHITMAN, so far as we can ascertain, has not said a word. Where does he stand? We know that he is a very regular Republican. To paraphrase Colonel INGERSOLL's observation, he bows down before the Republican symbol on the ballot in adoration equaled only by that of the Chinese laundryman as he bows down before his joss. But is it of more importance that a Republican voter in this city, at the coming election, should put his mark opposite the eagle than it is that he should vote for clean government, for the deliverance of the city from the Tammany shame and disgrace that menace it? Is it wise for Mr. WHITMAN to make himself a silent accomplice in the conspiracy of the iron-bound regulars to turn the city over to Tammany?

Four years ago, when Mr. MITCHEL was the Fusion candidate for Mayor, Mr. WHITMAN was nominated for District Attorney on the same ticket. To the Chairman of the Fusion Municipal Committee Mr. WHITMAN wrote a letter, dated Aug. 7, 1913, and published in THE TIMES of the next day, in which he said:

> I accept the Fusion nomination for District Attorney and will exert every effort to elect the entire anti-Tammany ticket. From the first my determination has been to do nothing to weaken the Fusion movement. The real question has been how to lend it my most effective efforts. * * * The Republican Party, in the constitutional convention which provided that municipal elections should be separated from State elections, recognized the principle that municipal government should be divorced from party government. The willingness of the Republican Party to participate in the union of citizens for the common good was based upon a recognition of this principle, and the Republican Party deserves great credit, with its 180,000 enrolled voters, in placing the general welfare above party advantage. The Republican Party best serves itself in supporting the Fusion movement, for by so doing it commands the respect of the community. It is stronger in the State and Union for joining forces with all good citizens, regardless of party, against corruption in the City of New York than by selfishly insisting upon the selection of any particular Republican for any particular office. The purpose of the Fusion Committee was to bring about concerted action to secure the most efficient and honest government possible for the City of New York. The union of all citizens in this common cause is of far greater importance than a division among parties of offices or the distribution of patronage.

Mr. WHITMAN then recognized "the principle that municipal government should be divorced from party government." Is not that principle now of equal or even greater validity? Does Mr. WHITMAN still recognize that principle? His silence embarrasses and harms the Fusion cause, it imperils the election of Mr. MITCHEL. An outspoken pronouncement from the Governor would rescue thousands of Republicans and hundreds of Republican organizations in this city from their venture into darkness and folly, from their sterile devotion to a regularity that can lead only to a Tammany victory. It would rally these Republicans and these Republican clubs and organizations to the support of the Fusion candidates.

Mr. WHITMAN may have hopes and ambitions for next year. He must depend upon the party primary. Possibly he reasons that regularity now is a necessary condition to success in the primaries next year. That is not big politics, wise politics, it would be the politics of pettiness and of folly. Would the Republicans of this city, of this State, be likely to show any enthusiasm for a party leader who had by his silence made CHARLES F. MURPHY the overlord of this great city of more than 5,000,000 people? With all earnestness and with the sincere desire to see Governor WHITMAN place himself where he belongs, we appeal to him to repeat now the expression of assent to the principle of nonpartisan municipal government which he so effectively sustained four years ago. We ask him as the Republican leader to appeal to the Republicans in this city to give their support to the Fusion candidates, whose re-election will assure to New York a continuance of the best government it has ever had.

LIBERTY LOAN SLACKERS.

Just fancy how the soldiers in the cantonments must feel as they read that subscriptions to the Liberty Loan are piling up at the rate of one-half what they ought to on an average. Among themselves the soldiers have subscribed some two millions, which is just two millions more than might have been asked of them on a strict calculation of their duty. While the soldiers are sacrificing their futures and preparing to risk their lives, the country is doing half what it ought if it is to keep its contract to clothe, feed, and arm the defenders of democracy. It sounds like a betrayal of trust. Fancy once more how any American who has not bought his bonds must, or at least should, feel as he reads that Delphos, Ohio, a little town whose population consists almost entirely of German-Americans, subscribed $100,000 at a single meeting on Thursday.

The clocks which tell the total of the deficiency in the subscriptions for the loan tell only half the story. There are oversubscriptions as well as undersubscriptions, although they must be looked for in the country. Cold Springs, N. Y., had subscribed 149 per cent. of its quota when the report was published, and it is not to be supposed that a town like that stops merely because it has done its duty, and more. Cazenovia's 108 per cent. is worthy of print. The headquarters would do well to start an honor roll to be seen beside the clocks, which now it is painful to look at. It is a shameful thing to say that there are few signs of sacrifice for the sake of saving democracy. Every one of our allies is suffering in a manner of which we have experienced nothing, and which we can hope to escape altogether only by present sacrifice. Their taxes, their costs, their loans, the cost of their necessities make ours look paltry. Meanwhile, we do not even take up a good investment by economies which would be good for most of us, and burdensome to none. It is possible for soldiers to come through a campaign unharmed, as by a miracle. The American who holds no Liberty bonds, either now or when this war is over, ought to be a marked man, under suspicion either of his sanity or his loyalty. Inability to take a bond is not an excuse, unless it is proved, and the burden of proof ought to lie on the man or woman who ought to take the bond, and not on those who ask that the bond shall be taken.

THE RAILWAY OUTLOOK.

It is good news from "over there" when we read that the German railways are wearing out and becoming unequal to demands upon them. Also it would seem that it is good news when the same conditions are reported of our own railways. How otherwise is to be explained the inaction of those who hold the fate of our railways in their hands while the physical deterioration and financial distress of the railways are reported on every hand? One thing is sure—no part of responsibility for the situation rests upon the railways. They have accommodated themselves to every demand, doing all that is ordered, even to the extent of carrying nearly a million men and materials for building sixteen military cities at half the lawful rate for all business done by land grant railroads. Their earnings are naturally at the lowest when their efficiency and all their costs are highest.

Excuses regarding the misadventures by which this has happened are enraging. It has been foreseen for years, and has been [illegible] by those who should have seen it first. Even so lately as last June the Interstate Commission shut its eyes to the truth, and said that in this current month it would reconsider its decision, if then it should seem necessary. It would be interesting to know how great the necessity must be to overcome the pride of opinion which alone, it would seem, prevents the Commission's perception of what is so plain to others. It is only an incident in the condition which confronts the country that nineteen railways have lost a billion dollars in the values of their securities. That perhaps might be the concern of the unfortunate security holders, and a cause of joy to some others. But nobody could rejoice that the railways are unable to buy themselves equipment because of the deterioration of their credit as measured by the declines in their securities. Everybody's profits and the country's security depend upon the railways being equal to demands upon them, but their tracks and plants are wearing out, with no sign that their masters will allow them to help themselves.

Responsibility cannot be confined to the Interstate Commission now. Its responsibility dates further back, but the acutest blame falls upon those who dealt the final blow at the latest moment. Congress is to blame for ordering an increase of wages by $62,000,000 without ordering an increase of rates in the same measure. A mere hint to the Commission of what Congress thought about it would have given the excuse which the Commission needs for doing what some of its members know ought to be done. Neither can the country itself escape its share of the blame. The country's offering of billions of Liberty bonds has taken the credit market away from the railways at the very moment that the distress of the railways reacts unfavorably upon the Liberty Loan itself. It is not permissible to ask for a billion of Government bonds for the railways in competition with the Liberty Loan.

The estimate that the railways need a billion a year is out of date. They need more, and they need it for other reasons than the rescue of the shareholders of the railways. They ought to get the relief they need in the form in which they have asked for it. Mere permission to raise their rates in proportion either to their costs or to their efficiency is the appropriate economic remedy. It would be a bitter dose for those who have hardened their hearts to the railways' humble plea. But they should be made to take it for their own good as well as for the relief of the railways. Thereafter the regulators would remember that there are two sides to regulation, and that protection of the railways and the country is a duty as much as protection of shippers. The problem has passed beyond solution by the railways, even beyond the Commission and Congress. It is in the hands of all serious-minded men who have noted what has been done to the railways and their exemplary conduct under their persecution.

7 A. M. TO 10:30 P. M.; LAST CALL.

It's a heartbreaking hardship, isn't it, for a citizen to take the trouble to find out his registration place and actually go there and register? The British and French soldiers in Flanders don't have to endure anything as severe as that. And our civic slackers keep away from the polls, we are told, because all their thought is on the war. That is the only explanation—and it is thinner than the ghost of a gossamer thread—of the strange reluctance of the voters, the intelligent, the independent, the special friends of civilized city government, the eager partisans of freedom, to qualify themselves to vote for civilized city government and for the loyal support of the United States by New York in the war of freedom.

We are so deeply interested in the war that we can't bother about protecting ourselves from being plundered. The burglar works unmolested. He is not wholly absorbed by the war. Why shouldn't he get "the swag" from the lazy householder?

We are so deeply interested in the war that we can't bother about a mere municipal election, the control for good or evil of the chief city of America. A fine lot of active soldiers of democracy we must be, judging from the haste we have shown to register.

Tammany, which shudders so at experts, is the master expert on registration. In every district it knows every voter it can depend upon. It sees that he registers if he is physically capable of transportation. It keeps tab on the whole flock of the faithful. Mighty few are the stray sheep that are not rounded up before the last minute of registration.

There must be a fat registration, all the Mitchel men of whatever party, or partyless, Democrats, Republicans, Progressives, the unclassified and unattached independents, must have their names on the books, or graft-cum-Germany wins. Fusion must not count too much upon the effects of the curious, the comic self-revelation of himself which the Reader in the Tammany Temple is making day by day. Tammany discipline is strong. The Fusion administration by its very excellence has made numerous enemies. A full Mitchel vote is the only means of retaining honest, trained, enlightened nonpartisan administration in the city government, of holding up the hands of the United States with the powerful aid of New York.

From 7 this morning till 10:30 tonight the unregistered have their chance, their last chance, to enroll in this fight for the welfare of the city and of the country. Fifteen hours and a half, 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. Go and register, the earlier the better. Nab and impress your unregistered friends. Carry the carless in your car. Wake up, step up, save your vote, save the city!

SHIPS FOR THE PACIFIC.

It is now expected that an agreement will soon be reached with Japan concerning supplies of steel for her shipyards and the use of her merchant vessels in war service. Unconfirmed reports say that Japan has already consented to place twelve large carriers on the transatlantic route, with the condition that alternating voyages shall be made to her own ports. But the need is greater on the Pacific. "The more locomotives we send to Russia," said DANIEL WILLARD of the National Defense Council's Railway Committee a few days ago, "the fewer of our boys will be sent to France." Russia's railroads must have cars as well as locomotives. Not less than 1,500 engines are required. We have been making them, and to orders given some time ago for a large number of cars another, for 20,000, will soon be added. Professor LAMONOSSOFF, formerly in charge of transportation and now a member of the War Commission sent to this country, says that November will be the critical month. He fears that railroad service will be discontinued before the American rolling stock arrives.

It does not appear that we have ships to carry the railway material across the Pacific. Great Britain has withdrawn vessels from that ocean, and cannot spare ships even for moving Australia's large surplus stock of wheat. In December we may have no carriers for this work, although seven German ships seized at Manila may be diverted from the island trade in which they are now engaged. A few of the vessels commandeered at private yards may be ready before the end of the year. Japan has an abundant supply of such shipping as is needed, and her shipyards, with 600,000 tons under construction, are increasing it every month. In August and September twenty-nine large carriers were launched.

Depending upon this country for ship steel, which for some time past has been withheld, Japan recently proposed, it is said, that exports of steel to her builders should be permitted upon condition that the ships made of this material should be used in war service of some kind. But the Russian railroads cannot wait for the completion of these projected vessels. The new locomotives and cars should begin to relieve the railway system before December. We are confident that plans will be made for the use of ships that are now at work. Viscount ISHII, head of Japan's Commission, said in his address to the House:

> We are here to say that Japan will do what may be demanded of her to the utmost of her resources. We are eager for counsel with you. We come to find out how best these two nations can co-operate in the conduct and the winning of this war.

There will be effective co-operation on the Pacific. Japanese ships will carry across the ocean to Vladivostok the locomotives and cars we are making.

THE NEXT BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The present large Board of Education goes out of office on Dec. 31. Under the new education law the next Mayor will appoint a Board of Education of seven members. To their hands the public school system of Greater New York will be committed. They should be men of the highest intelligence and capacity, with no other thought in the administration of their great charge than the good of the city, the advancement of education in the public schools. Is a Tammany Mayor likely to appoint that sort of a board? To Tammany the public schools are but an annex of politics.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Preachers of Treason Are Excluded.

Presumably there will be much uplifting of hands and voices in adroitly mingled rage and grief as a result of Major Gen. BELL's announcement that he will permit no speechifying to the recruits at Camp Upton by orators working for "political parties whose platforms include doctrines of a treasonable nature or tendency, or subversive to military discipline."

As none of our political parties would admit that their doctrines are of that character, it will be easy for the members of any whose spellbinders are kept out of the camp by this order to claim that General BELL has set himself up as a political, as well as a military, censor—that he is determined not to let the men under him hear any arguments against the election of the candidates for civil office whom he favors. This can, and doubtless will, be described as another deadly blow at the freedom of speech and opinion which is nowadays so often lauded as the dearest of our blood-bought liberties. As a matter of fact, however, General BELL's order is nothing more or worse than an announcement that he isn't going to permit attempts to corrupt and demoralize his recruits by antagonists of the war in which they are about to engage, or to let them be told that the policies and methods deliberately and finally adopted by their Government for the protection of their country are worthy only of hatred or scorn.

That is not an exercise of arbitrary and irresponsible power; it is merely common sense, and such political parties as by common consent of everybody outside their own narrow circles cannot meet the simple test General BELL imposes—well, they are unfortunate in more ways than one, but their sufferings under exclusion from Camp Upton will not excite much sympathy. Possibly the excluded orators can count themselves lucky—unless what they want is the glory of martyrdom. For the chances are that in any of the new camps the preachers of pacifism and the friends of Germany would find it more or less dangerous to express their views aloud.

Waking Up at Last to Reality.

There is a good deal of significance, with something of encouragement, in the fact that two of New York's German papers, in commenting yesterday on the disclosures with regard to Count VON BERNSTORFF's activities in this country, were not content with criticising him as a misguided individual whose indiscretions have brought disgrace or embarrassment on the estimable German Government. Both of these papers, indeed, incline to see stupidities rather than crimes in what he did, but it is not his stupidity that they recognize and condemn—it is the stupidity of German diplomacy as a whole, or, in other words, of the governing group in which, not so long ago, the German-American press could see no fault.

What little that press in the past could not defend on the ground of military necessity it denied as British lies and slander, and so cleared the record. But now we read in this same press that German diplomacy, and not this or that German diplomat—in other words, the German Government in its dealings with other nations—is grossly incompetent! That is a large confession, and it gives practically the whole German case away, for competency was the very foundation of that case and its justification when all others failed.

If the American friends of Germany can see that the errors of German diplomacy lie, not in the von Bernstorffs and the von Luxburgs scattered about the world, but in Berlin, whence such men receive their orders, then they have made a great advance toward comprehension of the situation created by the war, and the change in these hitherto ardent believers in the Kaiser and his Ministers and his Generals inspires some hope that like changes of sentiment and opinion have really begun at last in Germany itself.

The claim that all Germans stand together, and all of them by their Government, has received a stunning blow from the naval mutiny, but the blows struck by these German-American newspapers are by no means light.

A Chance to Save Some Money.

Among the questions to be considered on Monday by the Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate is that of increasing the salaries of the men and women forming the staffs of our Public Library and its branches. This is not a time when proposals to raise the pay of municipal employes are heard with much patience, while any proposal to cut down city expenses is apt to receive favor, at least from the much-harassed taxpayer. There are economies and economies, however, and some of them are reckless extravagances.

The Public Library is, or ought to be, a great source of enlightenment, which means general safety and prosperity, but it cannot serve its purpose if the salaries of the librarians and their assistants are not sufficient to attract and retain the trained and competent workers who alone can turn a library into something better than a collection of books. According to trustworthy report, our Public Library attracts such workers, as might be expected, in satisfactory numbers, but they are paid so ill that in all too many cases the best of them soon drift away to positions which, if not better in all ways, are better in the very important way of offering a decently large recompense in the way of money.

A good librarian or librarian's assistant earns more than enough to keep body and soul together; a poor one earns less than nothing, and anything paid to him or her is worse than wasted. It is entirely credible, therefore, that profit to the city, not loss, would follow the granting of the appropriation now asked by the experts for the library personnel.

SECTION 209.

A Protest Against the Tax and the Way It Was Put Through.

Your editorial article entitled "Needed Amendments" refers particularly to the dangerous section of the Revenue act, "put into the bill in secrecy and darkness."

"Secrecy and darkness," here is the keynote. Not only did the Conference Committee fear to face the public with the radically unfair and dangerous proposition to place upon the men of a certain class an additional 8 per cent. levy, but they feared to face their own associates in the two houses of Congress.

All over the country there will be men who are loyally doing their utmost to support the Administration in their great fight for democracy and real freedom, who will agree with you that "it is monstrous that Congress should lay a tax penalizing individual toil while exempting from this special levy the receivers of income from dividends, interest, or rents."

How will the men who are thus so unjustly discriminated against feel when they are asked to make the necessary personal sacrifices to enable them to subscribe to the present and subsequent Liberty Loans?

This is a case of whose ox is gored. When certain Congressmen thought that the tax applied to them, they were "honestly indignant." I presume that in most cases this indignation is a thing of the past, since they have learned that the Conference Committee were thoughtful enough to provide for the exemption of themselves and their associates.

If there is to be an income tax, let it apply equitably to all who enjoy the opportunities, privileges, and protection of our country, from the President of the United States down to the daily laborer. Let there be no class privilege.

The Times and the Aqueduct.

Among the newspapers that supported my efforts to obtain legislation for the Catskill water supply THE NEW YORK TIMES stands out pre-eminently as having rendered the greatest public service of all. I feel that we should not have been successful in obtaining the legislation and results desired had it not been for the public-spirited stand and vigorous support given by THE NEW YORK TIMES. From start to finish THE TIMES was a loyal and faithful friend of this great project.

THE ISSUE AT COLUMBIA.

A Trustee's Reply to the Attack of Professor Beard.

As a Trustee of one of the colleges of Columbia University, I think I have the right to answer, at least in part, Professor Beard's passionate diatribe against the Trustees of Columbia in particular, and college Trustees in general. The spectacle of a martyred professor rising from the ashes of his professorial dignity to voice his acute sense of grievance against what is in reality only the logical, inevitable result of his own actions, but what he is pleased to designate "the end of free speech," "the tyranny of wealth," "the reign of the reactionary," or some such playful term, is unfortunately frequent enough. But it is not often that the point of view of the Trustee comes in for a little consideration. May I hope that it is not amiss or untimely to attempt some slight contribution toward an understanding of the difficulties and responsibilities—above all, the responsibilities—of the Trustees of a college!

It is the province of the Board of Trustees to run the college, to provide the funds, and to safeguard such funds as have been given into their keeping. Also, upon their shoulders rests the serious responsibility of making the institution not alone what the donors and founders hoped it would become, but all that they themselves desire to stand for and to work for.

Now let us reason a bit together: Has there not been for some time a false sanctity clinging to the Professor? He complains bitterly that he is not free to say what he chooses in or out of the classroom, that he is not allowed to shriek sheer treason, that he is not permitted to undermine the holiest relations of life, that he is not given the opportunity to tear and destroy that which civilization must hold fast to or suffer destruction. His shriek rises to a positive scream of outraged sensibilities when he is prevented from soiling the official stationery of the university with his utterances. Is it not time that the obligations of the Professor and university be considered at least mutual? True, the glory of the university lies in its teachers, but the status of the professors lies far more than they like to realize in the dignity and authority, in short, the tradition, of the university. John Doe, of no university connections, may be an admirable teacher and a learned scholar, he may know far more of political science, for instance, than even Professor Beard, but the world is not prone to listen to him. Does this not entail some noblesse oblige on the part of the Professor? Does not Professor Beard realize that the ipse dixit of a professor gives him an almost unfair advantage over other writers, and that utter drivel is often applauded when it emanates from a professorial chair? A professor's utterances, in or out of the classroom, thus become an integral part of the university. He cannot, even if he would, separate himself from his official position.

Let us strip the Professor of the halo of sanctity that artificially clings to him: He has something to sell the same as every other professional man. Is there any reason in making some one buy his wares who does not want them? Is there any justice in making others advertise and dispose of his wares against their will? Let us have our institutions of learning really stand for something, openly and above board; let them have definite character. By all means let us have our radical colleges, our places of learning where one knows that every social law will be demolished, where every established custom will be picked to pieces in the crude alembic of the crass youth; let us have institutions of learning where marriage is laughed at, religion ridiculed, feminism fostered, picketing apotheosized, but is it not a little too much to expect that the most conservative men and women of the nation be asked longer to cloak these institutions with their own respectability? If the radicals demand colleges, let them have them, but stop letting them run away with our staid, established ones because Trustees and parents are too white-livered to demand a halt, to uncover this bogey of academic freedom! "Strip the Trustees of their authority!" cries Professor Beard. Give them the authority of their convictions, say I; support them in their laudable desire to cry a halt to the camouflage which hides pacifism in the cloak of the college of Alexander Hamilton and John Jay, which permits sensationalism to stalk under cover of investigation, which shuts its eyes to decadence masquerading as openmindedness. If any group is to be stripped of their authority, let it be those professors who disgrace their noble calling by kotowing to the callow judgments of youth, whose intellectual convictions live from day to day, who confuse salaciousness and immorality with moral courage, who, in short, take an ungenerous advantage of the authority and sanctity of the quadrangle to stoop to the level of time-serving demagogues.

Colombia's Position.

There appears in yesterday's TIMES an article dealing with the position of Ecuador, Peru, Venezuela, and Colombia in the present conflict. The last part of the article reads:

> Argentina and Chile in the south and Venezuela and Colombia on the north are the only nations of South America whose positions are not clearly defined. Except Colombia, all four have declared their neutrality. * * * From Colombia nothing more than neutrality has been expected because of her resentment against the United States on account of the controversy over the building of the Panama Canal.

The Colombian Minister at Washington has instructed the signer to request your kind rectification of the above statement as regards his nation, as she was one of the first South American nations to declare her neutrality and has constantly affirmed it in circulars from the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Discrediting Free Speech.

Some of us would have a lot more sympathy for freedom of speech if, for the last few months, it hadn't looked so much like freedom of lying.

IN MEMORIAM.

(Edith Cavell, shot by the Germans Oct. 12, 1915.)

England, fight on! Avenge thy daughter slain
Countless her conquests o'er disease and pain,
Her cult to cure, bind up, alleviate,
Her feet the peaceful paths of Mercy trod
To halt at last before the Firing Squad!
England, fight on, nor heed the traitorous breath
That cries for Prussian peace, for status quo of yore,
While Europe withers 'neath the blight of Death.
That Teuton terror terrorize no more,
Britons, brave all, thy spirit typified
By her who suppliance spurned and death defied.

ART NOTES.

Monoprints by Guarino are at the Kraushaar Galleries. Mr. Guarino is an American of Italian parentage, and his color sense is principally Italian. His early studies under Mr. Whittaker of Brooklyn could have taught him little of the effectiveness of red used as he uses it, and nothing, certainly, of that crisp economy of pallid tints that makes "The White Furs" a picture. It may have taught him, however, the painstaking without which as a basis his gay and flippant diners and dancers would lack substance. That is the difference between his monoprints, as he decides to call them, and the monotypes of other painters. He takes infinite pains with his little glass slabs from which the pictures painted in oil are pulled by a printing press on a paper surface. Oil pigment on paper always has an agreeable quality, and the directness of the printer's method increases its attractiveness. To use this quality for serious work, especially adapted to the medium, is an intelligent turning to resources that are comparatively fresh. Many painters have used the process, painting in oil on glass and printing from the glass plate which yields only one impression, but, for the most part, they have regarded their efforts as a kind of play in which accident may be trusted to help out. These monoprints are playful and brilliant enough in their effect on a gallery wall to prove the seriousness of the work back of them. The exhibition lasts until the 27th of this month.

Recent Pictures by Americans.

At the Macbeth Gallery the public finds this month a carefully chosen group of American paintings. The attempt obviously has been made to continue the wise and gentle tradition of William Macbeth's long control of this gallery. His sensitive personal taste and his mellow and quiet temper will influence its exhibitions as long as those associated with him in his career have charge of them. The present exhibition opens the second quarter century of the gallery's history, proving that even a house built on the shifting sands of the New York population may become a "household of continuance." The collection includes a number of especially rewarding canvases, a landscape by Charles Melville Dewey, "Back from the Sea," in which the observer looks through an arch of tree boughs, as delicate in their tracery as a cathedral doorway, to an illumined shore and sky; "Three Trees," by J. Alden Weir, a green picture true to natural appearance, yet stirring to the imagination, a record of tree form and an evocation of tree spirit; "Parting at Night," by Arthur B. Davies, a deep little note of child psychology in color of the richest the artist has commanded, even in his early days of muffled intensities of color. There are Wyants also, and a Martin and an Inness. It is an exhibition worth seeing.

Early American Paintings.

The Ehrich Galleries have initiated a series of "group exhibitions," dedicated to the early Americans whose works in recent years have been assembled with pious care by patriotic collectors. In the first group now on exhibition are pictures by West, Charles Wilson Peale, Dunlap, Savage, and Mather Brown. The last is first in effectiveness of accomplishment, and the ability to produce a "portrait d'apparat." His "George III." is splendid, with red draperies and regal costuming, which are not permitted to hide the insufferable dullness of the King's physiognomy, and for good measure the artist has given us a glimpse of Pitt far in the background, the power behind the pompous throne. Peale's beautiful portrait of Colonel Tench Tilghman would hang acceptably beside most of Sir Joshua's, strong in his best qualities; Benjamin West is represented by several of his artificial historical paintings, by a charming landscape on formal lines, and by one of the finest portraits of the period, that of John J. Sedley, fresh and pure in color, frank in handling and vigorously characterized. If West had been forced into portraiture, posterity would hold a different opinion of his abilities. The two portraits by William Dunlap are sad examples of a writer's ineptitude with paint. Very little of his work is known, and such as there is would not keep his memory green for one-half hour. But he wrote imperishable notes about painters.

A Cat and Dog Picture.

One of the paintings in this month's exhibition at the Ferargil Gallery is Charles Livingston Bull's "My Dog," which shows the head of a beautiful hound caressing a cat that has pressed itself ingratiatingly against his neck. The expression of slightly forced cordiality on the canine features is a true bit of observation, and so is the self-centred physiognomy of the cat, but the artist's research into character has not interfered with his decorative arrangement. A lively portrait of Eileen Huban, by David Robinson, with a front stage pose, and a very beautiful little painting of Penzance, ruddy-sailed and mellow, by Emil Carlsen, are other features of a rather haphazard and thoroughly agreeable collection of aesthetic adventures.

Old English Engravings.

The vagaries of the picture market are as quaint as anything in oil or copper. The engravings by Bartolozzi and his school at the Kennedy & Co. Galleries, on exhibition during October, include fine examples of both colored prints and those in the more austere black and white. The latter, as a rule, are the better. The plate frequently is fresher and the impression clearer and brighter, the subjects are as charming as any, Lady Hamilton as the spinster favorably comparing with the same flexible lady as the seamstress, yet a print in black and white is apt to be listed at only a fraction of the price commanded by a print in colors. It is still a case of "a penny plain and tuppence colored."

Lively Reading at an American Camp

The law which permits any citizen in the United States at the small expense of one cent to forward to our soldiers abroad any newspapers or periodicals is a very useful one if it is applied with discretion. But I take the liberty of suggesting that discretion in its use is necessary.

I visited a few days ago a camp in which there were more than a hundred Americans learning to fly. They showed me the table containing the reading matter which had reached them. I found upon it the following assortment of journals: The National Laundry Journal, Refrigeration, (a journal devoted to cold storage,) The Starch Room, (a laundry journal,) Flour and Feed, The Horseless Age, The Automobile Trade Magazine. There were scattered among these technical journals a few others whose interest might perhaps be slightly more passionate for the average reader, but the bulk of the reading they had was of this nature. Is it not possible to have some sort of an arrangement by which such a congestion of technical journals at one place, with a corresponding lack of reading which makes a more general appeal, could be avoided?

ITALY IN NEW YORK HONORS COLUMBUS

Every Province, Including Trentino and Trieste, Has a Place in Fifth Avenue Parade.

VIVAS FOR GEN. CADORNA

Garibaldi Veterans, Laborers, Bankers, and Many Gay-Kerchiefed Women in the Line.

If the gift of Galatea had been vouchsafed to the statue of Christopher Columbus on his pedestal at Fifty-ninth Street, he surely would have turned his wistful eyes from the North River to contemplate for at least a moment the great throng of his compatriots who marched through the Circle yesterday in a demonstrative tribute to his memory. It was a pity the managers who staged the parade of 15,000 sons of Italy did not see fit to swing the procession in front of America's discoverer instead of marching it behind him.

As it was, Columbus missed a thrilling sight. Men, women, and children from all the present and future provinces of Italy, including Trieste and Trentino, swept through the Circle in a steady, unbroken file. It seemed as though New York had mustered its whole Italian population for the occasion. Thousands who were not in line banked the sidewalk and shouted "Viva Italia!" "Viva Colombo!" "Viva America!" with an enthusiasm which indicated a decidedly pro-Ally as well as pro-Colombo sentiment.

It was a parade different from the sorts New York usually sees. Nothing could be more democratic than laborers in brogans and soiled work-a-day clothes marching with bankers and merchants, all the pride of them centred in their gorgeous sashes of green, white, and red. Among the 200 women who had a place of honor near the head of the line were many gray daughters of Italy, far on in years, who tramped the three miles from Washington Square without faltering. Headkerchiefs of gay colors and heavy, dangling earrings proclaimed the Southern origin of many of them, but all marched like soldiers, eyes straight to the front, deeply serious in their holiday task.

The blazing gleam of a bright red shirt, with a shock of white hair over it, occasionally betrayed the presence of a Garibaldi veteran in the line, proud of his distinction and showing himself to be a soldier of the line, though an ancient one, by offering a truly military salute to the dignitaries on the grand stand.

The bands were Italian bands, and therefore unique in that they played all the time. They never stopped playing for anybody or for anything. There were moments when three of them were going at the same time on the same spot, each on a different tune. At one stage of the proceedings one of the Marshals made a vain effort to disentangle the Marseillaise from a congestion of other tunes, including the Russian national anthem, "Tipperary," and "Dixie." He motioned excitedly to some of the band leaders to stop; he wanted to preserve the Marseillaise, but somehow "Dixie" won.

Mayor Mitchel reviewed the parade from the stand at Columbus Circle. Grand Marshal Stefano Miele, as head of the Supreme Council of the Sons of Italy, presented him with a set of resolutions, praising his administration. The Mayor arrived at the stand before the parade, which was late getting started. He watched thousands of Italy's sons march past and received frequent cheers and salutes from the ranks. A great throng of Italians had congregated at the Circle, and they sent repeated vivas and salvos of applause in the Mayor's direction.

The Lodge of Naples led the parade, eight members carrying upon their shoulders a magnificent floral arch, surmounted by a white eagle, which they deposited at the foot of the statue. Every lodge, as it marched by the grand stand, unfurled gorgeously colored banners to the wind, usually with the name of some fond Italian hero or city inscribed over it in letters of gold. The members of the Lodge of Trieste and Trentino received a special ovation from the Italians along the line of march, the demonstration being accompanied always by shouts of "Viva Italia! Viva Cadorna!"

The parade started from Washington Square and traversed Fifth Avenue to Fifty-seventh Street, and through Fifty-seventh Street to Eighth Avenue, to the Circle.

KNIGHTS CELEBRATE DAY.

Singing and Patriotic Speeches at Big Carnegie Hall Meeting.

Thousands of the members and friends of the Knights of Columbus celebrated Columbus Day with patriotic speeches and singing in Carnegie Hall last evening. One hundred boy singers from the Catholic Orphan Asylum, under the leadership of Professor John J. O'Connor, chancel organist at St. Patrick's Cathedral, occupied most of the stage.

In the course of an appeal for subscriptions to the Liberty Loan, ex-Senator James A. O'Gorman urged support of the war and of the President.

"This war in which we are now engaged will put the loyalty of the American people to the test," said Mr. O'Gorman. "It will determine whether we are worthy of citizenship in this great republic. Every citizen is called upon to do his whole duty in defending our cause, in upholding the hands of our President, and in supporting our army and navy. In this emergency no citizen can think of personal consequences, for the honor and safety of the country are above all private interests. Patriotism is more than a sentiment—it is a duty which no man or woman can avoid."

Other speakers were the Rev. Dr. J. H. Healy, O. P., the Rev. Dr. William P. Larkin, and W. F. Hooley, Chairman of the Celebration Day Committee.

ITALIANS CHEER MITCHEL.

Mayor Warmly Greeted at Columbus Day Celebration.

Mayor Mitchel and all of the other candidates were invited to attend the Columbus Day celebration by the Sons of Italy at the Harlem River Casino last evening. When the Mayor entered the hall the 4,000 men and women stood and cheered him for five minutes. In a brief address the Mayor referred to the visit of the Italian War Commission and said he would always esteem it an honor that he had taken part in the reception to the members of that commission.

"We recognize Italy as one of the greatest of the allied nations fighting in this war with us to make the world safe for democracy," he said. "It was not until the United States entered the war that you as Americans, owing allegiance to the Government of the United States, were able to bring to the war all your sympathy and interest, and, therefore, your own commission and its visit here had a doubly deep interest to you.

"You must be concerned in the successful prosecution of the war, just as you are concerned in putting behind you all sources of corruption, as you are concerned in maintaining honest government in this greatest city of the United States. I am sure that you Italians will remain loyal to the Government and ignore an unfriendly press in the campaign—a press which prints the American flag on the front page and stabs the country in the back on the editorial page.

"I take it that as citizens you want a government that will be clean, a police force that will be free from corruption, and that you want a government that will be true to America and Americans. I can promise you it will remain that way as long as I remain in the City Hall."

Other candidates present were William L. Ransom, Magistrate Corrigan, and District Attorney Swann. Ex-Governor Sulzer was there, too, and when he was called for he said: "When you go to the polls vote for Mitchel and against Murphy."

A dinner was given by the members of the Union Benefica Espanola at the Hotel Astor last night in honor of the 425th anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus. Francisco Javier de Salas, Spanish Consul General, acted as toastmaster.

CATSKILL AQUEDUCT FORMALLY ACCEPTED

PRAISES MAJOR McCLELLAN

Mayor Mitchel on behalf of the city formally accepted the complete Catskill Aqueduct and Water System yesterday. In his address at the exercises at noon in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall he described the work as a feat of engineering which approached the building of the Panama Canal in magnitude and exceeded it in difficulty.

Mayor Mitchel bestowed upon ex-Mayor George B. McClellan the chief credit for conceiving and driving through the project for a vast supply of pure water for New York City, and named J. Waldo Smith, the chief engineer of the Board of Water Supply, as the man to whom most praise was due for conquering difficulties which had never before been faced by engineers. On behalf of the city he thanked the engineers under Mr. Smith and the contractors who had worked on the water system for completing it ahead of time, at about $7,000,000 less than the estimated cost and without the suggestion of a hitch or of scandal. After President Charles Strauss of the Board of Water Supply had formally presented the new water system Mayor Mitchel replied:

"Ladies and gentlemen, for the organization of this great enterprise, for the legislation that made it possible, for its administration during the early years, when misses would have wrecked it, and when opposition might have rendered it impossible, the people of New York will render their lasting and sincere thanks to Mayor McClellan, who is in every truth the official father of this whole enterprise and undertaking.

"Great has been the contribution, the executive direction, the business judgment on the part of the members of the Board of Water Supply, and for that the people of this city will thank them through future generations. But, gentlemen, never has there been a bolder engineering conception or a more capable execution than that of Chief Engineer Waldo Smith in this great enterprise.

"It has been truly said that this work belongs to a class by itself. It equals in magnitude the construction of the Panama Canal, in difficulties; in the engineering difficulties of its conception and its executon, in my judgment, it exceeds the Panama Canal.

No Breath of Scandal.

"One contribution that the Chief Engineer has made and which those who have not followed this undertaking closely might overlook, was the organization of the engineering staff. Nowhere in the government of this city or in the government of any other city—nowhere, I believe, either in or out of government, has there been gathered together a staff of engineers with more loyal spirit or devoted purpose to make a success of a great enterprise. The staff of the Board of Water Supply has backed up its chief engineer, and its commission has carried this great work to a successful conclusion. Let us give to these men full recognition for the splendid service that they have rendered to the city.

"Perhaps more than anything else the people of the city, the board, its chief engineer, and its staff, have to congratulate themselves today upon the fact that this vast undertaking, this difficult undertaking, this undertaking that consumed nearly ten years, has been conceived in honesty and executed in complete honesty.

"It is indeed a great achievement and a mark of distinction upon which these men who have carried out this great work and those who have dealt with them as contractors may congratulate themselves today.

"And now, ladies and gentlemen, let me say to you how great a personal satisfaction and pleasure it is to me to welcome back again into this City Hall that he must find so familiar, Major McClellan."

The audience, which filled the Chamber, rose to its feet and applauded. Ex-Mayor McClellan, now a Major in the transportation service, was present in his uniform, having obtained a brief leave of absence from his duties to be present at the celebration. He and George McAneny occupied the dais with Mayor Mitchel.

"Ladies and gentlemen," continued the Mayor, "in an administration which gave the city many great public works, there was nothing conceived, undertaken, or accomplished that ranges with this great system of water supply that comes from the Catskill Mountains. It is this finished public work that will stand as the greatest monument to Mayor McClellan and his administration in the City of New York."

Major McClellan, who again had a flattering reception on his introduction as a speaker, insisted that he had been overpraised. He continued:

"Under the late Mayor Low," he continued, "Robert Grier Monroe, Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity, with rare foresight and imagination, first among public officials realized that New York must have more water if she was to grow into the greatest city on earth. Accordingly, he appointed a committee, consisting of three engineers of national reputation, Messrs. Burr, Freeman, and Herring, and they had submitted a voluminous and most valuable report just before I took office.

Two Years' Fight in Legislature.

"You men and women of today can have no idea of what it cost in time and effort to get this work under way. It took two years of constant effort and hard fighting to induce the Legislature to give an Enabling act.

"The people of New York have every reason to be grateful to THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Brooklyn Eagle, to the Manufacturers' Association of Brooklyn, under the leadership of Commissioner Chadwick; the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, under the leadership of ex-Commissioner Shaw, and the New York Chamber of Commerce, under the leadership of the late J. Edward Simmons, for the unfailing and vigorous support they gave the then Mayor.

"On the other hand, great newspapers and prominent men who should have known better and perhaps did, and who since then have been converted to enthusiastic support of the project, at first fought it tooth and nail as unnecessary, Utopian, and extravagant. The amount of mud that was thrown at me, had it come in another shape, would have furnished almost enough material to build the great Ashokan Dam.

"It is only fair to say, however, that a great deal of the opposition came from those who are always inclined on general principles to oppose anything begun by the city's Mayor, and, after it has been begun, to abuse the Mayor for not having begun it sooner. This is a psychological phenomenon with which my distinguished successor is doubtless familiar.

"When I turned the first sod, more than a decade ago, I announced my determination that the undertaking in its accomplishment should be, as far as I could make it, a model for all time of what public work ought to be. I expressed the wish that, from start to finish, the work should be carried on free from politics, free from waste, and free from scandal. I thank God my wish has been realized.

"With great judgment and wisdom, my successor in the Mayoralty and the members of the Board of Water Supply, beginning with the first and ending with the present board, of which Mr. Strauss is the most efficient Chairman and Messrs. Chadwick and Galvin his admirable colleagues, have in all technical and engineering matters given the engineering staff full swing, unhampered and unrestricted.

"The result is one the like of which the world cannot show, the greatest engineering feat in history accomplished without a single labor disturbance, without a hitch, and without scandal. Surely New York has every reason to be proud of what she has done.

"And what made it possible that this should be so is that the work has had the support of public opinion, for the public was convinced that the work was being done honestly and efficiently, and that the brains and energy which carried it to completion were the concrete expression of the spirit of New York, of the best that the town has to give.

"The true spirit of New York, the spirit of the real city that you and I who have served her and gloried in her and loved her, know, is the spirit that we are celebrating today, the spirit of energy and enterprise, the spirit of honesty and efficiency, that overcomes all obstacles, for it does not know the meaning of failure, that succeeds, that accomplishes the great and enduring things, the things that are worth while.

"What some of us are sometimes prone to forget, especially those of us who wear the uniform, is that, when the war is over, when thanks to American bravery, American enterprise, and American brains, our arms shall have triumphed gloriously and we shall have won the war, when peace has been restored, there will come a time which will try men's souls almost as much as the dark days that have gone before.

"It will take just as much courage, as much initiative, and as much persistence to retain the paramount position among the nations that we shall win in and because of this war as the attainment has cost us. We who have followed our great President in the past, who are following him loyally, enthusiastically, and unitedly, because we know he is right, will continue to follow him in peace as in war, in the restoration of normal conditions, and the upbuilding of our normal life.

"It will be to New York that our President and the people of the United States will look for leadership and inspiration in the peaceful days to come, just as they are receiving support from her in the present and have received it from her in the past. If New York is to do her part and bear her share in this work of reconstruction, she must carry on her usual occupations side by side with her intensive preparation for the successful prosecution of the war. Just as it is the duty of all New Yorkers to furnish our fellow-citizens with high example of warlike enthusiasm and efficiency, so it is equally our duty to set the national standard for constructive, economic activity.

"We who are so fortunate as to be serving in the United States Army or Navy as officers or enlisted men have been singularly honored. Yet we are not serving our country any more faithfully and honorably than are you who wear the civilian dress, who are carrying on the life of the community well and patriotically, are making it possible for the army to win the war, and when the war has been won, to reconstruct, reorganize, and revivify.

American Grit and Genius.

"The example of great work like this that we are completing today is of incalculable value as an object lesson and as an inspiration.

"If American grit and American genius can accomplish the greatest engineering feat in history in bringing a mighty stream over hill and dale, through mountains and under rivers, from the Catskills to the city, if the American spirit that its engineers possessed could achieve the impossible because of the faith that was in them; belief in themselves and in their cause, that same American spirit, true to itself and to its traditions, can and will not only carry the flag, which speaks for the cause we love, to victory, complete and lasting, but when victory has been won, will plant it firmly and forever as the emblem of all that is best that our nation represents of energy and of success, of progress and of civilization, of righteousness and of liberty, of justice and of truth."

Mayor Mitchel accepted from an unknown donor the jet fountain in Central Park in the afternoon and officially turned on the Catskill water, which leaped from the fountain to a height of eighty feet, while about 2,000 persons cheered. Rain a few minutes later drove away a great crowd which had gathered for the pageant and musical exercises which were to have been held in the park. Fifteen thousand school children were there to take part in the pageant entitled, "The Good Gift of Water," written for the occasion by Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall.

The Music Committee of the Aqueduct Celebration announced last night that the aqueduct concerts in Central, Prospect, and Bronx Parks had been postponed until tonight.

WATER MEDALS PRESENTED.

Men Who Made Aqueduct Possible Honored at Dinner.

Medals for distinguished service in creating the Catskill water system were presented at the dinner last night at the Waldorf-Astoria given by the Mayor's Committee to Mayor Mitchel, ex-Mayor George B. McClellan, Chief Engineer J. Waldo Smith, Charles Strauss, President of the Board of Water Supply; Charles Noyes Chadwick, a member of the board from its inception; John F. Calvin of the Board of Water Supply, Charles A. Shaw, an ex-member of the board, and to the family of the late J. Edward Simmons.

"Mr. Mayor, I do indeed congratulate you upon your part in all of this. I cannot tell you with what warmth and depth of feeling I congratulate you upon the place that you hold in the hearts of the people of New York."

Mayor Mitchel spoke next, and after tracing the history of the new water supply system, presented the medals to the others.

Catskill water was on the tables, and Judge Elbert H. Gary, who was the temporary presiding officer, opened the speechmaking by saying:

"Ladies and gentlemen, with the best and purest of all beverages, on this occasion coming from the Catskill Mountains, I ask you to drink to the President of the United States."

The medals which were presented last night were the work of Daniel C. French, the sculptor. On the obverse is a classic female head personifying the City of New York, with no inscription. On the reverse is a standing undraped herculean figure pouring water from a jar held horizontally across his shoulder. In the background at his feet are mountain tops. Upon this side of the medal is the following inscription:

"To Commemorate the Completion of the Catskill Aqueduct. An Achievement of Civic Spirit, Scientific Genius, and Faithful Labor. 1905. New York, 1917."

The committee which presented the medals had been appointed by the Mayor as an outgrowth of a smaller committee formed by citizens for the purpose. Robert W. de Forest was Chairman of the Medal Committee. At the conclusion of the speechmaking the 800 guests looked at moving pictures showing the great dams and other interesting features of the system.

Do You Live But Half a Life?

Is your blood thin and sluggish? Are your "bad days" many? Do you tire easily? Is your appetite poor and your sleep unrefreshing? If so, your blood needs building and enriching. The value of your daily work, the security of the position you hold, your possibilities for the future all depend largely on the condition of your blood. If the stream of life is rich in iron and red cells, everything you do is characterized by a rugged vigor that brushes aside every obstacle and your life is happy. On the other hand, weak blood imperils your future, because it lets you only half live.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

"The Red Blood Builder"

A time tried builder of health for run-down, overworked and anemic people, and for children who do not thrive. It is a true tonic, which creates millions of strong, new, red blood cells, and puts iron in the blood—to build up red cells, the vital elements that enrich and make strong the stream of life that courses through all parts of your body. Strong, healthy blood invites rugged health, and the invitation is usually accepted unless the patient has a serious organic disease. For, when the blood is bountifully charged with red cells and iron, poisons and waste tissue are easily cast off; pure blood carries life and vigor to every part of the body.

Pepto-Mangan neither looks nor tastes like medicine. It cannot disturb the stomach, cause constipation or injure the teeth, because its iron is peptonized. The beneficial results of Pepto-Mangan usually are soon noticed.

Friendly Warning

Don't accept Pepto-Mangan in any other form than the original bottle and sealed package here pictured. Be sure that the name is Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Pepto-Mangan is widely imitated, the package sometimes counterfeited, but the genuine is not sold in bulk or in any other form than that shown in this picture. You are entitled to real Pepto-Mangan—not an imitation. Buy it in this sealed package and you will not be disappointed. For sale at all drug stores. Read circular around bottle.

Miss Johnstone was in Turkey last Spring, and came out with Ambassador and Mrs. Abram I. Elkus when war was declared and they returned to France. Since her return to this country she has been lecturing on Turkey for the benefit of the Red Cross. # SUPPORT PRESIDENT, MGR. GIBBONS URGES

OBEDIENCE AN ESSENTIAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Cardinal Gibbons wrote President Wilson, in a letter made public here today, that he was trying to "persuade all Americans that they can do the greatest good to themselves and their country by a cheerful and generous performance of their duty as it is pointed out to them by lawfully constituted authority." The letter was written on the occasion of the recent formation of the League for National Unity, of which Cardinal Gibbons is honorary Chairman.

President Wilson, in reply, thanked the Cardinal for accepting the Chairmanship of the league. The letter to the President follows:

Cardinal's Residence,
Baltimore, Oct. 6, 1917.

The President,
The White House, Washington, D. C.
My Dear Mr. President:

In these days of the gravest problems which have ever weighed upon our American Government, our thoughts go out to the Chief Executive, warmed by a heartfelt sympathy for the heavy burdens of office which he must bear, and freighted with the unwavering determination of loyal citizens to stand by him in his every effort to bring success to our aims and to achieve those ideals of justice and humanity which compelled our entrance into the war.

Guided as we are by the sublime teachings of Christianity, we have no other course open to us but that of obedience and devotion to our country. Our Divine Lord tells us, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's," and St. Paul, following the steps of his Master, says: "Let every soul be subject to the higher powers, for there is no authority but from God, and those that are, are ordained by God. Therefore, he who resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God, and they who resist purchase to themselves condemnation."

We wish our people to see, and we are striving to help them to realize, that they owe unswerving loyalty to the rulers whom they have elected to office, and that in doing so they are not acting in a slavish manner, for obedience is not an act of servility we pay to man, but an act of homage we pay to God.

We are working to the end that our countrymen may see the folly and grave disobedience of unjust and ill-tempered criticism of national policies. We are bending our efforts to point out to our fellow men that they in all probability see the present situation from only one angle, whereas the Government sees it from every viewpoint, and is therefore alone in the position to judge of the expediency of national affairs.

In a word, we have been exerting our every effort, and will continue to do so, to persuade all Americans that they can do the greatest good to themselves and their country by a cheerful and generous performance of their duty as it is pointed out to them by lawfully constituted authority.

With sentiments of highest esteem, I am,

Very faithfully yours,
J. CARDINAL GIBBONS,
Archbishop of Baltimore.

Oct. 9, 1917.

My Dear Cardinal Gibbons:

May I not express my very deep and sincere appreciation of your letter of Oct. 6? It has brought me cheer and reassurance, and I want you to know how much I appreciate your own action in consenting to preside over the important and influential group of men and women who have so generously undertaken to support the Administration in its efforts to make the whole character and purpose of this war and of the Government of the United States in the prosecution of it clear to the whole people.

With warmest appreciation and cordial regards,

Sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

PASTOR DENOUNCES WILSON

Tirade Stirs Opposition in Congregational Church Council.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 12.—Denouncing Government war policies and calling President Wilson "our incomparable opportunist," the Rev. Dan F. Bradley, pastor of the Pilgrim Church, Cleveland, Ohio, caused a sensation at today's session of the National Council of Congregational Churches and drew opposition from among his audience.

"With our incomparable opportunist in the White House, bolstered by the free labor-loving Samuel Gompers, on the one hand," said the Rev. Mr. Bradley, "and the patriotic controllers of all the oil and the gold and the lumber and the wheat and copper and aluminium, on the other; all safe and sane men, getting valuable Government contracts; with the farmers happy with a double price for their wheat, and all the dangerous Socialists either in the workhouse or traveling thither, democracy is safe, especially when such tireless traitors as La Follette could be taken out and shot."

Waves of resentment interrupted the speaker at this point, and in anger he invited those who did not wish to hear him out to leave the hall. Several men did so.

CUTS WAR RISK PREMIUMS.

Government Reduces Rates for Crews Traversing the Danger Zone.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The recent reduction by the Government of approximately 25 per cent. in war risk insurance rates on vessels traversing the war zone was followed today by a reduction of one-third in premiums on the insurance of officers and crews on such vessels.

As in the case of the previous reduction, "decrease of risk" was assigned by the Government as the impelling cause. The new rate, which is effective immediately, is 50 cents per $100; the old rate was 75 cents. The reduction applies to crews of all American vessels sailing between American ports and all European ports and African ports on the Mediterranean.

"Announcement also is made," reads a statement issued by the Treasury Department, "of a ruling now making mandatory seamen's insurance on all vessels trading to the Azores, the Canary Islands, and the ports of Morocco.

"Heretofore this insurance was mandatory only on American vessels trading to and from European and African ports on the Mediterranean Sea. On account of its being impracticable to have the necessary forms ready and in the hands of those interested, this insurance will not become mandatory until Nov. 1 for all vessels sailing from the United States and Nov. 15 for all vessels sailing from the foreign ports involved."

Vassar's $1,000,000 Oversubscribed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Subscriptions to Vassar College's million-dollar fund for buildings and educational endowment now exceed the mark set as the goal, according to an announcement made tonight by President MacCracken. This was the date of payment of the second part of the subscription, and the exact amount in hand is $1,019,011.37. Additional subscriptions to buildings and other gifts which have been delayed will increase the total amount to $1,047,969.67.

ASK ACADEMIC FREEDOM.

Columbia Men Request Trustees to Adjust Threatening Conditions.

In support of academic freedom in Columbia University, growing out of the issue raised by the resignation of Professor Charles A. Beard of the department of political science, 700 students representing the conservative element met in the Gymnasium yesterday and united in a call upon the Trustees of the university to adjust conditions which, they said, threatened injury to the reputation and work of the university.

"The purpose of this meeting has nothing to do with the questions of patriotism or of pacifism," said C. P. Ivins, President of the class of '18, who presided. "We have come together to consider the issue of academic freedom. That issue has been clearly raised by Professor Charles A. Beard in his recent regrettable resignation. Despite much confusion in the public mind, I believe most of us know by now that the source of discontent in the upper circles at Columbia is lack of harmonious co-operation between members of the Faculty and the Board of Trustees.

"Many of us in the upper classes had intimation for several years that friction existed overhead, but we merely ignored the situation. Now, however, Professor Beard's resignation has brought home to us the fact that we are in danger of losing some of our most respected, most highly gifted and most Columbia-spirited professors. We not only regret the loss of our friend, Professor Beard, but fear the future loss of other men as valuable to Columbia. It would be an insult to our intelligence as college men if we remained entirely indifferent.

"The faculty looks to us for action. Many professors have intimated in the last day or two that they would be grievously disappointed in the student body if it took no interest in this movement, which they regard as so vital."

Mr. Ivins denounced the demonstration which took place on the library steps several days ago as a disgrace to the university. Referring to the resignations of Professors Cattell and Dana, Mr. Ivins said they bore no relation to that of Professor Beard.

Following the adoption of a resolution advising for a readjustment of conditions which would permit Professor Beard to continue his services, another resolution, asking for co-operation between the Faculty and Board of Trustees was adopted. This resolution read:

"We, the students of Columbia College, resent the differences which have arisen in this university, and that in the interest of the good name and scholastic reputation of Columbia, we confidently expect the Trustees and Faculty to adopt immediately whatever measures may be necessary to bring about a desirable spirit of co-operation among Trustees, Faculty, and students."

TELLS OF TRIP IN ARCTIC.

MacMillan Describes Adventures in Crocker Land to Explorers' Club.

Donald B. MacMillan, with other members of his Crocker Land party, and Captain Robert Bartlett, who rescued the expedition after they had been marooned in the arctic for several years, were honored guests at a dinner given last night by the Explorers' Club. Admiral Robert E. Peary presided.

Mr. MacMillan described the adventures of the little party during the long months spent in the north, and how they had discovered Crocker Land to be a mirage after they had advanced 150 miles toward what they believed to be an immense tract of land.

"I stood on Cape Thomas Hubbard one morning," said the explorer, "and saw the land as plainly as I see the faces of you men. But when the night fell the character of the land changed and it disappeared. After two days we found that what we had at first taken for land was a mirage, though what caused it I am at a loss to say."

In discussing the exploration of the arctic regions, Admiral Peary said the day would come when, by the aid of airplanes, the unknown northland would be explored and mapped.

"The time is very near," he said, "when the biting air about both poles will be stirred by the whirring planes of aircraft. Then the secrets of the Arctic and the Antarctic Continents will be yielded up."

A hotel was added, the property occupying the block bounded by Washington, Greenwich, Fulton, and Dey Streets. Mr. McNeil retired from business in 1911.

PRESS LICENSING BEGINS NEXT TUESDAY

Foreign Language Papers Must Prove Loyalty to Obtain Permits.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Government supervision of the foreign-language press under the Trading with the Enemy act will begin next Tuesday, after which time all such publications not under special licenses must file with their local Postmasters, before offering for circulation by mail or otherwise, true translations of all articles respecting the Government of the United States or any other nation at war.

The President will delegate his authority to issue licenses to the Postmaster General in a proclamation to be issued soon, and the Post Office Department already is receiving applications. Licenses will be granted only to papers whose records are deemed to warrant confidence that they will not abuse the privilege.

Postmaster General Burleson discussed the campaign to suppress seditious and disloyal publications at today's Cabinet meeting. He said afterward that good results had been accomplished. Several papers are cited daily to show cause why their mailing privileges should not be canceled, and many of them are barred after hearing, although the Post Office Department makes no announcement of its action.

"Owing to our campaign and to the education of editors of these publications, conditions are improving," said Mr. Burleson. "I think that within another month we shall have very little trouble with any kind of papers."

LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER.

This is the final day of registration for the election on Nov. 6. Polls will be open from 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. If you have not registered by tonight you cannot vote in the election.

CALLS LA FOLLETTE IN HIS OWN BEHALF

Senate Committee Grants His Request for an Opportunity to Explain His Speech.

BRYAN ALSO MAY TESTIFY

Investigators Gather All Necessary Information Regarding the Lusitania Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin was invited today to appear on Tuesday morning as a witness in his own behalf before the special committee appointed by the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee to investigate his speech before the Non-Partisan League at St. Paul on Sept. 20. The committee issued the invitation after today's meeting in response to Senator La Follette's request for an opportunity to be heard.

Although the committee in extending the invitation carefully circumscribed the scope of the hearing, it was generally believed that Senator La Follette would avail himself of the opportunity to strike back at his accusers. The committee is under instructions to confine the inquiry to an investigation of the stenographic accuracy of the transcript of the speech presented to the Senate by the Minnesota Public Safety Commission and the correctness of the statement of fact contained in the speech. It would be a surprise, however, if the committee were able to hold Senator La Follette's testimony within these bounds.

Indications are that Senator La Follette's appearance before the committee will be only the beginning of a somewhat more extended hearing. The committee may find it necessary to summon William J. Bryan as a witness to combat Senator La Follette's testimony regarding the Lusitania case. Senator La Follette himself may insist upon the calling of other witnesses.

Senator Pomerene, Chairman of the committee, today wrote Senator La Follette, after today's meeting:

"Your favor of the 11th inst. received, having attached thereto a copy of your speech delivered before the Non-Partisan League at St. Paul, as furnished you by the official reporter of the league.

"Referring to your request contained in your letter the Sub-Committee on Privileges and Elections begs to advise you that it does not concede that its power extends to an inquiry into your right to make the speech delivered by you in St. Paul, that question being reserved by the full committee for its consideration; nor does it believe itself authorized to inquire into the motives or animus of those making attacks on you.

"The sub-committee desires, however, to afford you an opportunity to be heard and to inform the committee with reference to the accuracy of various statements contained in the speech referred to, and to that end you are invited to attend at the ensuing meeting of the committee to be held in its committee rooms in the Capitol at 10:30 A. M., Tuesday, Oct. 16, 1917."

The committee today received complete data on the Lusitania case from the State Department. An examination of the data will be deferred, however, until after Senator La Follette is heard, and Mr. Bryan's statement is received.

EXPELLED FROM WEST POINT

Cadet Is Dismissed After Being Absent Without Leave.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The War Department announced today the dismissal from the service of Cadet Cyril C. Courture, First Class, United States Military Academy. Courture absented himself from his tent and the cadet camp near Stony Ford, N. Y., without proper leave for about two hours. With intent to deceive the cadet detailed to inspect after taps, he stated to his tentmate, "If I am not in bed at taps, report me on guard, as I will be absent as such," or words to that effect.

Courture was tried by court-martial and found guilty, his statement to his tentmate being declared untrue, in that at taps on the night of the offense he was not authorized to be absent from his tent on guard, and was not so absent. The sentence was dismissal from the service, which was confirmed by President Wilson.

This case was stated by military officers today to be typical of the treatment officers in the army will receive for the violation of the Articles of War, Courture being guilty of two offenses, both serious, but the more reprehensible being, it was said, his false statement intended to deceive.

GERMANS BUILDING MORE GREAT LINERS

North German Lloyd Has Two of 35,000 Tons, to be Named Columbus and Hindenburg.

HOPE TO WIN TRADE BACK

But General Manager Heineken Expects Hard Times for Native Shipping After the War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The North German Lloyd, which has suffered severe losses of ocean tonnage as a result of Germany's plunge into war, has ordered a large series of new vessels to be built in German shipyards for use after the war. Two large passenger steamers being built, each displacing 35,000 gross registered tonnage, are to be known as the Columbus and Hindenburg. Two others, of half this size, are to be known as the Munchen and Zeppelin.

This information has been conveyed to the Department of Commerce in a special report from American Consul General Listoe at Rotterdam forwarding a translation of the new German Lloyd year book for 1916-17.

In an article in the book Mr. Heineken, the general manager of the North German Lloyd, gives an insight into the activities of the company during the war. He writes:

"Our ships have been used in the service of the empire, not only as ships of war but also as a means of transport for raw materials, and in that service they have rendered great assistance. During 1915 and 1916 two of our freight boats, the Norderney and the Schwabe, were engaged in carrying ore from Sweden. Unfortunately, one of these, the Norderney, met with an accident. It ran upon an enemy mine and foundered, the Captain and three of the crew meeting a heroic death. Great difficulties arose with regard to insurance. The premium paid for such a dangerous voyage by a vessel has been extraordinarily high, and when such a vessel is lost the insurance money, however high this may be, is no longer a sufficient compensation for the tonnage lost, which cannot now be replaced and which could well be used after the war.

"The North German Lloyd also had to pay equally high premiums in two other cases where two of its vessels in neutral ports had been ordered to sail for home. When for a ship of the value of 10,000,000 marks, for instance, an insurance premium of 6 per cent. must be paid, this is no small matter, even when a return of 2 per cent. is made on the ship's safe arrival. Under these conditions it may readily be understood that no great profit can be obtained.

"The endeavor to make the German mercantile marine, after the war, as far as possible free of the London insurance market brought with it the need of obtaining greater cover for the perils of the sea in Germany itself. Hence, it is the intention to establish in Bremen the marine insurance business also. A favorable opportunity to this end presented itself when the Securitas Insurance Company of Berlin, which up till now transacted only accident and employers' liability business, decided to apply itself to the marine insurance and fire reinsurance business. We succeeded in getting this company to come to Bremen. Under the management of a Bremen syndicate, at the head of which was the Bremen National Bank and the bankers, E. C. Weyhausen, of the same place, a capital of 4,000,000 marks was raised, making the total capital of the Securitas 8,000,000 marks.

Mr. Heineken asserts that the statement that after the war all the needs of German companies will have been met and that they will all have very rich returns is not justified. He is, however, far from holding a pessimistic view with regard to the future of German shipping. "The considerable diminution of the world's tonnage during the war," he states, "which is in the first place to be attributed to the activity of our submarines, will after the conclusion of peace have as consequence a raise in the rates of freight, from which the mercantile fleet will profit. The question is, how long this bull on the freight market will last. A further question is whether German shipping will really be destined to make unlimited use of these circumstances. A temporary reduction of certain imports after the conclusion of peace cannot be avoided."

He believes that a doubly difficult task awaits German shipping after the war. First, he says, it must compare and make up the great loss and damage of the years of war, and, secondly, "make up the gigantic advantage which, through the circumstances of the war, has so extraordinarily strengthened enemy and neutral shipowners in advance of us. This much, however, is certain—that the German companies, if they are helped over the first difficult times, when they will have to meet the most severe competition from their foreign competitors, will be able to withstand this severe trial and win back the lost ground."

ELECTRICAL ANNIVERSARY.

Use of Incandescent Light Here Celebrated at Exposition.

A New York electrical anniversary was celebrated yesterday at the Electrical Exposition at Grand Central Palace. Thirty-five years ago the first incandescent light was installed in New York and a bronze tablet, on view at the exposition yesterday, will be erected at 257 Pearl Street which housed the original generating plant.

The bas relief shows the interior of the old station, with six generators to serve a territory one mile in area and to provide 1,000 lamps. The power plant that has succeeded it supplies to Manhattan an equivalent of 15,000,000 lamps. Forty-five cents will buy as much of this electricity now as $7.50 would thirty-five years ago. Thomas Edison supervised the building of the original power plant, and when the pressure of work was great he slept on a pile of material in the building.

In reviewing the progress of electricity in New York, Arthur Williams, President of the exposition, said that one of the greatest services was to do away with the heavy work in the home. Electricity had emancipated women from household drudgery in the cities. In the present exposition there was an electric laundry and kitchen in which all the laborious work was done by motor.

One of the military features of the show is the exhibit of the Signal Corps, in charge of three experts in straight arm signaling. They are Sergeant Joseph R. Donath and Corporals Brandon and Borden stationed at Fort Wood, Bedloe's Island. A contest in signaling, open to teams of three men from the various branches of the service, including the navy and the Naval Reserve, will be held next Wednesday afternoon. The transmitting signal men will be on the roof of the Grand Central Palace, and the receivers and recorders on the roof of buildings within a third of a mile radius.

FOOD CONSERVERS MEET.

State and Federal Agents Discuss Plans for Co-ordination.

Representatives of national and State food conservation movements met yesterday at the Hotel Biltmore to discuss the subject with the view of co-ordination and to prevent duplication of effort. It developed that the inability of farmers to obtain coal for threshing machines had delayed threshing.

At the meeting were Frederick C. Wolcott, representing Food Administrator Hoover; John Mitchell, Chairman of the State Commission; Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman of the State Commission; George D. Pratt, representing Governor Whitman; Deputy Attorney General Alfred Becker and Charles N. Betts, Secretary of the State Commission. Mr. Betts read letters from several farmers telling of the scacity of men to work the farms.

Mr. Wolcott told the State Commission that, in his opinion, the regulation of the price of wheat, meat, and sugar was a task that should be taken up by the State food organization. The conference also discussed the advisability of adopting the war loaf system now in operation in France. The consensus of opinion was, however, that conditions at present did not warrant such a measure.

HOLDS BOLO'S $1,200,000.

Sequestrator Guards the Sum He Advanced to Senator Humbert.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The military court inquiring into the activities of Bolo Pacha, has appointed a sequestrator for the money Bolo advanced to Senator Charles Humbert, owner of the Journal. It amounts to 6,000,000 francs, which the sequestrator will intrust to the care of the Deposit and Consignment Office, a section of the Ministry of Finance.

Senator Humbert today applied to the Tribunal of Commerce to have the contract annulled by which Bolo Pacha acquired 1,100 bonds of the Journal. M. Bonzon, attorney for Bolo Pacha, argued that the decision should be withheld until the conclusion of the military case against his client. The tribunal decided in accordance with M. Bonzon's argument and postponed judgment.

SAYS FARMERS MAKE GOOD PROFIT ON MILK

LABOR SHORTAGE SERIOUS

Loton Horton Tells Mayor's Committee Greater Shortage Is Likely if War Continues.

Some light was thrown on the cost of milk delivery in this city by Loton Horton, President of the Sheffield Farms-Slawson-Decker Company, who was examined by the Mayor's Committee at its hearing into milk prices yesterday. Mr. Morton told of constantly rising expenses both to the producers and the consumers, and altogether painted a rather dark outlook for milk deliveries in New York. He preceded to the witness stand I. Elkin Nathans, Secretary of the New York Milk Conference Board, the organization of the milk dealers. Taking exception to the testimony of the officials of the Dairymen's League who have already been examined Mr. Horton said that, in his opinion, there was reason for the belief that last year 88 per cent. of the farmers made good money. In reply to the direct question as to whether he believed the cost of milk to the distributors was too high, Mr. Horton said:

"I would not like to say that. Indeed, I do not know. It would take somebody a whole lot wiser than I am to answer that question. I know a lot of farmers. They talk to me personally and tell me that they are up against it. One man who keeps fifty cows told me that he had no one but himself, his wife, and his son-in-law to milk the cows, and he would have to shut down. He could not get the labor. I want to say that if the war lasts two years and we don't conserve our fats we are going to hear some very sad tidings. They are taking the sinews off our farms and the farmers are going to be in pretty bad shape."

Mr. Horton said that his company had to close down twenty-one milk stations because they cost money manufacturing by-products. In consideration of prices this loss through by-products had to be considered, he added. Milk would cost the consumers 2 cents a quart less, he testified, if they would call for it at the stores instead of having it delivered, and in this connection he pointed out that the east side was paying 10 and 11 cents for dipped milk, which was lower than milk could be purchased in either Chicago or Boston, where loose milk cannot be sold. "Bottled milk," he added, "is only 30 per cent. of all that is sold in the city."

In reply to questions bearing on the costs of distribution, the witness said that the increase in wages had been an important factor. On Aug. 1, he testified, 3,400 employes had an increase in pay amounting to $3,000, and this, he added, was the fourth advance in eighteen months. He figured the breakage of bottles, the cost of cooling, the carting from trains in New Jersey, and numerous other charges in the costs of distribution. The loss of shrinkage and wastage, he testified, was about 2 per cent., and on 15,000,000 quarts a month amounted in money to about $21,000 at present prices. The increased cost had entailed an additional outlay of $700,000 to keep the business running. Although the company has an experimental farm in Delaware County, Mr. Horton stated, it was primarily for the purpose of raising good cows and getting pure milk, and no schedule of the cost of production has been kept.

Mr. Horton testified that he had been the President of his company for fifteen years. The capital stock was divided into $1,500,000 preferred and $1,200,000 common stock, and the Sheffield Farms By-Product Company had a capital stock of $700,000, half preferred and half common. The Sheffield Farms Company owned the preferred stock and so controlled the voting. The By-Products Company bought all the skimmed milk of the Sheffield Farms Company. Milk prices paid by his company, he said, were really higher than was reflected in the prices announced by the Dairymen's League, and 3 per cent. milk really cost $3.3 per 100 pounds, instead of $3.10, the price set by the league.

Before Mr. Horton left the stand he was told to submit to the committee the balance sheets of the company showing income and profits from all sources. Commissioner Walstein announced that it was proposed to have the books of the company examined by expert accountants. Mr. Horton was not cross-questioned, but, it was said, this will be done later.

WAR INDUSTRIES IN NEED OF LABOR

DRAFT PARTLY THE CAUSE

Suggestion That Army Exemptions Be Applied to Trades Instead of to Individuals.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The general shortage of labor in industries that must be kept going at top speed if the United States is to throw its whole strength into the war is giving considerable concern to Government officials studying the situation. Conditions in some parts of the country already threaten production of essential materials.

Large Government orders reaching into every branch of industry have stimulated business to an extent never before known. Coal mines are overtaxed, and railroads cannot move the country's freight. Shipyards are preparing to turn out as much tonnage next year as was built in the last decade. Munitions factories are searching the country for men.

The first army draft took large numbers of men out of essential industries, and the next, unless the present exemption policy is changed, will withdraw as many more. Officials are giving serious thought to a suggestion heard in many quarters—that, in forming the next draft army, exemptions be applied to industries instead of to individuals. Under the law as it now stands there is no provision for the exemption of classes.

Officials who want a general exemption policy carried out, point to the experience of Great Britain where thousands of skilled workmen who volunteered early in the war were taken from the trenches and sent back home to resume their occupations. They believe that if a general exemption policy is not enforced, it will become necessary to remove men from the non-essential industries to those which must be maintained during the war.

Suggestions of conscription of labor for employment in industries have not been considered seriously, although it is likely that men may be asked to volunteer for selected work, such as the cutting of spruce timber in the West for the manufacture of aircraft. Recruiting labor generally, however, officials say, will not prove successful, as men will prefer to work as civilians at higher pay and with more freedom of movement.

TO DISCUSS RAILWAY RATES.

Financial Officers' Meeting Opens in St. Louis Next Week.

The Society of Railway Financial officers will hold its eleventh annual meeting in St. Louis on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week. At this meeting it is probable that the proposal to reopen the rate case before the Interstate Commerce Commission will be discussed.

Among the speakers on the program are Frank Trumbull, Chairman of the Railway Executives' Advisory Committee, who will talk on "Shall Our Railroads be Financed by Stock or Debt?" and John C. Lonsdale, President of the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis, whose subject will be "Are Railroads Getting Their Dues?" Papers will be presented by R. W. Morrison of the Pennsylvania system on "Handling Liberty Loan Subscriptions"; by J. P. Reeves of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, on "Pension Systems for Smaller Transportation Companies," and by Arthur B. Jones of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, on "Women for Treasury Department Work."

Canada's Wheat Crop Coming In.

TORONTO, Oct. 12. — Under ideal weather conditions the last steps for the gathering of the crops along the line of the Canadian Northern in the West are being taken, according to a detailed crop report from its agents in Western Canada. Out of 165 agents reporting 28 show thrashing completed and 134 thrashing operations in full swing. Nearly all indicate excellent weather. The yields of wheat in some cases ran as high as 55 bushels to the acre, while 30 bushels occurred frequently.

LLOYD GEORGE PRAISES AND SPURS FARMERS

Says Britain Must Feed Herself and Let Us Supply Her Allies.

LONDON, Thursday, Oct. 11.—(Delayed.)—Addressing a deputation of farmers who called on him in London on Tuesday, Premier Lloyd George paid warm tribute to the great efforts of the farmers in the matter of food production. He defended them from the charge of profiteering, but added that he wanted to appeal to them to assist the Government in this very critical stage of the war, since they were fighting on one of the most important fronts, and if that front were broken the whole system of defense would collapse.

This appeal, the Premier said, was not due to anxiety on account of the activity of submarines, for, owing to the skill and courage of operations being conducted, that menace was diminishing rapidly, and the British net losses during the last month were less than in any similar period of time since September, 1916.

"Our anxiety," the Prime Minister added, "is due to the fact that the available world's supply of food is less than it has been for years. France and Italy both are in the world market for a larger proportion of cereals than ever, while Australia has been ruled out as a provider owing to its distance from the consuming nations. Hence it is incumbent on the British farmers that they do their utmost to make the country self-sustaining.

"Believe me, this war is depending more and more on these little islands. Week by week I see the burdens falling more heavily upon the shoulders of Great Britain, but I also see Great Britain straightening up to bear it. The enemy is not going to starve us, but that is not enough. We must produce such quantities of food that we will not need to go into the American market and snatch food out of the mouths of our allies."

COMMODITIES PRICES.

An Easing Up in Principal Foodstuffs Was One Feature.

In spite of the fact that Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices again showed more advances than declines in foodstuffs, the principal lowering of prices took place in the more important items. Flour dropped 35 cents a barrel, for instance, while at Chicago there was an easier tone to the provisions market. Butter, for the first time in several weeks, gave evidence of price weakness. On the whole, 72 of the 334 quotations in the general list showed change. Of these 39 were advances, compared with 52 advances in a total of 83 changes last week.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on thirty-nine standard commodities this week at this city, unless otherwise specified. With them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week last year:

Short ribs showed the only advance at Chicago this week, with live beef and live sheep unchanged. Live hogs were off, and the same was true of mess pork and prime lard. In the local dairy products declines of a cent and a half cent a pound were shown, respectively, by the best and the poorest grade of butter listed. The best cheese also fell off, but eggs continued their climb. In the best Western eggs the advance was not large, but nearby fancy eggs went up 4 cents a dozen to 62 cents. As compared with the price current this time a year ago, the latter showed a gain of 7 cents.

Potatoes and beans contributed the week's advances in the vegetables, the lone decline listed being supplied by white turnips. None of the fresh or dried fruits moved either way. Sugar showed no changes, and in the spices the revisions were equally divided between advances and declines. The decline in coffee was again apparent, both No. 7 Rio and No. 4 Santos being "off."

The metals market, with quotations on several items withdrawn, set a new record for quietness so far as price changes were concerned. There was not an advance in the whole list, and the only drop was contributed by pig aluminium, in ton lots. The grains market, minus wheat as a fluctuating commodity, managed to show five declines and no advances. Corn, oats, rye, malt and malting barley all were down.

Eight items up, one down, and one unchanged was the week's return in the hide list. The decline was in branded cow hides, while No. 1 kips did not change. Leather, though it still showed no quotable changes, continued firm in tone. The combined markets for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils produced twenty changes, and of these eleven were upward. Features were lacking.

In the naval stores resin and turpentine went up still higher. Chinese raw silk, hops, crude rubber, and M. F. book paper were included in the miscellaneous declines. The paint list swelled the total of declines by two.

The further sharp fluctuations in cotton through the week, resulting in no meagre net gain, brought out higher prices on several kinds of goods in the gray, as well as strengthened the price position of all the other fabrics made out of this staple. Burlaps also continued to mount, and in trade opinion there is no telling when and where the rise will end. Practically every sale of importance results in a higher quotation on goods still unsold. Much of the strength of the market, however, is due to the fact that there are not many of these.

DU PONT CANVASS IS SLOW.

Complainants Make Many Objections to the Counting.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 12.—When a recess was taken at 5 o'clock this afternoon until Tuesday morning in the canvass before a special master of the vote taken at a special meeting of du Pont Powder Company stockholders on Tuesday to determine whether the company should acquire the $60,000,000 worth of stock of the company, acquired for themselves by Pierre S. du Pont, President, and other defendant officials of the company, the announcement was made that the canvass was about one-third completed.

There was another flood of objections by counsel for the plaintiffs today against the counting of certain stock voted by the defendants or others "under the influence of the defendants."

While the official count has not been completed, the defendants say 2,020 stockholders voted in support of the defendants, as against 169 who voted in favor of Alfred I. du Pont and other complainants, and that of 220,298 shares of stock not actively connected with the plaintiffs or owned by defendants, 216,655 shares were voted in support of the defendants, as against 10,006 shares in favor of the complainants.

On the other hand, the complainants contend that the defendants have classed stock held by employes as independent stock, against the voting of which protests have been entered.

AGRICULTURAL CO. EARNINGS

International Corporation Reports Profits of $1,328,483.

The eighth annual report of the International Agricultural Corporation for the year ended June 30, issued yesterday to stockholders, shows profits of $1,328,483. While current liabilities increased, contingent liabilities decreased by $1,528,636. During the year bonds in the amount of $750,000 were retired, leaving the bonded indebtedness of the company at $10,723,100.

President S. B. Fleming says that on account of the war with Germany the company had to suspend negotiations with the Kaliwerke Aschersleben for the purchase of the International company's stock in Sollstedt's Treasury.

HEAVY DRY GOODS SALES.

A Large Number of Customers Are in the Market.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale shipments of dry goods for the week are in excess of the corresponding period of last year. Road sales for both immediate and future delivery are ahead of the very heavy volume in the same period of a year ago. A large number of customers have been in the market during the week. Collections are strong."

LONDON MARKET IS DULL.

Allied Bonds, Home Rails, and Oil Shares Continue Firm.

LONDON, Oct 12.—The stock market finished the week today dull and cheerful. There was a slight easing in the war loan, but the allied bonds, home rails, and oil shares continued firm. South African buying assisted gold mines, while shipping stocks, especially Peninsular and Oriental, were firm.

Money was scarcer and discount rates were firm. A batch of Italian bills was placed on the market and arrangements are proceeding for more Russian bills.

Trading Quiet on Bourse.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 61 francs 10 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs 45 centimes.

Holiday Quiet in Suit Trade.

Though quite a number of the local cloak and suit manufacturers opened shop yesterday, few remained at their posts after the lunch hour. Not many resident buyers were about, and most of the out-of-town buyers either stayed out or went away to be gone until Monday. As a result, little business was transacted except that which came in through the mail.

Opinion Varies on Bustle.

The success of the bustle effect in suits and dresses continues to be a question on which the trade cannot agree. One house will report that it is having a strong demand for the new silhouette, while another will contend that it is only a passing fancy and that its uses so far are mostly confined to the show window. "Inasmuch as it is an American inspiration," says one manufacturer, "it will be interesting to watch its development."

Women's Shoes Sell Freely.

One of the most active classes of goods in the whole shoe market at the present time is high-grade stuff for women. Tan, in several shades, and gray are the leading colors. All-tan calf shoes are selling well, as the shoes with tan calf vamps and suede or buckskin tops. These are wanted both in high and low heel models, as are brown and gray kid shoes. One of the features of the call for these goods is that the lighter shades are selling more freely in the more expensive shoes.

Low-Collared Waists Selling.

In spite of the great demand for high-collared waists in neat appearing, tailor-made effects buttoning down the front, a number of local manufacturers have gotten out many attractive garments with the low-rolling collars and buttons in the back. In these models there is opportunity for trimming on the back as well as on the front, and it is reported that they are being sold in very sizable quantities. Georgette is being used in the great majority of these models, mostly in the darker shades.

Modified Military Styles Appear.

Though the military activities of the country, strangely enough, have exerted but little influence on the styles for women thus far, it is reported that modified military effects in some instances are attracting considerable attention. Also the cutaway in suits for women, according to reports from the trade, is reappearing and meeting with a very favorable reception. "But as to military styles," said one manufacturer, "undoubtedly they will be much more in evidence a year from now, or even before then, if peace should be declared."

Jewelry Sales Continue Large.

Reports from the jewelry trade indicate that there is no fault to be found there with the condition of business. Retailers all over the country are taking goods liberally in anticipation of an excellent holiday trade, the merchandise running the whole range of quality and price. One thing that is causing some uncertainty in the trade is the 3 per cent. war tax levied on manufactures of jewelry. This tax is added to the invoices sent to retailers. Returns to the Government are required monthly, as the goods are sold, which puts no small burden on the bookkeeping department. In some cases extra employes will be required to handle the detail.

They Have Their Troubles, Too.

In spite of the excellent business that is now being done in the local market, manufacturing furriers are not wholly unworried. "We are now in the unenviable position," said one of them yesterday, "of being squeezed up from the bottom by the rise in raw material and labor costs and down from the top by the buyers. Between the two, profits are being pretty well flattened. The rise in raw furs is the worst factor in the situation. So sharply have most skins advanced over prices current early in the year that, even when we put a selling price on our goods that yields us less than a normal, legitimate profit, the howl that goes up from the buyers is a fearful thing to hear."

Raw Silk Prices Unsettled.

The Japanese raw silk market continues quiet, with a downward tendency. Considerable buying is reported in the latest cables, however, which may indicate that a turning point either has been reached or soon will be. The visible stock is estimated at 16,000 bales. The Canton market, according to cables received by A. P. Villa & Brothers of this city, is being dragged down by the bearish news from Japan. While the drop is not rapid, reelers must eventually lower prices in order to obtain business. The sixth crop is estimated at 6,000 bales. A fairly large business is reported from Shanghai in tussahs, which are again advancing. Other silks there are weaker. Italy cables no change in prices. The local market is devoid of feature at the moment.

Who Should Get the Preference?

The question came up here yesterday as to who should get the preference in a care where a certain article is scarce and where one merchant orders a duplicate lot at the same time an initial order for the same article is placed by a second buyer. In most cases a problem of this kind is solved by proportioning the amount that can be sold, but a well-known local salesman contends that this is wholly unfair to the first man. "If a merchant is wise enough to accept a salesman's statement that this or that thing is very scarce and should be bought early," he said, "he is entitled to all the goods he can be given. There is no reason why he should be penalized in a commercial way to favor some other buyer who looked on the salesman's talk as 'bull.' The latter buyer always comes rushing in at the last moment, when he discovers the true situation, and makes trouble all around."

ACTS TO GET COAL FOR FREEZING OHIO

Garfield Names a State Administrator and Modifies Ruling to Insure State a Supply.

MAYORS WERE SEIZING FUEL

And Widespread Suffering Was Imminent with the Temperature Low and Snow Falling.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 12.—The appointment of Homer H. Johnson of Cleveland as "coal dictator" for the State and the reported action of the Fuel Administration at Washington to modify recent regulations so as to provide coal for Ohio have come just in the nick of time.

Mayors throughout Ohio were preparing to day to seize coal to prevent widespread suffering. Some have already done so, and with a big drop in the temperature and the falling of snow in many towns came indications that a drastic course on the part of other Mayors was imminent.

Several Mayors today called State officials by telephone to ask if it would be legal for them to confiscate coal from railroads. They were told no. Demands for coal poured in on the Governor, the Public Utilities Commission, and the State Coal Clearing House—all telling a story of great need.

Ohio State University officials reported that unless coal could be obtained for the university the institution would probably be forced to close.

In several small communities light plants have been closed for several days because of lack of coal. Many schools have been dismissed and public utilities all over the State are running on a very low supply of coal. The Columbus street car system was tied up this morning for nearly an hour because of the lack of coal, and thousands of people were forced to walk to work.

This is the second time within two days that the street cars have been stopped for this reason.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—Harry A. Garfield, the Federal Fuel Commissioner, was here today and assured Cleveland that it would not huffer from coal shortage. With Mr. Garfield came the first snowstorm of the Winter and predictions of freezing temperatures by the Weather Bureau. Mr. Garfield made this statement::

"We have got to get the coal; we have the power to get it; we are going to get it."

Immediately after arriving here Mr. Garfield went into a conference with the Coal Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and later announced the appointment of H. H. Johnson as State Fuel Administrator. He left tonight for Mentor, the home of his mother, Mrs. Lucretia Rudolph Garfield, who is seriously ill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The threatened coal shortage in Ohio will be averted, fuel administration officials said today, by an order suspending in part provisions of the priority proclamation directing that all central field coal moving toward lake ports go to the Northwest. Ohio operators have been directed to supply first enough fuel to meet the pressing needs in Ohio and send what is left to the Northwest.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 12.—Declaring that "concerted action by retail dealers in advancing prices to unreasonable figures, apparently with a determination to ignore Federal action, is producing lack of confidence in authority which must prove injurious," Governor Capper today sent a letter to Harry A. Garfield, Federal Fuel Administrator, calling his attention to the "extrmely unsatisfactory condition of the retail coal market in the State of Kansas."

FLOUR MILLS' OUTPUT CUT.

Minneapolis Concerns to Turn Out Only 60% of Capacity.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 12.—Minneapolis flour mills today were ordered to cut down their production to 60 per cent. of capacity until further notice, in order to relieve the scarcity of wheat at Eastern mills.

The order was issued by the milling division of the Food Administration, following a two-day executive session here. Iowa, Montana and North and South Dakota mills likewise are affected.

The local mills have been running at almost full capacity for the last two or three weeks.

Education Notes.

The second year's salary, $2,540, for heads of model schools and for Principals of schools for the deaf, has been made the initial salary in said schools, thus reducing the schedule from six to five years.

The employment of an assistant to the Board of Examiners has been approved.

The Board of Education has excused, with pay, the absence on Sept. 10 and 11 of Wallace A. Manheimer, a teacher in the Evander Childs High School, having been caused by his attendance at Washington, D. C., to give information on a matter of water purification.

A leave of absence, without pay, has been granted to Miss Fannichelle Curtis, Director of Kindergartens, to enable her to visit England and France in connection with a Citizens' Committee for the service of the children of America during the war.

District Supt. Jenkins has been empowered to open for social purposes on Thursday evenings during October, November, and December such of the evening school buildings as he may deem necessary.

There is a lack of trained teachers of lip reading in the public schools for the thousands of children with defective hearing that cannot follow the instruction in the classroom. These children, who are not deaf enough to be sent to schools for deaf and deaf-mute children, have so far been pitifully neglected by the city authorities. Miss Louise I. Morgenstern, Principal of the Manhattan School for the Hard of Hearing, 7 East Forty-second Street, who organized the first evening class in lip reading in the public schools of Manhattan, has arranged for a special training course for public school teachers who wish to prepare themselves to teach these children the spoken word by watching the movements of the lips of the speaker. It is hoped that a number of public-spirited men and women will take interest in this course and prepare to fill a long-felt want.

SEVEN LIBERALS IN CANADA'S CABINET

Two Others, Murray of Nova Scotia and Carvell of New Brunswick, Expected to Join.

LAURIER STILL LEADS PARTY

Liberals Refuse to Allow Him to Retire Pending the Coming Election.

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—Ten members of the new Union Government for Canada, which it was agreed to form during an all-night conference between the leaders of the two major parties, were sworn in at 1 o'clock today. These portfolios were announced:

Minister of Militia—Major Gen. MEWBURN, (Liberal.)

Minister of Overseas Service—Sir EDWARD KEMP, (Conservative.)

Immigration and Colonization—J. A. CALDER, (Liberal.)

Interior—ARTHUR MEIGHEN, (Conservative.)

Agriculture—T. A. CREERAR, (Liberal.)

Customs—A. L. SIFTON, (Liberal.)

Railways and Canals—J. D. REID, (Conservative.)

Secretary of State for Mines (new)—MARTIN BURRELL, (Conservative.)

As Minister of Overseas Service Sir Edward Kemp succeeds Sir George Perley, who becomes Canadian High Commissioner at London, in which capacity he has been acting temporarily.

Frank Cochrane was appointed Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Northern Railroad.

Other portfolios remaining to be filled were still the subject of conference this afternoon. It was expected that the final composition of the new Government would be announced tonight. With the entrance of five Liberals into the Cabinet today, the Liberal representation is thus far brought up to seven. Colonel C. C. Ballontine and Hugh Guthrie, Liberals, were sworn in as Minister of Public Works and Solicitor General respectively last week.

Indications were that Premier George Murray of Nova Scotia and F. B. Carvell of New Brunswick, Liberals, would agree to join the Government before night.

Formation of a union Government will not eliminate opposition in Parliament. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Liberal followers in Parliament and in the country have so firmly objected to accepting the resignation of leadership offered by Sir Wilfrid that he has decided not to press its acceptance.

Sir Wilfrid will lead his party in the coming election, and will take the position that conscription for 100,000 Canadian reinforcements having been enacted, the law must be carried out, but there must be referendum before further men are taken by conscription. With Messrs. Calder and Sifton in the new Borden Government, the election machinery of both parties in Western Canada is in the hands of the Administration. The return of a large majority of Union Government representatives west of the great lakes is looked for. The entry of Premier Murray will give the Union Government similar advantage in Nova Scotia. The return of the Government in the approaching election is regarded as certain, Sir Wilfrid Laurier probably having a majority following only from the Province of Quebec.

J. S. REAR DENIES CHARGES.

Mine Promoter Says Broker's Suit Is Not Based on Fact.

James S. Rear, the Arizona mining promoter, living at the Hotel Plaza, who is being sued in the Supreme Court for damages for slander by James T. Blake, a broker, on the ground that Mr. Rear called him a "traitor," and also for $15,000 for alleged services in introducing him to ex-Senator William H. Reynolds and some of the latter's associates, said yesterday that the charges against him were untrue.

Mr. Rear said that the Lavell Gold Mining Company, which figures in he $15,000 suit, is headed by George B. Leighton of the geological department of Harvard University as President, and is operated by a group of New York and Boston capitalists, but that Senator Reynolds had no interest in the mine. He also declared that in his remarks concerning Blake, on which the $10,000 slander suit is based, he made no mention of the dinner to Senator Reynolds, which Mayor Mitchel attended.

Count Luxburg Interned.

Count von Luxburg, after having received his passports, disappeared from Buenos Aires, but was found early in the week in the southern part of the Province of Buenos Aires and arrested.

MUST EXTERMINATE THE "WAR BARONS"

Lord Robert Cecil Hopes for Anglo-Franco-American Combination to Curb Germans.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Discussing the possibility for permanent peace after the war, Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, told The Associated Press today that the United States, Great Britain, and France must find some way of exterminating the German "war baron" class, which finds war a profitable business, and spends its peace time energy in inciting war.

"The Central Powers have been kept in the war so long," said Sir Robert, "not merely by the German military caste, but also by the classes who get rich out of war—the vultures of commerce and industry. The military caste of Germany we shall convince by force of arms, but the commercial vultures we must attack in their pockets and teach them that war is not a profitable business.

"That is partly the business of a blockade, but a blockade by itself will not do everything. We must go further and cut off the overseas branches of the war barons in the Far East, South America, and elsewhere. The American Trading with the Enemy act is admirably conceived for the purpose of cramping this business, but more must still be done. These vultures cannot carry on without relations outside of Germany. The great source of their power has been their financial connections with neutrals. Without financial connections they lose credit and without credit they are done.

"New York has enormous international financial strength; so has London and so has Paris. I do not know exactly how this power can be applied to the question under consideration, but I am anxious that the matter should be confined in those centres. Surely our combined financial strength is sufficient to smother these international vultures if we act together."

EXPLAINS DUTCH CABLE BAN

Lord Robert Cecil Says Germans Got Concrete War Material.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The prohibition of commercial cable communication with Holland until the Netherlands Government restricts the transit of sand, gravel, and scrap metals through Holland from Germany to Belgium was explained to The Associated Press today by Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade.

"The Dutch," he said, "have been allowing the Germans to transport across Dutch waterways vast quantities of gravel and sand. There is not the slightest doubt that the Germans are making direct use of this to our detriment. The Germans are using enormous quantities of concrete in pill boxes, dugouts, and in many other ways.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 12.—The Dutch Foreign Office today issued a statement concerning the British prohibition of the use of cables by Holland:

"The Netherlands Government can satisfy the British desire to stop the transit of sand and gravel to Belgium only when the British Government can show, despite the declarations of the German authorities and the investigations of Dutch officers, that the materials are used for war purposes."

SUFFERING IN JERUSALEM.

Consul Glazebrook Thinks British Will Be There by December.

The Rev. Dr. Otis A. Glazebrook, Consul at Jerusalem, who has been away for three years without a holiday, arrived yesterday at an Atlantic port.

"When I left Jerusalem," he said, there were 80,000 to 100,000 Turkish troops between that city and Gaza. The British were making headway steadily, and it looked as if they would be in Jerusalem before the heavy rains set in in December. The condition of the civilian population in Jerusalem was desperate indeed. The Turkish soldiers were fed at the expense of the civilians.

"Americans in Jerusalem and other parts of Palestine have been treated most courteously by the Turkish officials, who did all in their power to aid us in getting away. We left Jerusalem on May 15, and have been on the road ever since."

Dr. Glazebrook, who was accompanied by his wife, went to his home in Elizabeth to spend a few days with his family before going on to Washington to report to the State Department.

Pleasant A. Stovall, Minister to Switzerland, who arrived on the same liner with his son, J. G. Stovall, for a short vacation, said that he had been at Berne four years.

The Swiss have become a nation of whisperers, he said, because of the number of spies and agents of foreign Governments who swarm everywhere, so that when one Swiss meets another for a conference they mutually exclaim, "Hush!" and converse in whispers.

A New Book by Amy Lowell

Tendencies in Modern American Poetry

By AMY LOWELL

In this new volume Miss Lowell again turns to criticism. For the first time, the new poetic renaissance is considered critically and given a perspective. Taking six leading poets, each a type of one of the trends of contemporary verse, she has written a short biographical account of the man and a critical summary of his work; relating him to the past, and showing the steps by which he left it to create the present.

"It would be disagreeably obvious to call Miss Lowell's prose 'poetic.' Its style conceals style; its sculptural simplicity has the regnant beauty of line . . . Always she aims at the dominant attitude of each of her poets. . . . She achieves chiselled imagery, the reflection in the mirror of words, of the clear, bright flame of immortal genius." —Review of Reviews.

"THE GREATEST OF ALL WAR BOOKS"

UNDER FIRE (LE FEU)

By HENRI BARBUSSE. Translated by Fitzwater Wray

THE STORY OF A SQUAD

Over 300,000 Copies of the French Edition Already Sold

James Douglas in The London Observer says: "Some unknown man of genius who calls himself 'Fitzwater Wray' has translated the supreme novel of the war, and here it is in its divine simplicity of truth, undraped and unbedizened. There are some translations which are themselves originals, and this is one of them. I do not hesitate to put it on the shelf beside Urquhart's Rabelais or FitzGerald's Omar, for it is in my mind already a classic. Vainly I grope for a clue to the identity of this creative translator who is at once a man of letters, a master of prose, a specialist in French and English slang, a poet and a prophet more terrible than Tolstoy. Truth of course is the summit of satire, the apex of irony, and this journal of a platoon is the nude truth of war as it is seen by a common soldier who is also an artist and philosopher. But it is a story which is steeped in the beauty of comradeship and it is told with the most flawlessly delicate art. To read this book is to understand. If any book could kill war, this is the book."

SOX SMASH WAY TO LATE VICTORY IN FIFTH CONTEST

Chicago Overcomes Big Lead of New York and Takes World's Series Game, 8 to 5.

UPHILL BATTLE IS WAGED

Giants Ahead, 5 to 2, in Sixth Inning, Only to Fall Before Courageous Club.

HERZOG'S ERROR IS FATAL

Local Captain Drops Ball, Which Allows Opponents to Tie Score and Triumph in Eighth.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—When defeat seemed to have Chicago firmly in its clutches at Comiskey Park this afternoon, and the Giants were romping gayly along with a 5 to 2 lead, the White Sox suddenly launched an overpowering drive which spread its grim destruction through two innings and left McGraw's men floundering in the throes of an 8 to 5 defeat.

It was a game, nerve-tingling rally, this dogged, uphill fight of a badly beaten ball club, which had lost everything but its courage. The local warriors clubbed their way through Slim Sallee in the seventh, and the ferocious attack, aided by a colossal error by Herzog, deadlocked the score at 5 to 5. The relentless attack swept through the eighth inning, until Sallee was batted out of the box and the American Leaguers had climbed to victory.

The sensational winning of this fifth game of the world's series revived the ebbing enthusiasm of 27,000 Chicago fans to the fullest flood, and the crowd, as well as the White Sox players, were frantic with joy when McMullin tossed Holke out at third for the play which ended the most tempestuous game the world's series has seen in many years. The Sox have won three games now and the Giants two.

Weather Against Good Baseball.

It was miserable baseball weather, being so cold that spectators and players shivered in the wintry blasts. Both teams at times played poor baseball, for cold fingers and chilly feet had a refrigerating effect on enthusiasm and encouraged errors. There were plenty of fielding blunders by both clubs, and many were costly.

Overcoats and furs were needed to keep the spectators from shivering in the stands, and the players didn't get warmed up until the Sox started to put the Giants to rout in the seventh. By the time the eighth inning was ended the Giants were as warm as toast from chasing the ball around, but the warmth brought no comfort to them.

From a New York standpoint, the one outstanding error in the Giants' game this afternoon was keeping Slim Sallee on the mound when the Sox were boisterously fattening their world's series batting averages with hits. Manager McGraw, although he had Pol Perritt warming up all the afternoon, persisted in working Sallee when it was plain to be seen that he was on the ragged edge in the sixth inning. Why Sallee started the seventh is difficult to understand. The weather was against the Higginsport Sheriff from the start, and although he wasn't hit hard until the fifth and sixth, he was inclined to be wild and was nowhere near as effective as he was in the opening game here a week ago.

McGraw's reliance in Sallee amounted to over-confidence, and Slim wasn't pulled from the game until the Sox had the victory in their hands. The last Sox run was made off Perritt. When Sallee went to pieces, the Giants went with him and their defense crumpled up like tissue paper.

Early Attack Smothers Sox.

New York started with an aggressiveness which left the White Sox stunned with surprise. Rebel Russell, the big left-hander of the Sox, who has begged so often to be given a chance against the Giants, got his chance. After three New York batsmen had faced him Manager Rowland rushed out on the field and led Russell gently away.

Williams and Danforth had been warming up in left field, but Rowland had them there only to fool McGraw, for when Russell was hammered out of the game, he called out Eddie Cicotte to face the New Yorkers. Cicotte proved to be little better than Russell, but the support he received from the Sox players made him appear weaker than he really was.

Once the White Sox had the Giants on the run in the seventh, Rowland used excellent judgment and yanked Cicotte from the game to insert Swede Risberg as a pinch hitter. This was the best strategic move of the game, for it was his hit in the sixth which scored Buck Weaver with the second Chicago run of the game, and which started the attack in the following inning that sent four runners clattering over the plate so fast that the Giants were dumfounded.

For the Sox Eddie Collins lived up to his brilliant world's series reputation and figured prominently in the Giants' tumble both by his brilliant fielding and with his bat. Eddie whacked out three hits, his spunky drive to centre in the eighth breaking up the tie and pushing John Collins over the plate with the run which sent the Sox into the lead. Joe Jackson contributed three hits.

Rush of Voters on the Last Day Brings Figures to Within 43,542 of 1916.

BROOKLYN LEADS ALL

254,745 Listed There, a Gain of 317 Over This Borough—Total for 1916, 738,737.

While this year's registration throughout the city fell about 43,000 below the total registration of last year, when a President was elected, it was higher than that of 1913, the last Mayoralty year. The total registration for all the boroughs this year was 695,195. The registration yesterday was 248,572.

The registration went far beyond the expectations of the political leaders, who figured that the light registration during the week would result in a poor showing. In 1913 the total registration for the city was 667,623 and last year the total was 738,737. In 1914 the total for the city was 680,036 and in 1915 it amounted to 667,811. Brooklyn passed Manhattan this year by 317.

Owing to the heavy registration the returns were not received until early this morning.

The registration in Manhattan yesterday amounted to 85,875, and the total for the six days this year was 254,428. This compared favorably with 269,658 for last year, a Presidential year, but was not up to the total figures of 1913, the last Mayoralty year, when 265,119 persons registered. In 1914 the total registration for the borough was 255,284, and in 1913 the total for the borough was 251,631.

Registration in the Bronx showed a big gain over the figures for 1913, and was only slightly behind that for last year. The total registration for the borough yesterday was 34,860, and the total for the six days this year was 99,402. In 1913 the total registration for the Bronx was 83,312. Last year the total figures for the borough were 100,574. In 1914 the total was 84,882, and in 1915 the total for the borough was 87,303.

The total registration in Richmond yesterday was 7,329, and the total for the six days this year was 16,317. This is 918 behind the total for last year, when the number registered was 17,235. In 1913, the last Mayoralty year, the total registration in Richmond was 16,708. In 1914 it was 15,999, and in 1915, 16,786.

EXPRESS FAITH IN NAVY.

German Newspapers Unshaken in Their Confidence.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Friday, Oct. 12. (via London.)—Newspapers of all shades are absolutely unanimous in their unshaken confidence in the navy, despite the indiscretions which led to the unveiling of the revolt in circumstances that are bound to lend an importance which it did not really possess.

The Vorwärts intimates that the trouble was confined to one of the smaller warships, and had its origin with three young fellows whose heads had been turned by tales circulated about the participation of the young sailors in the Russian revolution.

However that may be, the Vorwärts says, if the story as told in the Reichstag should lead Germany's enemies to believe that conditions in the German Navy are anything like those in Russia, they might come and investigate for themselves.

The newspaper adds that nothing would so speedily destroy any impression of weakness caused by the story of the revolt as an attempt on the part of the British Navy to invade German waters.

Administration to Turn Its Whole Weight Into Remainder of Drive.

SHAW APPEALS FOR AID

Ex-Secretary of Treasury Says Failure of Loan Means Murder of Our Soldiers.

RED CROSS ISSUES A CALL

Miss Boardman Asserts It Is Duty of Every Person to End Awful Conditions Abroad.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—An official announcement by the Treasury Department tonight again laid emphasis on the need for all to join in a determined drive if the second Liberty Loan is to be a success. It was stated that with allowances made for incomplete returns and taking estimates of the most optimistic Chairman on Transactions, thus far the bonds were not attaining anywhere near the momentum that they must if the desired goal is to be reached.

Forecasters in close touch with the situation, it was stated, hesitated to predict that many more than $525,000,000 worth of the bonds had been sold. The situation at best, it was explained, probably is that 88 per cent. of the maximum quota of $5,000,000,000 and 80 per cent. of the minimum quota remain to be subscribed before the sale closes on Saturday, Oct. 27.

Actual figures at hand from twelve Federal Reserve Banks showed that with the close of business Thursday night, the total amount taken was $344,195,550. This total leaves out the returns from one reserve bank because of a holiday in the district. This is about 7 per cent. of the maximum quota and the first half of the campaign ended tonight.

New Factor in Campaign.

The whole weight of the Administration is to be thrown into the balance for the rest of the campaign, and a drive of dimensions unapproached heretofore is to be made during the two weeks that remain before the closing of the subscription books. A new factor, calculated to hearten the host of workers and to galvanize the country into a realization that the most strenuous efforts must be made if the big drive is to be consummated successfully, will be introduced into the campaign, probably within twenty-four hours.

The time has come, officials feel, when the people of the country must be made to realize, in a manner that leaves no doubt, that they must subscribe without further delay to the full limit of their means. From President Wilson down officials are understood to be united in this belief. The campaign must be given new impetus at once, it is felt, and steps to give the impetus will be taken without delay.

Mr. Shaw Addresses 30,000.

Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury, made an impassioned address here today to 30,000 persons who collected about the south steps of the Treasury Department at a Liberty Loan meeting. The famous Great Lakes Band of 250 pieces, led by John Philip Sousa stirred the crowd to much enthusiasm.

The greatest demonstration came when Mr. Shaw, his head bared and his hands raised, shouted: "I thank God we are in this war! I would be ashamed of myself, I would be ashamed of my country if, after God has given us the best place on the map of the world and populated it with the best people of the world, and poured the wealth of the earth into our laps, we should stand back and take no part in this great struggle to make this planet safe.

"The boys who have enlisted are ready to offer their lives for this great cause, but they are asking you to share in the sacrifice. They cannot stand at the front without your support. And if we fail to give them that support we are doing no less than murdering our own dear boys."

Referring to the great national necessity for sacrifice in order to win the war, the speaker said:

"Let me remind you that if the war is lost there will be nothing left under our flag to live for. So far as I am concerned, I would prefer to have lost the great war of independence and remained an English dependency, with a Government like Canada's, than to be a German vassal for all time. I would prefer to have seen two republics in this blessed land that we now glorify as one than for all of us to be vassals to Germany forever. All that we have is at stake."

Miss Boardman's Appeal.

The American Red Cross also joined in the general appeal through Miss Mabel T. Boardman, who described the suffering in Europe, and added:

"To help bring this awful condition to an end is the duty and privilege of every man, woman, and child in America. Civilization turns to this great nation as its savior from the spirit of militarism, which is so largely responsible for the world wide calamity of war.

"Everyone who subscribes to the liberating the world from the horrors of the present strife; in lessening the suffering of myriads of our fellow men and in the saving of the lives of the soldiers and sailors of the

BUENOS AIRES, Friday, Oct. 12.—A demonstration in favor of neutrality was held here today, Germans and Spaniards participating quite largely. Several clashes occurred between the demonstrators and the crowds favoring a rupture with Germany. On several occasions the police were forced to charge with drawn sabres, and a few among the rioters were wounded.

A settlement of the railway strike has been reached, and it is expected that train service will be resumed tomorrow. For three weeks there has been complete suspension of traffic throughout the republic.

MAYO REPORTS AT CONFERENCE

BENSON IS ALSO PRESENT

Secretary Calls "Tommy-Rot" Story That Mayo Predicts North Sea Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—History was undoubtedly made in the Wyoming Avenue residence of Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, tonight, when he conferred with Admiral Mayo, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic battleship fleet, and Admiral William S. Benson, Chief of the Bureau of Naval Operations, which is virtually the general naval staff of this Government. But for the present, at least, there will be no disclosure as to what occurred at the conference.

Admiral Mayo had just reached Washington from the naval conference in London. He was invited to make his first oral report on his mission at Mr. Daniels's residence so as to insure an absence of interruptions.

The Admiral went into an intimate statement of his conferences with British and French naval officers, and with Vice Admiral Sims and other officers of the American naval forces abroad. This first-hand statement, based on inner knowledge of the naval war plans of the British Admiralty, afforded Secretary Daniels and Admiral Benson an accurate picture of the Entente's major naval plans, the Anglo-France-American joint campaign against the German U-boat and the naval convoying of American troop and supply ships to France, as well as of food and munitions ships to England.

Admiral Mayo will have a conference soon with President Wilson, and will give the bureau chiefs and the General Board of the Navy, in confidential conversations, the benefit of the information he has brought from London.

Secretary Daniels would not say tonight, following the conference, whether it had resulted in the adoption of any change in American nav l policy. It was intimated that whenever such plans were shaped it would be inadvisable, for military reasons, to announce them to the public until after the purposes sought to be obtained by secrecy had been accomplished.

Secretary Daniels at midnight flatly denied the story printed in several newspapers to the effect that Admiral Mayo, on his return, had predicted the emergence of the German fleet and a big naval action very soon.

"There is absolutely no foundation for this story," said Secretary Daniels when communicated with by telephone by THE NEW YORK TIMES. "That story is all tommy-rot. Admiral Mayo made no such statement to me."

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 13.—King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, in welcoming Emperor William in Sofia, several days ago, hailed him as the "mighty ruler of the noble German people," according to a dispatch received here from the Bulgarian capital. The King said that Bulgaria intended to fight on to a final victory, and then raised his glass to the Emperor with a toast to the "precious health of my powerful ally and loyal friend."

The Emperor, in replying, expressed his satisfaction at the progress of Bulgaria and added that "the glorious struggle in which Bulgaria has espoused the just cause of the Central Powers has brought her the fulfillment of her historical ambition."

ADMITS BIG GERMAN LOSSES

Gen. von Ardenne Says That They Far Exceed Those of 1870.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 13.—An unmistakable intimation of great losses sustained by the Germans in their attempts to stem the British attacks is contained in the caustic comment of Lieut. Gen. von Ardenne, military critic of the Tageblatt of Berlin, on the Flanders campaign. He refers to the German losses at Mars-la-Tour and Gravelotte in the Franco-Prussian War, averaging five-sixths of the officers and one-third of the men of the Guard and Brandenburg Regiments engaged, as classic examples in German military history of extraordinary casualties suffered without affecting the morale of the troops.

The General then says these losses are often far exceded in the present war, and that in the third Flanders battle they have been so great as to induce the military authorities to abandon the usual rule of not referring to them, feeling that the sacrifices of Prince Rupprecht's troops have been such as to entitle them to the extraordinary thanks of the Fatherland.

General Ardenne pays a grudging and and belated tribute to the achievements of the British tanks, which, according to his verdict, though quick victims to the German field artillery under good visibility, are able to deliver a most effective enfilading fire from their machine guns whenever they are able to approach the infantry lines under cover of a curtain of smoke or gas waves, and are not to be regarded lightly.

By The Associated Press.

BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Oct. 13.—British troops southwest of Passchendaele Village during the night pushed forward slightly in advance of the line that they reached in yesterday's offensive; but over the major portion of the six-mile battle front there has been little change in the situation. Morasses that in places were impassable, and at all points almost impossible to push through, were holding operations in an iron grip.

Over a large part of the front the British this morning were holding a line that represented appreciable gains in territory. At a few points, a check at the hands of the weather had to be acklowledged, and the attacking troops fell back to positions which they had left.

Two counterattacks were attempted by the Germans yesterday, and both were dealt with quickly by the artillery One was in the neighborhood of the Broodseinde-Passchendaele Highway, and the other started from positions east and southeast of the Village of Passchendaele. Neither counterattacking force appears even to have reached its objective before it was smashed.

The night was fairly quiet as far as infantry action was concerned.

On the northern section in the advance, between Poelcappelle and Houthulst Forest, fewer difficulties were encountered in yesterday's attack than on the southern portion. Along the southern edge of the forest the British pushed their lines 200 yards northward along a 1,300-yard front, thereby considerably improving their previous positions.

Ridge Positions Pierced 800 Yards.

Between the Ypres-Staden railway and Poelcappelle the gain varies in depth up to a maximum of about 700 yards. Near the village of Poelcappelle the [illegible] appears to be virtually what it was yesterday morning. Between Poelcappelle and Wallemolen on the south the British had swung their line out in numerous places to include strong German positions that at some points were 600 or 700 yards in advance of the line from which the attack was made yesterday. Southwest of Passchendaele, along the ridge, the British were maintaining themselves in positions about 800 yards or more in advance of yesterday's jumping-off place, and this advantage extended along a front of about 1,200 yards.

It rained hard again last night and this morning until shortly before noon, when the sun broke through the clouds.

In some cases the British infantrymen were unable to keep up with the artillery barrage, and as a result came under the rifles or machine guns of the hidden enemy marksmen who had escaped death in the barrage. Stretcher bearers encountered untold difficulties, not only from the deep mud, but from German snipers.

The correspondent today talked with several wounded stretcher-bearers who came back from Poelcappelle, and from them heard of a remarkable incident of yesterday's battle. They said they operated continually in mud that at the best was up to their knees and in addition were constantly harassed by enemy snipers concealed in shell holes and even in shattered trees.

Germans Kill Stretcher-bearers.

In the morning. German stretcher-bearers had advanced frequently almost to the British lines to get their own wounded and had not been molested because of their Red Cross flags. Notwithstanding this, the Germans continued firing on the British until the climax was reached when three stretcher-bearers, working together, were shot dead by hidden snipers.

Infuriated by this outrage, a British officer seized a Red Cross flag, and, waving it over his head, rushed toward the snipers. When he arrived within speaking distance of them, he bitterly denounced their treacherous action, speaking fluently in German. He called the enemies' attention forcibly to their violation of the laws of war and humanity, and pointed out that the German stretcher-bearers had been operating without molestation. The officer, after having expressed himself fully, marched back to his own lines, and was not fired upon. From then on, the stretcher-bearers said, the Germans ceased sniping at them.

British Lose Poelcappelle Brewery.

Hard local battles were continuing today at several places, notably at Wolf Copse, west of Passchendaele, and in the eastern outskirts of Poelcappelle. Wolf Copse was a nest of machine guns, and the Germans have been maintaining a heavy fire against the British, who today were fighting almost at the edge of the copse.

The battle at Poelcappelle yesterday was exceptionally bitter around the much-contested brewery stronghold. The Germans occupied the brewery

MICHAELIS IS TARGET OF JEERING PRESS WHICH PREDICTS HIS SWIFT DEPOSITION; CONSERVATIVES DESERT CHANCELLOR

Tirpitz Again Predicts Final Triumph of Submarines, But Won't State Time When England Will Be Beaten

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 13.—Admiral von Tirpitz, former Minister of the German Imperial Navy, interviewed by the Brunswick Landes Zeitung, is quoted as saying:

"We can continue confidently to expect a final triumph over England so long as we continue to sink vessels faster than she constructs them. A submarine war success cannot be expected immediately, however, but if we pursue our aim firmly we shall find after some months that our position for negotiations with England will be quite different.

"England desires negotiation now, while her position is comparatively favorable. The decisive factors are the shipping losses suffered by the Entente and by neutrals who expose themselves to our U-boat war.

"No definite time can be fixed for our success. Economically, and as regards raw materials, our position today is stronger than that of France or Italy. How far England will be able to make her supplies last cannot be predicted.

"But the decisive factor is that while we supply four-fifths of our economic needs from our own productions, England has to fetch four-fifths of hers from overseas.

"We are now at the fateful hour of our existence. Germany cannot maintain her position as a world power against England unless her position is founded on might."

His Alsace-Lorraine Speech Credited with Steeling the Allies' Hearts.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The fine gesture of the German Foreign Minister to Pan Germanism has upset the German apple-cart. That grandiloquent "never, never" period was seized on with lightning promptness by the ever-ready Lloyd George, who stepped to his comrades' side and spoke the word that always rallies France. Say "Alsace-Lorraine," and a French mother will give her only son with a smile. Even practical politics, which is as bad here as with us, will suspend operations at the mention of the magic word. A holy passion for the lost provinces warms those who might otherwise be cold, feeds the hungry, rests the weary, thrills the indifferent, makes soldiers eager for death and civilians equal to all sacrifices.

But the consequences of Dr. von Kühlmann's eloquence are not all emotional. This solemn clown in the Ludendorff-Hindenburg puppet show has focused attention on Germany at the moment when she is least able to bear examination. A very little mutiny goes a long way in betraying German demoralization. Something may be happening in Germany, and it may be far more serious than discontent among the dumb, driven cattle of the civilian body.

Allies Steeled Against Germany.

Whatever may be the extent of the unrest in the army and navy, opinion here is that "German statesmanship" has sadly bungled its opportunity for peace without humiliation. Two months ago there were elements not professionally pacifist among the allied peoples willing to listen to reasonable and sincere proposals. The Reichstag resolution seemed to many a cry from the heart of the German people. President Wilson himself in his reply to the Pope, showed receptivity to the impression of a German people whose soul was still uncorrupted by militarism. But Michaelis and Kühlmann fooled away whatever remained of the reminiscence of the old-fashioned Germany. If one may judge from the manifestations of feeling here, the heart of the Allies is now steeled against Germany, including its people as well as its autocracy, and the conclusion has been finally reached that future negotiations with the Boche can be conducted only with the sword.

The readiness with which all thoughts of peace by conciliation have been discarded is doubtless due in some measure to the altered war prospects of the last few weeks. That soft spots still exist in the allied situation is freely admitted by those holding an optimistic view. The submarine, while less destructive, is still a dangerous active foe to comfort. There is political uncertainty in France, a shortage of war machinery and material in Italy, a food and fuel stint in Western Europe, and always the Russian demoralization.

No Chance of a Compromise Peace.

But, frankly admitting all this, there is a feeling that something has recently happened that has cleared up war uncertainties for the Allies. The situation as it stands today is regarded as absolutely eliminating a compromise peace. The war will go on until Germany is broken to such an extent that her people, who lack the spirit to make their own terms for freedom, will get it through an allied victory. Further, conditions are more favorable than ever before for the enemy's sudden collapse.

Foremost among the causes of the betterment in the outlook must be counted Haig's hammer blows. Allowing for the enemy's diminished striking and resisting power, the allied army operations around Ypres are significant not only of boundless resources, but increased expertness in their use. British generalship and soldierly qualities are now on a level with German and are getting better constantly.

The Germans are compelled to concentrate in front of Haig, thus making it less difficult to deal with them on other fronts. Success in Flanders is mathematical, methodical, definite, and limited in objectives, but cumulative in results and certain as death and taxes. This success synchronizes with the growing efficiency against the submarine, the huge augmentation in the near future of the allied air forces, and the steady tightening of the blockade cord around Germany's throat.

Back of all this is the whirlwind development in America, which will hurl against Germany a weight which she well knows she cannot withstand.

GERMANS LAND ON RIGA ISLANDS

Russian Main Line Menaced and Petrograd Calls on Forces to Meet Peril.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 13.—The Germans landed detachments yesterday on the coast of the Gulf of Tagalah, on the north of Oesel Island and near the village of Serro, on the southern part of Dagö Island, the War Office announces.

Russian coast batteries were silenced by German dreadnoughts, but the activities of the enemy in landing forces were rendered difficult by moles constructed by the Russians, and by bad visibility. The garrison of Oesel Island is fighting the German forces which landed.

The Germans are working stubbornly to clear the entrance to the Gulf of Riga near Courland, says the official statement, which adds that all measures have been taken against the invaders.

Serious Menace Is Admitted.

The Admiralty does not try to minimize the strategic seriousness of the capture of Dagö, which will prove important as a base for operations against Reval and menace the Russian right flank. An official statement issued by the Admiralty today says:

"The Germans had been preparing for some time for the landing on the Islands of Oesel and Dagö, and their operations were facilitated by the weakness of the Russian patrol service. The landing was done with extraordinary rapidity. The forces landed are estimated at one or two divisions.

"The loss of the islands deprives the Russians of their heretofore commanding position over the Gulf of Riga and enables the enemy to undertake new operations, probably in the direction of Hapsal. The loss of the islands necessitates a change in the Russian Army's positions around Segevold and a withdrawal to the Venden-Valk line.

"As soon as the return from headquarters of Admiral Verdervski (Minister of Marine) brought the Riga situation fully to the cognizance of the Government, it was decided to lay aside all internal political questions and concentrate the full forces on organization for the defense of the country."

Proclamations have been sent to the army and fleet calling attention to the growing danger of an attack, even upon the capital, and exhorting the men to forget their political differences and turn their energies to the defence of the coast. The Germans had been bombing for several days, but with little damage, the Russian defending fleet. It is thought not improbable that if they are successful in holding the islands air raids upon Petrograd will be conducted by the Germans from these bases.

The enemy is working stubbornly to clear the entrance to the Gulf of Riga near the Courland coast.

Yesterday, under cover of naval forces of several times superior to our defending detachments, the enemy landed detachments on the coast of the Gulf of Tagalah on the island of Oesel. Another detachment was landed near the village of Serro on the southern part of the island of Dagö. The coast batteries were silenced by the powerful fire of the enemy dreadnoughts. The enemy activities have been rendered difficult, however, by moles, which we constructed, and owing to bad visibility.

The garrison of Oesel is engaged in fighting the enemy forces which have been landed, and all measures have been taken against these invaders.

In the Baltic, in the region of the Gulf of Riga, the enemy made several air raids. On Wednesday nine enemy aircraft dropped twenty-three bombs in the region of Cerel on our transports. One transport steamer was slightly damaged. Our airmen, by a daring attack, dispersed the enemy machines and drove two of them into the sea.

There were three fusiliades and

Admiralty Now Denies Navy Trouble Was a Mutiny

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 13.—The German Admiralty has been forced to issue an explanatory statement regarding the mutiny in the fleet, in which Chancellor Michaelis and Vice Admiral von Capelle endeavored to place the blame on the Independent Socialist Party.

It states that the affair was confined to a single ship, where a few sailors endeavored to carry out not a mutiny, but a propaganda. The Admiralty denies flatly the report of a mutiny on the Nürnberg and four battleships.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 13.—In consequence of the resignation of Vice Admiral von Capelle as German Minister of Marine, Berlin papers of widely varying opinions, such as the Pan German Lokal Anzeiger, the National-Liberal Deutsche Kurier, the Catholic Germania, the Radical Tageblatt, and the Socialist Vorwärts agree that the prestige of Chancellor Michaelis is shattered and his position so shaken that his deposition is imperative.

The Kurier suggests that a change in the Chancellorship has been temporarily deferred on tactical grounds, to avoid the impression that there had been a surrender to Socialist pressure. Virtually the entire press sneers openly or covertly at the Chancellor's attempt to get clear of the naval mutiny fiasco by shouldering the responsibility upon Vice Admiral von Capelle. It is pointed out that the Chancellor himself went virtually as far as the Minister of Marine in the introduction of the subject and the subsequent debate.

There were suggestions yesterday in some Berlin newspapers that the resignation of von Capelle had not been submitted, but the Lokal-Anzeiger today definitely announced his resignation.

Michaelis's Doom Near.

Recent arrivals from Berlin report that current gossip there is that Michaelis can scarcely last a month in office. The Chancellor's blunder in springing the disclosures of the alleged naval plot against which, according to the National Zeitung, he was strongly advised, and his failure to make headway against the Reichstag majority, appear to have lost him the Conservative and Pan German support. Although other parties are less actively opposed to Michaelis than the Socialists, not a voice has been raised against the Vorwärts slogan, "Michaelis must go." Even the Nationalists are united in open condemnation of his actions concerning the naval plot. It is charged that the Chancellor showed not only a lamentable lack of political acumen, but that his act resulted in the rehabilitation of the Radical Socialists to a considerable degree.

The hindsight of the Government regarding the effect of the disclosures is shown by the Vorwärts in the revelation that the telegraph was barred to newspaper dispatches while the authorities were considering in what form the speeches of Michaelis and Admiral von Capelle could be telegraphed abroad.

The speeches at the concluding session of the Reichstag may be read in a light of the general expectation that the days of Michaelis are numbered. The speech of the Radical Deputy Haussmann contained passages, intended to launch the candidacy of Prince von Bülow, which is being pressed as vigorously as possible.

Gustav Stresmann of the National Liberal Party, Count von Westarp of the Conservative Party, and Seigfrid Heckscher of the Radical Party, all followers of von Bülow, rose to defend the former Imperial Chancellor, whom they had endeavored unsuccessfully to have chosen as the successor of von Bethmann Hollweg. The candidacy of von Bülow was killed at that time by the opposition of the Majority Socialists, who were then regarded as a Government party whose support was necessary.

Assails Even Military Leaders.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 13.—During the debate on the censorship in the Reichstag on Thursday, says a Berlin dispatch, Deputy Heinrich Müller of Meiningen said:

"The Chancellor wants to lead, but we are reminded of the worst times of the old Roman Empire of Germany. We are suffocated under a heap of official paper, prescriptions of mock justice, injustice and arbitrariness. People sigh 'Who will free us from this deluge of evil power?' Confidence is ruined by the manner in which the state of siege is exercised.

"Homogenity is lacking in the Imperial leadership and the higher military leadership. The relations between the general command and the trade unions are becoming worse and worse. It is a scandal how the pacifist leaders are deprived of all their rights at a time when great concessions are being made to the Government's pacifism."

"It was not lack of men but of equipment that was responsible for the outcome of the battle of the Marne.

"It looks as if there were elements in Germany working for an open conflict between the Government and Parliament."

SAYS U-BOAT BLOCKADE HAS BECOME A FARCE

W. T. Foster, Just From Abroad, Not Surprised at German Naval Mutiny or Capelle's Exit.

President W. T. Foster of Reed College, Portland, Ore., who recently returned from a tour of investigation as a special Red Cross representative in England, France, Italy, and Switzerland, asserted yesterday that the mutiny on German warships and the resignation of Vice Admiral von Capelle, German Minister of Marine, were not surprising in view of the failure of the submarine campaign and the Kaiser's desperate efforts to find crews to man the undersea boats.

"Prisoners taken from German submarines recently have been greatly inferior in class to the men found on them before," said President Foster. "This has been a noticeable fact in England for months. And it proves better than anything that could be advanced by Germany's enemies that the Kaiser is finding it increasingly difficult to find men of the right type to conduct the underwater campaign.

"Not since the beginning of unlimited submarine warfare have as few ships been sunk as last month, and I can say on the authority of David Lloyd George that food is 50 per cent. more plentiful in England than at any time since Germany attempted to establish her lawless blockade. I say this with some reluctance, because I do not desire to create the impression that the greatest effort possible on the part of the United States is not essential. We must throw our whole energy into the war, because that is the most humane way to conduct it, and will mean a saving of lives, suffering, and money.

"But it has been apparent in England for months, and especially in the last month, that Germany's so-called blockade is a farce. She has made traveling on the sea dangerous and filled voyagers with terror, but as an effective military measure the blockade is a farce. So it is not surprising that von Capelle has resigned.

"In talking with David Lloyd George I learned that not only was the number of sinkings last month smaller than at any time before, but that at the same time twice as much tonnage is being constructed in England this year as in any previous year in the country's history. England is not only meeting her own needs in the way of food, but is shipping supplies to France and Italy."

Dr. Foster said that while inquiring into the work of every hospital unit in France and visiting the battle fronts he had talked with German prisoners.

"I found among some of these prisoners men who would not have been accepted for service by the United States in any military capacity," he said. "This shows how desperate Germany is, not alone in manning her submarines, but in keeping up her army. True, I saw thousands of splendid men among the prisoners, men who were well fed and in good spirits, but there was a noticeable increase in the physically unfit among the prisoners taken recently. I recall talking to one prisoner, especially, who could see only with the strongest glasses, and I saw hundreds of boys.

"On the other hand, the spirit among the civilians and soldiers in France and England is superb. There isn't anywhere any doubt of the ultimate defeat of Germany."

Concering the Red Cross work he said: "The last few months have demonstrated the wisdom of conducting all war relief through one centralized agency. What has been done by the Red Cross in Europe is reall amazing. The overhead expense is very low, and practically every dollar contributed for war relief goes to relief."

VATICAN KEEPS UP HOPE.

Aims to Have Allies Make Further Negotiations Possible.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 13.—The Vatican still hopes that the Papal initiative in favor of peace may bring satisfactory results. It believes the force of events must oblige the Central Empires to come to terms. For this reason, all the efforts of the Papal diplomats aim to persuade the Allies to give such a reply as to make it possible for the Pope to continue the negotiations. It is hoped also that President Wilson understands that the Vatican sincerely supports the principal parts of his messages and it trusts that he may be induced to take a more favorable attitude toward the Papal scheme and recognize that the proposition to obtain a gradual limitation of armaments through the abolition of conscription is more practical than the great one of a League of Nations.

TO INTERPRET FRENCH LIFE TO OUR SOLDIERS

Y. M. C. A. Lecturers Will Speak to Pershing's Men on Their Allies' Ideals.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Not the least of the minor difficulties facing the American expeditionary force in France is the question of accommodating the rank and file to the different standards of French life, thought and customs among which they will live. The matter has been judged sufficiently important to engage the attention of the French War Office, which was studying how best to handle the problem, when the American Y. M. C. A. proffered a solution which has been enthusiastically adopted.

The Y. M. C. A. will send lecturers to a score or more points, who will put before the soldiers a simple interpretation of French life, spirit, ideals and efforts in the war. Such talks as have been given have been welcomed by the men as enabling them to understand some of the most marked divergences on the part of the French from the American way of living by which they have hitherto been puzzled, and the scheme bids fair to contribute greatly to a better understanding for the future. Among the speakers who are already on tour and have promised their services are Herbert Adams Gibbons, Bishops Luther, Wilson and Brent, (who cabled his acceptance from Manila, and will arrive in France early in December;) Professor Wilson Taylor, and Senator Francis Parker of Illinois. The Y. M. C. A. proposes the widest extension of the lecture system, and will invite prominent Americans as they visit France from time to time to make tours of a week or ten days and explain to the soldiers such points as seem to them striking and important.

Germany's New Move Against Russia.

In making a descent upon Oesel and Dagö Islands at the entrance of the Gulf of Riga, the Germans are manifestly preparing a new base of operations, which probably have as the immediate goal the landing of troops on the nearby Russian mainland, possibly in the neighborhood of Hapsal. Such a step would flank the Russian main line northeast of Riga, and would set the Kaiser's forces considerably nearer to Reval and Kronstadt and necessarily to Petrograd.

GERMANS LAND ON RIGA ISLANDS

reconnoissances. On the western and southwestern fronts the fighting was limited to fusillades. The gallant Colonel Fastykovsky, temporarily commanding an army corps, was wounded by a bullet while inspecting the trenches.

On the Rumanian front there were fusillades.

On the Caucasian front, in the region of Erzingan and Kalkit, the Turks attempted to approach our positions, but were repulsed.

In the Black Sea yesterday an enemy submarine bombarded the Port of Tuapse and discharged twenty shells. Our coast batteries opened fire, supported by rifle fire, and the submarine submerged and quickly disappeared.

BERLIN, Oct. 13, (via London.)—The report of the Headquarters Staff today says:

In combined action by sections of the army and the navy we obtained a footing on the island of Oesel in the Bay of Riga.

Oesel and Dagö Islands are at the entrance to the Gulf of Riga, and provide easy access to the mainland over small intermediate islands. They are off the coast of the Russian province of Esthonia.

The landing of German troops in Esthonia would threaten the outflanking of the Russian line and probably compel a retreat on a wide section of the front, if, indeed, it did not open the way to Petrograd itself. A railway line follows the coast all the way from Hapsal, opposite Dagö Island, to Petrograd.

Dagö Island is about 200 miles from Petrograd, and its position derives large importance from the fact that it is almost at the mouth of the Gulf of Finland, at the head of which is Kronstadt, which defends Petrograd.

Oesel Island, the larger of the two, has an area of 1,010 square miles and a population of about 60,000. It has a difficult coast line, in the form of precipitous limestone cliffs.

The landing place of the Germans on that island was probably on the shore of the gulf to which the name Taggalaklet Bay is given in British Admiralty charts. The bay, which is on the northwestern coast of the island, is five miles long and three miles wide at the mouth, and affords a good anchorage.

KERENSKY AT WAR COUNCIL.

Presides at Headquarters Conference After a Day in Bed.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 13.—A military conference was held at main headquarters today, at which Premier Kerensky presided. A program was adopted, providing for the systematic training of soldiers and the application on the whole Russian front of the technical military processes developed in the present war and the strict regulation of the soldiers' daily life so as to produce maximum efficiency.

The Premier yesterday was slightly ill and was confined to his bed. He telephoned to Vice Premier Konovaloff, saying that he was much pleased over the condition of the army, in which there was better feeling between the officers and men. The Premier expects to visit all the fronts before returning to Petrograd.

KERENSKY ILL IN BED.

Russian Premier Said to be in No Danger, However.

PETROGRAD, Friday, Oct. 12.—Premier Kerensky is slightly ill and has been confined to his bed since his arrival at General Staff Headquarters at Mohilev. The Premier is reported to be in no danger. He telephoned today to Vice Premier Konovaloff, saying that he was much pleased over the condition of the army, in which there was better feeling between the officers and men. The Premier expects to visit all the fronts before returning to Petrograd.

Admiral Verdervski, Minister of Marine, returned to Petrograd today to negotiate a settlement of the differences between the Ministry and the fleet. Foreign Minister Terestchenko and War Minister Verkhovsky will return to Petrograd tonight from Mohilev.

BERLIN NOTE ON LUXBURG.

Germany, Replying to Sweden's Inquiry, Deplores Messages.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 13.—The Swedish Foreign Office has received the German reply to its inquiry regarding the action of Count Karl von Luxburg when he was German Minister to Argentina in sending messages through the Swedish Legation regarding the "sinking without trace" of Argentine vessels.

Germany expressed regrets last month and promised a fuller statement later The answer now forwarded confirms the arrival in Berlin of the Luxburg cablegrams as published, although one of them was mutilitated at an essential point.

The German Government states it is unable to make a declaration regarding the authenticity of the dispatches, as no confirmatory correspondence has taken place with von Luxburg. The telegrams are said to have had no effect on the submarine war. The Government deplores the fact that they were dispatched and that von Luxburg employed the facilities extended by the Swedish authorities in a manner which might have been construed as abuse of them. Assurance is given that incidents calculated to disturb the friendly relations between Germany and Sweden will not occur again.

NEW AUSTRIAN CREDIT.

House Committee Votes 9,000,000,000 Crowns—Poles Support It.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 13.—The Budget Committee of the Austrian Lower House, according to a dispatch from Vienna, has passed a provisional six months' budget, including an authorization to the Government to raise war credits up to 9,000,000,000 crowns. The budget also includes a supplementary motion by the Socialist Party authorizing the Government to use 100,000,000 crowns for the improvement of the condition of railway men. Before the vote was taken the Polish leader said that owing to assurances given by the Government the Poles would support the budget.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Friday, Oct. 12.—Dr. von Seydler, the Austrian Premier, according to a dispatch from Vienna, has informed Deputy Daszinski, the Polish leader, that the Government is ready to comply with the Polish demand regarding Galicia, including the restoration of civil administration. This surrender to the Polish Party gives the Premier a majority in the Reichsrat in securing the passage of the budget.

Some of the American college boys who went over to France last May as ambulance drivers for the excitement of the work behind the firing lines are returning home because the ambulance work has been taken over by the United States Army and will be done by regular enlisted men. The following is an extract from a letter written by a Williams boy two weeks ago who went over with his college unit to drive an ambulance at the front:

"The last six weeks we have been serving in the Verdun sector with our base at Blercourt, which is eight miles from the town of Verdun. There are two front posts for the ambulances—Mort Homme Hill and Hill 304, which have figured in the news of the new battle of Verdun. For two weeks the French were preparing for the attack, and the roads were only passable at night. The communication trenches were awful to get through, and were made worse by the heavy rains. One night last week two of the boys got lost in the darkness and could not find their way with their ambulance to the post. Finally they sighted two dark objects, which resembled French soldiers walking along with their big overcoats on. After jabbering their peculiar brand of French for fifteen minutes without receiving any reply the lost ambulance drivers discovered that the dark moving objects were two American army mules, unable to speak or understand a word of French.

"Two of our chaps were badly wounded at one of the first-aid stations while helping to load wounded men into the ambulance. One was blown right through the door of the shelter but and was discovered lying unconscious beside three dead French soldiers. The boys who got them out had to go through a gas attack and a barrage fire. Two of them—each ambulance has two drivers—had no time to get masks and were very sick after it was over, but they were going so fast that there were no fatal results from the gas.

"'Mac,' one of our fraternity, has been wounded in eight places. He lost his right leg and two fingers, while his companion, 'Vet,' will have a stiff leg all his life from the effects of his wounds. They have both got the War Cross and Military medals.

"The worst experience of all happened to two of our college boys—Jim Alexander and Taffy Young. While they were driving along a road lined with batteries, which the Germans were trying to locate, with a wounded man lying in the ambulance, a shell burst right beside them.

"Just before that the wounded man sat up and asked for a cigarette, and the shrapnel passed through the car where his head had been resting a few seconds before and struck the stretcher bearer, who was looking out to see where we were. He died that afternoon. Had Jim not ducked he would have lost a leg, and if Taffy had ducked he would have been badly wounded. The ambulance was shot to pieces by the shell, and they had to hold up the dying man for three hours until assistance came. During the attack we had about twenty-four hours sleep out of 184 hours, which was the average for all the ambulance drivers in our sector. During the German air raids one shell burst within twenty-five feet of our camp at Blercourt at midnight. The roads are nearly impassable now for automobiles. We have been treated very nicely by the French Colonel in command of the brancardiers depot, who feasted our unit with champagne, cakes, and cigars, and has given us seats for all the shows gotten up by the French soldiers.

"Several Colonels and Majors of the American Red Cross have visited us to see what we are going to do now. They all advise that we could do more for our country by enlisting in the regular army in Paris. This is, for all the ablebodied men in the Ambulance Service. We were asked to enlist, if we preferred, in the Ambulance Service for the duration of the war, but it would not be the same. Most of the boys decided, and we are going to Paris to join up, including myself. The old volunteer spirit in the Ambulance Corps has gone forever—so now for the United States artillery or air service in search of adventure."

BOLD LEADERSHIP SHOWN

Wilson's Victory on Conscription, He Asserts, Insured Effectiveness of Policy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sunday, Oct. 14.—J. L. Garvin, in an article in The Observer headed "America's Epic," reviews in glowing terms America's war efforts, which he describes as "a world's record in heroic measures." He writes:

"When we look back upon the series of colossal war measures taken by the United States since last Spring, the American effort seems less like a national uprising than an elemental upheaval reminding us of nothing so much as those primal ages of the shaping of the earth, when the pressure of internal forces threw up whole mountain chains. There is a memorable stroke of moral teaching in this nemesis of the sea murder theory of history and politics, which is not only an offense, but a fallacy.

"When Machiavelli explained the art of political success in his characteristic way Italy went for centuries to the dogs. When Germany threw to the winds the last shred of scruple by declaring unlimited piracy and the arbitrary abolition of all neutral rights, that challenge to America denoted the suicide of Prussian arrogance and the Hohenzollern system."

"There," he says, "Wilson showed the touch of great leadership. No society in the world had been so deeply steeped as America in thoughts of continued peace. To none had the idea of conscription been so strange and abhorrent. Any man would have been thought out of his senses who had suggested in 1912 or long afterward that the Democratic President, of all men, would induce the United States to adopt the principle of universal liability to service on the battlefields of Europe against an enemy menacing life and freedom throughout the world.

"The sheer boldness and rightness of that policy went through all reluctance like a ploughshare. The spirit that made the Republic and saved the Union lived again. The bigness of the President's action has never been adequately appreciated in Europe. It was one of the strongest strokes of political leadership in the annals of democracy.

"By refusing to fumble on the most vital question, Wilson made it certain that all other questions would be dealt with in the same sweeping and thorough temper. He had insured America's general efficiency for war."

"Is it not a marvelous story of six months' work? Even that is a prelude. The American spirit is thorough when roused. When it catches on in a serious enterprise it does not let go. Under American good nature so real and human and genial as it is, there is a certain severity and grimness, as the Germans will find. They have invited that grasp, and it will be an iron grasp. The Hohenzollerns and all their von Kühlmanns and other slippery agents will never again wriggle out of it."

After paying a tribute to America's "colossal finance," the delevopment of her air and naval power, her huge shipbuilding program, and commending the policy of the British and American Governments in placing an embargo on neutrals, Mr. Garvin concludes:

"Now that Congress has risen, President Wilson stands out as a ruler equipped by the choice of those who have elected him with powers more extraordinary, almost more absolute, over the whole life of a people than were ever before concentrated in the hands of one man. He has surrounded himself with other men worthy of his leadership and of the tasks. He has known by the very magnitude and audacity of his measures how to fire the imagination of a whole mighty society whose added weight will now assure, beyond all doubt, the right issue of this struggle, and which, like ourselves, will never lay down its arms except in victory.

"These things will complete the making of the United States, enjoying after this war the sole and undivided allegiance of all its elements, fused into one solid nationality. As certainly will the scope, the weight, and above all the spiritual clearness and steadfastness of American intervention make assurance doubly sure that the league of liberty will attain a crowning victory, a right peace and guarantees, moral and practical, for a higher order of civilization and the redemption of mankind from the war record of the last six months.

"In America there is a wonderful story. On the whole no greater thing ever happened. It has opened a new epoch of history, and its influence on human fortunes, and above all on the wide societies of the English-speaking world, will be incalculable for good through ages far beyond all extent of time that we of the present day can measure or foresee."

buildings at dawn, but the British stormed the place and by 11 o'clock had forced out the enemy. The British held this place six hours, but at 5 o'clock the Germans delivered heavy counterattacks and after hard fighting the British withdrew a little. At last reports the brewery seemed to be in No Man's Land, which is held by neither side and over which machine-gun bullets were wailing in never-ending streams.

Heavy Rain Yesterday Morning.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—"There was a heavy rain throughout the night, which is still continuing," says today's official statement. "No counterattacks by the enemy have developed thus far on the battlefront. On the rest of the British front there is nothing to report."

Beyond the usual artillery activity of both sides on the battle front nothing of special interest occurred during the day. The wet, stormy weather continues.

The number of prisoners taken by us yesterday and so far reported is 741, including 41 officers.

BERLIN, Oct. 13, (via London.)—The British gain in Flanders yesterday amounted altogether to about one and one-fifth kilometers (about three-quarters of a mile) at two points, where the German lines were broken into, the War Office announces. The British are said to have suffered heavily.

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria—After a brief interruption the battle in Flanders was again resumed yesterday. This time the English launched their attack on a narrow front of about ten kilometers (about six and one-quarter miles) between the Langemarck-Houthulst and the Zonnebeke-Morslede roads. Their employment of gun power was especially strong.

After several fruitless assaults the English infantry succeeded in advancing in the crater land between the station and the village of Poelcappelle. In desperate fighting, lasting all day, our troops threw back the enemy on both sides of the Pendsbeek.

Germans Still Claim Poelcappelle.

Our positions in and south of Poelcappelle were again vainly attacked in the morning, and with fresh forces in the evening. The strong pressure of the enemy was directed on Passchendaele, but here also the English had to content themselves with a narrow strip of our forefield. Passchendaele is in our possession.

East of Zonnebeke an enemy attack collapsed, and near Gheluvelt a strong attack also failed. Altogether, the enemy's gain, purchased with heavy, sanguinary losses, amounts to two points of about one and one-fifth kilometers, where our lines were broken into. Everywhere else their efforts were in vain.

Between the Lys and the Comines-Ypres Canal the artillery duel, which continued throughout the night, this morning again increased to drum-fire, according to reports at hand. There were no new attacks.

On the Flanders front there was artillery activity of varying intensity, but no infantry engagement.

REPULSE GERMAN ATTACKS.

French Check Several on the Aisne —Guns Active at Many Points.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—German forces last night made several attacks on the French positions north of the River Aisne. An official statement issued by the French War Office says that all the assaults were repulsed. There was heavy artillery fighting near Chaume Wood, north of Verdun, and numerous gun duels on other parts of the front.

On the front north of the Aisne the Germans in the course of the night delivered several attacks against our positions in the sector between Hurtebise and Chevreaux. Notwithstanding the violence of his efforts, the enemy was able only to gain a footing momentarily in our advanced line at one point. West of Hurtebise Monument and south of La Royère we dispersed German detachments which attempted to approach our lines.

On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) there was heavy artillery fighting in the region of Chaume Wood. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

Tonight's official communication reads:

The two artilleries were active in the regions of Craonne and Laffaux in Champagne, in the sector of Mont Sans Nom, and on the right bank of the Meuse, in the region of Samogneux, Hill 344, and the Chaume wood.

The official statement issued Friday night said:

During the day the artillery was very active in the sector of Moulin de Laffaux and in the region of Craonne.

Further information concerning the enemy's surprise attacks last night in the region of Sapigny and Auberive, which we repulsed, show that they were carried out by heavy effectives and were preceded by a bombardment of thirty-six hours. Three attacks were made by detachments of about 140 men each, including shock troops and pioneers. They were received by our artillery fire and the fire of our machine guns. These attacks resulted in lively engagements in which we clearly showed our superiority. The enemy left ten prisoners in our hands. The enemy's losses were very heavy.

BERLIN, Oct. 13, (via London.)—General Headquarters reports the capture of French trenches on the Chemin des Dames front on a front of more than 400 yards. The text of the communication follows:

Front of the German Crown Prince: In some sectors on the Aisne front the fighting activity again was lively yesterday. On the eastern portion of the Chemin des Dames, Thüringen storming troops, after effective fire preparations, broke into French positions north of the Vaucierc Mill. On a breadth of 400 meters several lines of trenches were wrested from the enemy and numerous prisoners were taken.

AIRMEN AIDED HAIG'S TROOPS.

Fired 10,000 Rounds, Inflicting Many Casualties Upon Germans.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The following War Office statement concerning aviation activities was issued tonight:

"Yesterday the weather could not have been less favorable for the cooperation of our airplanes with our infantry in their attack. Nevertheless, our machines went out until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, both during the rain and in the clear intervals. With great difficulty they succeeded in locating the troop movements of the enemy and the positions of a great many hostile batteries and reported their observations to our artillery. In addition to this work, more than 10,000 rounds were fired by our airmen with machine guns at hostile infantry in trenches and shell-holes on the roads. Parties of mounted troops and the convoys of hostile transports also were engaged from low altitudes, causing many casualties to the enemy and great confusion in their ranks.

"Only a few German machines were encountered, presumably on account of the bad weather, and little fighting took place in the air. Four enemy airplanes were brought down, and five others were driven down out of control.

"Ten of our machines are missing. The very strong west wind and the suddenness with which the driving rainstorms came up accounted for the non-return of many of our airplanes. Several of those missing belonged to controls that were not engaged in fighting, and evidently were lost in the storms."

DISPERSE AUSTRIAN GROUPS

Italian Guns on the Carso Also Fire an Ammunition Dump.

ROME, Oct. 13.—The official statement issued by the Italian War Office today follows:

Thursday night in the Costabella region an attempted attack by the enemy was promptly crushed. Yesterday on the Julian front our patrols harassed enemy working parties and took prisoners.

There was considerable artillery fire from the Romoon to the sea. On the Carso our batteries dispersed marching detachments of the enemy east of Castagnavizza and fired an ammunition dump in the San Giovanni region.

FORECASTS WINTER CAMPAIGN BY HAIG

British Army, Says High Official Here, Will Give the Germans No Rest Whatever.

An official of the British Government occupying an important position, who arrived in New York yesterday, said that Field Marshal Haig was delivering the smashing blows he had promised to do, and would continue to deliver them, no matter what the weather might be. The Germans would not enjoy any rest during the coming Winter, he added.

"Pétain and Haig are fighting the submarine, with Italy standing guard at the gate, the official continued, "and America must realize that shipping is the chief factor in the war now.

"When Marshal Joffre came here last Summer France needed men, and he told the Government at Washington that troops should be sent over immediately to go through their training over there, but the conditions have changed. France now has plenty of men to hold the lines, and wants America to send over 1,200,000 tons of munitions which she needs so badly, and let the troops be trained at home. Every pound of food for the soldiers from this country has to be sent over 3,000 miles across the Atlantic and that is so much food and munitions taken away from the Allies. There is not enough shipping available now to send over the munitions necessary to support the American forces abroad and the Allies.

"The sinkings of British vessels have decreased recently, but the danger of the submarine has not passed. Steamships with a speed of over fifteen knots stand a fair chance with their guns of escaping, but the ten-knot cargo boat is always in danger. Much has been written about the various methods adopted to disguise these slow-going ships, but the fact remains that there is the object standing out on the horizon above the surface of the sea, which can be seen by the vigilant submarine commanders."

Referring to the recent air raids over England, he said it would be remembered that during the week when the Germans dropped 420 tons of bombs on English soil, the British airmen dropped 650 tons of bombs at strategic points within the enemy's lines in Belgium, which did far more damage than if they had fallen into cities and killed a number of people, although less spectacular.

"It is better from a military standpoint in war time," the official went on, "that forty or fifty civilians should be killed or wounded, and a few houses destroyed, rather than a regiment of soldiers be wiped out by the enemy's bombs.

"The young Englishmen have taken to flying now like ducks do to water. I know one Lieutenant in the Royal Flying Corps 21 years old, formerly a clerk in an insurance office in London, who is one of the crack flyers of his corps. He is frequently sent from headquarters in France to London with dispatches, and after delivering them at the War Office he drops in at home to take luncheon with his people, and then flies back to France comfortably in the afternoon."

The official said that there was no foundation whatever for the report that Lord Kitchener was alive and would return to England after the war. The whole idea was started, he added, by Mrs. Parker, a sister of the late Field Marshal, who was obsessed with the belief that he was alive, and this had caused several persons to take out insurances at Lloyd's to back up their opinion.

The reports that a German U-boat torpedoed the cruiser Hampshire on the night of June 5, 1916, off the Orkney Islands," the official continued, "or that the warship was sunk by a mine are both incorrect. The Hampshire was steaming at a speed of 18 knots when she struck on a jagged rock."

IRISHMEN ASK MAYOR TO REFUTE SLANDERS

READY TO DISCUSS ISSUES

Charges These Interests Are Banded Together to Strike at Nation's Integrity.

Mayor Mitchel told a number of Irish Americans who called upon him at the City Hall yesterday that he would discuss the issues of the campaign with them at whatever time they agreed upon and seek to settle slanders that have been made against him by "those like Judge Cohalan and Jeremiah O'Leary, and others of their type, who have banded themselves together and have drawn others to them for the purpose of striking at the integrity of the Government of the United States and defeating her great purposes in this war."

Sixty-five members of the Irish-American Union, with Edward J. McGuire, former President of the Catholic Club, acting as spokesman, called upon the Mayor to pledge their support and invite him to attend a meeting, the time and place to be fixed later, where he could discuss with Irishmen and men of Irish extraction the issues of the campaign. Alleging that slanderers had struck at Mayor Mitchel, for the purpose of prejudicing his cause in New York with the Irish race, Mr. McGuire said:

"Your loyalty to its traditions and its genius has been attacked largely by insinuation and innuendo. John Mitchel's grandson cannot stand silent. These falsehoods, spread abroad for the most part under cover by whisperings in secret and in confidence, certainly work damage to the great cause of decent government for which you stand, and may help to defeat your candidacy, in the success of which this city is so profoundly interested."

Mayor Glad to Accept.

The Mayor said he would gladly accept the invitation to discuss the campaign issues "frankly and fully," and that he would answer any queries put to him. He said:

"I am well acquainted with the rumors and the slanders to which you refer. They are directed against me nominally. But may I point out that these slanders which are made at me and my candidacy in this campaign in reality strike through and are aimed, in the last analysis, at the Irish people, citizens of the United States, whose loyalty is questioned indirectly by these slanders; because, gentlemen, these slanders come from those like Judge Cohalan and Jeremiah O'Leary, and others of their type, who have banded themselves together and have drawn others to them, for the purpose of striking at the integrity of the Government of the United States and defeating her great purposes in this war.

"And they undertake in what they do to represent themselves as speaking for a considerable portion of the citizens of Irish blood in this country. In point of fact, they are misrepresentatives; they do not speak for the majority of people of Irish blood in this country. The whole history of the country and of the Irish race in the country negatives that proposition. In every war in which America has been engaged the loyal support of men of Irish blood has come to the flag and to the country, and it would be an extraordinary reversal of form and the most conspicuous example of racial ingratitude that the world has ever seen if Irishmen as a class turned against the nation and the flag. They won't do it. They are not doing it, and these men misrepresent them.

Funds from Questionable Source.

"These men like Cohalan and O'Leary and Devoy, and Hearst, who associates himself with all of the seditious and disloyal, these men who have gathered these societies about them, some of them active in a propaganda that is un-American, some of them recipients of funds that come from at least a questionable source, but it may be indirectly from the common enemy; these men who, in the name of serving Irish self-government, Irish autonomy, remain quietly, snugly and securely at home in the United States while recommending the people of their own blood in Ireland to subject themselves to the hopeless risks of revolution, while they here are secure against any personal dangers or attacks.

"These men are the men who are putting forward these slanders, for two purposes. First, that Mr. Murphy can get a little closer to the jobs and to the patronage on which he and some of his friends have subsisted for years and almost for generations in this city. And may I say in passing, that that small group again has brought no credit to the Irish people of this city, and is not and should not be considered representative of them. And their other purpose is that Mr. Hearst, the intimate of Bolo Pacha, the apologist for von Igel, the man who has consistently from the outbreak of this war plead the cause of the Hohenzollerns and the militaristic autocracy of Germany, even to the point of protesting against America's participation through the sending of troops to France, should get his influence implanted here in the City Hall for whatever purposes may lie in the back of his treacherous mind.

"Gentlemen, I shall be glad to come at whatever time we may agree upon to meet those who are assembled, to discuss these questions and to dispose of this slander once and for all."

MAYOR SAYS HYLAN SKULKS.

Tells Brooklyn Audiences His Opponent Fears to Answer Questions.

Mayor Mitchel continued his campaign in Brooklyn last night, speaking at three meetings under the auspices of the City Democracy in the Williamsburg district. The Mayor, in his Brooklyn address on Thursday, had challenged Judge Hylan to meet him in debate before any Brooklyn audience whom the Tammany candidate might choose.

"I am here, but where is Judge Hylan?" said the Mayor. "I'll tell you where Judge Hylan is. He is skulking at a safe distance from the searchlight of fair and open discussion. He is crawling away in cowardly retreat, because he does not dare to face the light. He is hiding in the shadows where he thinks his ignorance and insincerity cannot be exposed.

"His excuse is that he does not want to engage in an 'oratorical contest.' I did not ask him to engage in an oratorical contest. I asked him to meet me for a free discussion of certain issues in the presence of the public and the press. If he wants to sit in a chair and whisper, I will sit in a chair and whisper with him, so long as he answers my questions and permits the audience and the press to hear. But standing up or sitting down, talking or whispering, Judge Hylan must meet me, answer my questions, and bring out the facts or stand convicted as a skulker who raises an issue, then runs away from it.

"Until Judge Hylan disavows Hearst, von Igel and the German Embassy; until he disavows Bruckner and the submarine, he has no right to ask for a single American vote."

The three places at which the Mayor spoke were: 105 Montrose Avenue, near Manhattan Avenue; at Eckford and Calyer Streets, and at McCaddon Hall, Berry Street, near South Third Street.

CLARK DEFENDS CONGRESS.

Speaker Reviews Swift Passage of War Measures at Bond Meeting.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Oct. 13.—Speaker Champ Clark, at a great Liberty bond mass meeting here tonight, reviewed the work of the recent session of Congress, and vigorously defended it against the charge that it had been slow in financing the country for the war. The meeting followed a parade in which the leading business and professional men of the city, as well as thousands of workers from the mills of the Pittsburgh district, took part.

"The amount of work we accomplished," said Mr. Clark, "is amazing, unprecedented and stupendous. The sums of money appropriated and the bonds authorized stagger the imagination, aggregating more than six times the cost of the civil war. Every dollar the Government asked for the preparation and conduct of the war has been expeditiously voted by Congress. Nevertheless, we have on one hand been abused for going too slow and on the other for being extravagant. For instance, the House took two days to discuss, amend, and put into shape a bill authorizing the issue of seven billions of bonds, the greatest sum ever authorized up to that time in the entire history of the human race, and we were set upon and abused for not doing it in one day.

"I would not be honest or fair if I did not state that the Republicans and the Independents, as well as the Democrats, helped in perfecting and passing all these great and important measures, many of which went through the House without roll call.

"It cannot be stated too often or too emphatically that Congress is willing and ready to vote every man and every dollar necessary for the successful conduct of the war. The honor, glory, and safety of the Republic are as near to the hearts of the Congress as they are to other citizens. Why should they not be? We are Americans, the elect of the people. The senseless and malicious abuse of Congress should cease."

SOLDIERS CROWD TRAINS.

Some Disciplined for Rushing By Camp Upton Military Police.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, YAPHANK, L. I., Oct. 13.—After sweeping by forty military police on duty at the railroad station in an effort to board special trains to New York, 10,000 recruits with furlough passes were disciplined this afternoon by being ordered back to their quarters. Permission was granted to 15,000 soldiers to go into the city, and two trains left in the forenoon without any disorder at Camp Upton Station. At noon more soldiers arrived than could be accommodated in the specials. The military police were powerless to get the men into line to wait their turns, and the trains, already loaded beyond their capacity, were surrounded by the soldiers.

Divisional Headquarters was notified, and Lieut. Col. E. E. Booth, Chief of Staff, arrived at the station and ordered no trains to depart until further orders. Officers of the 302d Engineers Regiment, who are quartered near the station, were summoned and ordered the men back to their barracks. On arrival at the barracks the soldiers were told to remain until the trains were ordered to depart. Later the men were marched by companies to the station, and the first train left for New York City at 5 o'clock.

Attached to the headquarters of the Three Hundred and Fourth Field Artillery is Harry Booton, who is anxious to fight the Germans once more. Booton served several months with the British Army in France. At the battle of Mons he was wounded four times, but after recovery he was appointed Sergeant in the Royal Flying Corps. He was detailed as a bomb dropper with a military aviator. Booton took part in a raid five Royal flying machines made on the German naval base at Friedrichshaven, where four airplanes were shot down.

Booton's pilot was killed, but the Sergeant caught him before he fell out of the machine. Booton then piloted the airplane, with the body of the aviator, 300 miles back to England. On arrival in England Booton became unconscious and was removed to a London hospital. Later, with fifteen others, he was taken before King George and awarded the distinguished conduct medal, which he is now wearing at Camp Upton.

DEFENDS NEW HAVEN ROAD.

Vice President Campbell Answers Preparedness Committee's Charges.

Benjamin Campbell, Senior Vice President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company and President of the New England Steamship Company, in a statement issued last night replied to a statement issued in Washington Friday by the Conference Committee on National Preparedness, wherein that committee said that the Interstate Commerce Commission has ample testimony to prove that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company persistently diverted traffic from its own water to its own rail lines, in spite of the fact that its boats were generally underloadad and that the water haul was frequently quicker and cheaper; also that there had been unfair apportionments of cost between boat and rail lines, lack of compact packing of freight on the boats, and other methods used to obscure the issue from the public, and, finally, that the public was defrauded of its right to have goods transported as cheaply and expeditiously as any available means would permit. Mr. Campbell's statement in part read:

"At the recent hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application of the New Haven Road to continue the operation of its steamer lines, the unanimous testimony given by shippers and consignees was that, because of the excellence of the water service they were shipping every pound of their freight that could move via these water lines, and that, instead of withholding traffic from its steamer lines, the railroad preferentially contributed to those lines all possible freight.

After all the testimony had been taken, the Interstate Commerce Commission, in its annual report to Congress on Dec. 1, 1916, has this to say about the service given by the New Haven road over its water lines:

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad System is made up of various formerly independent lines of rail and water carriers. By purchases and consolidations the New Haven Company has become the owner of various water lines, operated mainly between New England points and New York Harbor, which compete directly with its rail lines between the same points. There is no question as to the competition, but the record is replete with evidence from shippers and representatives of communities in New England to the effect that the service is in the interest of the public, is of advantage to the convenience and commerce of the people, and if the present ownership and operation is discontinued there will be no reasonably adequate service to take its place and the communities will be deprived of the benefits of the water transportation and the competing routes, thus inflicting upon them irreparable injury and benefiting no one.

"This in itself is a sufficient refutation of any claim that traffic is diverted by the New Haven from its water lines to its rail lines; that the boats are underloaded, and that by the railroad company's subterfuge the public is defrauded of its right to have goods transported cheaply and expeditiously.

"I regret that a statement of this kind should be made at a time when the railroads of the country are exerting every energy to co-ordinate all their facilities for the services of the country in the prosecution of the war."

Times "Ad" Men Celebrate.

Members of the classified advertising department of THE NEW YORK TIMES celebrated the attainment of seven pages of classified advertisements in a single issue of the paper last night in the Times Building. There were songs and talks by the chief of the department, Harold L. Goldman, and by B. F. Butterworth, S. W. Meek, E. S. Friendly, Arnold Sanchez, and C. O. Johnson, a member of the national army, who obtained a furlough from Camp Upton, Yaphank, in time to permit his arrival toward the close of the evening.

BENNETT CHALLENGE SCORNED BY MAYOR

Has No Time to Debate with "Inconsequential Candidates," He Says.

TO CENTRE FIGHT ON HYLAN

Mayor Mitchel declined yesterday to take up the challenge of William M. Bennett, his Republican rival in the Mayoralty race, to debate campaign issues and the primary frauds with him. Mayor Mitchel said he did not intend to "concern himself with inconsequential candidates," and added that Mr. Bennett was not a "real candidate." Mr. Bennett, thoroughly injured and construing the Mayor's use of the word "inconsequential" as having reference to the primary frauds, came back with a tabulation of Mayor Mitchel's gains in Manhattan and Bronx as a result of these, and called upon the Mayor to withdraw from the race.

"I haven't read Mr. Bennett's letter," said the Mayor when he was informed that Mr. Bennett had challenged him to a joint discussion after it was apparent that Judge Hylan would not accept the Mayor's challenge that he take part in a joint debate in a public hall, "but I am not going to concern myself with the inconsequential candidates in this campaign. There is enough to do to contend with the really important candidate."

"You mean that Judge Hylan is the only really important candidate?" the Mayor was asked.

"Judge Hylan is the only really important candidate against whom I am going to direct all my efforts." The Mayor then went on to say:

"I did not challenge Judge Hylan to a general debate. I did challenge him to meet me, and dared him to specify any wrong doing in my administration or regarding my official conduct. He did not dare accept my challenge, because he can specify nothing of that kind, and he knows he has been willfully in error in his charges, with intent to mislead the people. Finally, I pointed out that he must either meet me and discuss with me his statements or stand convicted of both cowardice and deceit. When I say that Judge Hylan is the only consequential candidate, I mean he is the only candidate with a prospect of winning."

When the Mayor was asked if he was seriously alarmed by the reports of widespread socialism among the voters, he replied that his statement with regard to the only candidate with a prospect of winning answered the question. He was informed that Mr. Bennett in his letter gave notice that he would take up the primary frauds.

"I have already twice spoken of the primary frauds," replied the Mayor, "and it was my act that brought about the correction of the error and exposure."

"Have you anything to say as to your attitude toward a Republican district leader holding office under your Administration in whose district the frauds or errors involved more than 130 votes?"

"I know nothing about that," said the Mayor.

Mr. Bennett's statement was a lengthy and bitter arraignment of Mayor Mitchel which was based on a misapprehension on Mr. Bennett's part of what the Mayor had said, due to an incorrect report of the interview that had been submitted to him for his comment.

GETS A WRIT TO REGISTER.

Hospital Patient, Denied Permission, Asks Court for Right to Enroll.

Supreme Court Justice Mitchell, in the Bronx, issued a writ of mandamus last night directing the resident physician in charge of the Tuberculosis Hospital on North Brother Island to show cause why "a number of patients" were prevented from going to their respective polling places to register. The writ was issued upon the application of Henry Kempner, a lawyer, whose client is John M. Riordan, 32 years old, of 653 East 158th Street, the Bronx, a patient at the hospital.

Riordan, it is alleged, asked permission to go to his district to register and was not permitted to do so. The writ was served upon Dr. William N. Keith, in charge of the hospital. The matter has also been called to the attention of the District Attorney of the Bronx.

After a consultation with Health Commissioner Haven Emerson, Reardon was allowed to leave the hospital to register, but the other patients were held. Justice Mitchell ruled that Reardon and all the other inmates of the hospital were entitled to register, and that it was the duty of the Health Commissioner to see that they had opportunity to do so. The Court characterized as "outrageous" the failure of the city officials to provide a chance for the patients to register. Justice Mitchell directed that Reardon be given immediate opportunity to register. Dr. Emerson declared that to allow all such patients to register might result in a menace to the community. Justice Mitchell said that there were probably 2,000 persons suffering from tuberculosis, of whom the Health Department had no knowledge and who were permitted to exercise their right of franchise.

It was finally decided that Deputy Sheriff Duane accompany Reardon to the place of registration. Reardon registered and then returned to the court. Justice Mitchell said that the Health Commissioner must se that every patient has a chance to register, even though the expense be $50 for each of them. He said he would hold the Health Commissioner and the Corporation Counsel responsible if the patients were not enabled to register. The Court did not issue a formal order, but said he would do so if he found that there was a tendency to disregard his suggestions.

RANSOM FLAYS OPPONENTS.

Asserts Corrigan and Swann Are Both Tammany Colleagues.

At the opening of the new anti-Tammany Harlem Headquarters, at 68 West 125th Street, last night, William L. Ransom, Republican and Fusion candidate for District Attorney, continued his attacks upon both Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan and District Attorney Swann, his opponents.

"Everything which Mr. Corrigan says about his Tammany colleague, Mr. Swann," said Mr. Ransom, "and everything which Mr. Swann says about his Tammany colleague, Mr. Corrigan, shows that neither of them deserves the vote of anyone who desires a better administration of the District Attorney's office. The public is not much concerned with the falling out of Tammany factions or in the present squabbles of men who have usually worked side by side for Tammany's interest. The public is, of course, interested in what Mr. Corrigan tells, out of the richness of his 'inside' knowledge and experience, as to Mr. Swann's methods of mal-administering his office. The public may likewise be interested in what Mr. Swann tells about Mr. Corrigan's antics and efforts to be acceptable to Tammany. I imagine they are both right in what they say about each other's Tammany activities; they ought to know."

Littleton Replies to Hylan.

Martin W. Littleton was the principal speaker at the Fusion meeting held last night at McKinley's Casino, 169th Street and Boston Post Road, at which he replied to Judge Hylan's speech at Hunter's Point on Friday night, in which the Tammany candidate for Mayor stated that he was going to do away with invisible government and rid the City of New York of the boss system. "This is ridiculous," Mr. Littleton said. "Hylan does not know what invisible government means. The greatest living example of invisible government is Charles Murphy, the boss who is putting him forward for Mayor."

SOCIALISTS BELIEVE HILLQUIT CAN WIN

Mayor Mitchel sent a letter yesterday to Morris Hillquit, the Socialist candidate for Mayor, in reply to one the latter sent to him and the other Mayoralty candidates, urging that they take their stand for the woman suffrage amendment in the open. The Mayor wrote:

Dear Mr. Hillquit: I have your letter of Oct. 10. It seems to me that my position on the suffrage question as declared several years ago ought to be sufficiently well known to leave no doubt in the minds of the people of this city. Although I expect to vote for the amendment and hope it will be adopted, I do not consider the question one of the issues of the campaign. I feel that the wise course is to confine our discussion strictly to the issues. With warm personal regards, I am, sincerely yours,

JOHN PURROY MITCHEL.

Commenting on Mayor Mitchel's letter, Mr. Hillquit said last night:

"While in a strict and technical sense it is true that woman suffrage is not an issue in the city campaign, it is more closely related to it than many of the other subjects which have been injected as issues into this campaign, such as patriotism and similar questions. Furthermore, I did not propose to my opponents in the Mayoralty race that they should discuss woman suffrage. I suggested that we all make public and unequivocal declaration in favor of the measure. Every citizen who will vote for Mayor Mitchel, Judge Hylan, Mr. Bennett, or myself, will also be called upon to vote for or against the woman suffrage amendment. It seemed to me that we could rise above our immediate partisan political interests to help a good nonpartisan cause. I am sorry my opponents do not see their way clear to accept the suggestion."

There is unusual activity at the recently opened campaign headquarters of Mr. Hillquit in the People's House, the base for the Socialist propaganda at 7 East Fifteenth Street. There is an air of confidence about the place, more apparent than at any of the other Mayoralty campaign headquarters. Many of Mr. Hillquit's followers actually believe that he has a chance of winning, and that the largest city in the Western Hemisphere may be governed under Socialist auspices after Jan. 1.

Usher Solomon, Secretary of the Socialist State Committee and manager of the Hillquit campaign, said yesterday that Socialists all over the country are taking a profound interest in the Mayoralty campaign in this city, and that money contributions are coming in from practically every State of the Union.

It was said yesterday at the Hillquit headquarters that a number of letters had been received congratulating him on the stand he has taken with reference to the war in a letter printed in the last issue of The New Republic. In this letter Mr. Hillquit said in part:

"I do not urge Americans to vote for anti-war candidates, pledged to the co-operative commonwealth, while Germany spreads ruin through Europe. In common with all the Socialists of America, Russia, Italy, and with the ever-growing number of Socialists in England, France, Germany, and Austria, I urge the people of all countries to vote for 'anti-war candidates pledged to the co-operative commonwealth,' so that no country will spread ruin through Europe or elsewhere. I believe war must be ended by peace."

CHALLENGE TO SWANN.

Magistrate Corrigan Asks District Attorney About Beef Trust.

Magistrate Joseph Corrigan, independent candidate for District Attorney, sent a letter yesterday to District Attorney Swann replying to Mr. Swann's letter of Friday night taking exception to the charges made by the Magistrate in his Cooper Union speech, and suggesting that Mr. Corrigan lay any evidence in his possession before the Grand Jury. In his letter Magistrate Corrigan said:

"I would ask you, Mr. Swann, in this connection, are you still under retainer by the beef trust? And is your present or former relation to that trust responsible for your noteworthy faiure to prosecute vigorously the food sharks who are gouging New York consumers? Does it explain why Governor Whitman found it necessary to take the Baff murder case out of your hands and appoint a special Deputy Attorney General to prosecute it? The voters are interested in receiving answers to these questions far more than in any attempt by you to unload on the police force of this city the blame for the escape of Ruth Cruger's murderer.

"If you really wish to bring out the whole truth in the Ruth Cruger case, which I feel sure you do not, why not obtain permission from the court to make public the minutes of the first Grand Jury that investigated the case? I challenge you to do this. But would John T. Dooling, your assistant—it is notorious that under Murphy he is your master—permit you to take such a step?"

CRAIG QUITS MITCHEL.

Member of Fusion Committee Objects to Issue of Patriotism.

Robert F. Craig of 99 Schenck Avenue, Brooklyn, sent a letter to Mayor Mitchel yesterday resigning as a member of the Fusion Committee. Mr. Craig has been active for many years in the work of civic organizations in the East New York section.

"Your attacks upon the loyalty and patriotic Americanism of all of our citizens who honestly differ with you have been so unfair and unjust and so detrimental to the best interests of our country that I am compelled to withdraw my support of your candidacy and resign my membership on the Fusion Committee of 1917, the Committee of Two Hundred and Fifty.

"A continuance of your present line of attack upon your opponents, your persistence in raising the false issue of patriotism, will be more harmful to the United States and the cause for which we are fighting than any act of sedition or alien propaganda with which the Federal Government has yet had to deal."

In the letter Mr. Craig said also that the committee was controlled by a small clique, "representing special privilege and predatory interests of Wall Street."

HELD FOR SELLING WHISKY.

Soldier Out of Uniform and a Chauffeur Accused.

John Heaton, a private in the Alabama infantry unit of the Rainbow Division at Mineola, was arrested yesterday, charged with violating the intoxicating liquor section of the national military law. Heaton was in civilian clothes when arrested, and, it is charged, was caught delivering bottled whisky to soldiers in the hallway of a building in Chatham Square. When Heaton gets clear of the United States courts he must answer two charges to his military superiors, absence without leave and appearing out of uniform. United States Commissioner Hitchcock held Heaton in $500 bail for further examination.

Samuel Goldstein, a chauffeur, was also arrested yesterday charged with selling whisky to soldiers. According to the Federal agents, Goldstein was detected by Detectives O'Connor and Sheedy delivering whisky to a man in uniform in Fourteenth Street. The detectives said Goldstein, when he found out that they were detectives, jumped into his taxicab and tried to get away. The detectives followed and fired a bullet into one of the tires of the taxicab, the puncture bringing the machine to a stop. Commissioner Hitchcock held Goldstein in $300 bail for further examination.

A vigorous campaign to rid the city of disreputable men who are making money selling whiskey to soldiers is about to be undertaken by the police. The Government has requested that every possible effort be made to stop the illegal traffic, the continuance of which is getting scores of otherwise good soldiers into trouble.

JUGO-SLAVS TO USE OUR FLAG IN WAR

ARDENT FOR A NEW NATION

Many Will Fight Beside Serbians, It Is Predicted, to Win Freedom from Austria.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Emphasizing what he regards as the vital importance of developing a strong campaign against Germany on the Balkan front, Dr. Hinko Hinkovitch, who has been working in this country for a union of Southern Slavs of Austria with Serbia, asserted in an interview here today that Jugo-Slav volunteers from the United States were preparing to fight Austria-Hungary under the American flag.

Dr. Hinkovitch, who was a Croatian Deputy in the Hungarian Parliament and a Deputy in the Croatian Parliament, and is a member of the London Jugo-Slav Committee, says he thinks that the Balkans, which he describes as the "gate of the East," are considered by Germany more vitally important than the Franco-Belgian front or the Russian frontier. He argues that if Germany is able to retain the Balkan front she will ultimately win the war, and that its retention by the Teutons would mean another war in time, but that the erection of a Jugo-Slav State would serve as an effective barrier against German dreams of conquest and ambition.

The whole Jugo-Slav race, Dr. Hinkovitch said, was united at present, but united in slavery. Many of its members who have had the opportunity have joined the Serbian and allied armies, and 150,000 Austro-Hungarian Jugo-Slavs taken prisoners by Russia have organized themselves into three volunteer divisions and are now fighting against their former masters.

"I came to America," said Dr. Hinkovitch, "wtih the purpose of advocating the Jugo-Slav cause. America's great sympathies for Serbia have found already a magnificent expression in her financial help and her admirable work for the distressed population and the war prisoners. But I should wish to see these sympathies extended to all Jugo-Slavs and the motives widened from pure humanity to a political character.

"In the United States there are about 700,000 Jugo-Slavs. Thousands of them are in the American army, and other thousands are waiting the moment to join the Serbians on the Saloniki front. Last August I had the opportunity as representative of the Jugo-Slav Committee in London of participating with Colonel Ellis, an American, in a celebration on behalf of a Jugo-Slav volunteer battalion on its way from America to the Saloniki front.

"You see, America is already supporting morally the Jugo-Slav cause, and, what is exceedingly interesting, is virtually at war with Austria-Hungary. The Jugo-Slav volunteers from America will fight under the American flag against Austria-Hungary."

KINGS DEMOCRATS ALARMED

May Ask for Recount of Riegelmann-Coler Vote.

Evidently disturbed by the talk of fraud in the primary contest for the party nomination for Borough President of Brooklyn, a number of the city and borough candidates, with local leaders, held a consultation yesterday at Democratic headquarters in Brooklyn and discussed the question of whether it would be for the best interests of the ticket to take legal steps for a recount of the vote cast for Edward Riegelmann and Bird S. Coler. No decision was reached.

Among those at the conference were County Leader John H. McCooey, Sheriff "Al" Smith, Tammany candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen; Charles L. Craig, nominee for Controller; Mr. Coler, and Mr. Riegelmann. Judge Hylan, the nominee for Mayor, did not attend, but Alderman Bent, who was present, was said to be there as his representative.

A few days ago District Attorney Harry E. Lewis announced that he had discovered "gross irregularities" in the count of the vote cast for Riegelmann, votes cast for Coler having been recorded for his opponent.

The disclosures made by the District Attorney caused uneasiness in the Democratic camp, but there was greater disturbance when ex-Senator Bennett seized upon the alleged fraud as an issue in his campaign in Brooklyn.

Mr. Coler and Mr. Riegelmann, it was said, are agreed that, in justice to all concerned and in deference to public opinion, there should be a recount of the entire Coler-Riegelmann vote. Mr. Coler has expressed himself as satisfied that the "irregularities" found by the District Attorney were only in a district where there was an old personal grudge against him, and that they would not be found to be widespread.

CHILE WELCOMES OUR SHIPS

Ambassador Applauds New Policy at Launching of Steamer.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Oct. 13.—Señor Santiago de Aldunate, the Chilean Ambassador, at the launching of a steamer here today for the Chilean trade, spoke hopefully of his country being able to break the monopoly of freights exercised by commercial houses of Europe. The Ambassador said:

"In addition to her remoteness and the cordillera of the Andes, an artificial element has contributed to Chile's isolation, the monopoly of freights exercised by the great commercial houses of Europe by virtue of which we have been barred from direct communication with buyers and sellers. Our production, industries, and commerce have been arrested. Now we call to our aid a powerful competitor, who will break this monopoly and give us freedom within competition, tearing down the Chinese wall of freight monopoly.

"We desire to receive on our coasts all the strong and enterprising nations of Europe, Asia, and other continents. We will gladly welcome their capital, industry, intelligence, and teaching, and by the unstable equilibrium resulting from the balancing of forces we will avoid any hegemony or preponderance that would be menacing or even dangerous.

"This is the first time the United States Government has taken a step of this nature; it has broken its traditions and undertaken a work which heretofore exclusively had been one of private initiative.

"Chile receives with applause the work of commercial intercourse and more intimate political relations. The United States does not know Chile well enough, and the best vehicle for such knowledge is the steamship which is today born in the hazardous life of the sea."

SWEDES REPUDIATE ACTS OF DISLOYALTY

Deplore Transmission of Diplomatic Messages and Pledge Anew Allegiance to America.

Americans of Swedish descent last night repudiated the action of their native land in allowing itself to be used by Germany for the transmission of diplomatic code messages from the Chargé d'Affaires at Buenos Aires to the German Foreign Office, and in resolution pledged anew their loyalty to the United States. The resolutions were adopted at a loyalty meeting of New York Swedish-Americans held in Carnegie Hall, and also recited the part that the Swedes have taken in the development of the country and for the advancement of its interests.

"In the present world war they stand firmly on the side of the United States, they have freely given of their best manhood through voluntary enlistment, in the recruiting of its armies for democracy against autocracy; they have given freely of their treasure, as is indicated by the fact that one Swedish-American bank has purchased for itself and its customers, who are in the main of Swedish extraction, more than $2,000,000 of Liberty bonds," the resolutions read. "The world must be made safe for democracy.

"That principle is our confession of faith, and we will make any sacrifice, however great, that it may be achieved. To this end we have pledged our support to the President of the United States without limit or restriction and have given our fathers, our brothers and our sons, who have gone across the Atlantic or have mobilized in the United States. They have offered their lives for the cause they have espoused, and we will support them to the limit of our resources. In the belief that what we have done and are doing entitles us to the confidence of every true American, we renew our pledge of allegiance and affirm our loyalty to the United States."

This expression of loyalty found voice in a speech by Adolph O. Eberhart, former Governor of Minnesota:

"After months of patient waiting," he said, "we have declared that a state of war exists between this country and Germany, and that because Germany has committed various acts of war and declared her intention of sinking our ships and murdering our citizens, destroying our property, and setting criminal intrigues against us afoot.

"In the conduct of the war the Central Powers have violated every treaty obligation, bombarded undefended cities, taken hostages, destroyed invaluable structures of art, murdered noncombatants, and seized neutral property, openly proclaiming to the whole world that to them a solemn treaty obligation meant nothing more than a scrap of paper.

"Those who hail from the Scandinavian countries, and who are naturally interested in their welfare, should remember that the future existence of every small nation is at stake in this war, and history has taught us conclusively that no peace in Europe can be lasting unless the future of the smaller nations is safeguarded against invasion by their powerful neighbors.

"Let us, therefore, answer the call of our country with a response that will inspire our leaders and fill the hearts of our soldiers with enthusiasm. To us has been opened the greatest door of opportunity that the world has ever known. Without money, position, or influence we have taken our place on equal terms with those who have possessed them all. Everything that we cherish and love is here and at stake in this contest, our homes, our schools, our churches, and all the institutions that a hundred and forty years of struggle and achievement have made near and dear to us. These are now demanding protection and security at our hands. Shall we prove worthy of the great trust reposed in us?

"Let this, therefore, be the occasion when we proclaim to the world that we have forever banished former nationality and all foreign allegiances, that we are Americans, and nothing else, that we have only one country and one flag, and, God helping us, that we will live and die for them."

Charles A. Towne after describing the American eagle as a bird which had little of the attributes of the dove, said:

"If we do not wage war on the Kaiser now, we had no right to have fought King George in 1776. In our conflict with King George we fought for our liberties and for those of the English people as well. Had we permitted the Kaiser to rule us from the sea we would have become a vassal nation and later on would have had to fight him from the four dimensions—the heavens above, the water below, and on land and sea."

Joseph Hartigan, publicity director of the Liberty Loan for this district, appealed for financial support through bond purchases.

POLES TO SUPPORT RUSSIA.

Advise Ambassador Bakhmetieff of Their Loyalty to New Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—A telegraphic pledge of the support of American Poles for New Russia was given to Boris Bakhmeteff, the Russian Ambassador to the United States, in a message received by him today from the Polish National Department at Chicago. The telegram read as follows:

"In this momentous hour, when the Polish people is consecrating the memory of its national hero, Kostiouschko, I wish to address you as a representative of the Russian Provisional Government. I am happy to be able to complete the brotherly appeal, through which the Russian Provisional Government has already called the Polish Nation to determine its own fate in accordance with its own will, and thus to join the ranks of the champions of freedom of nations and to transmit to you today the latest statement made by the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs with reference to the Polish question.

"Explaining the reasons why New Russia could not consider the last peace proposals formulated by the Vatican as acceptable, Mr. Tereschenko spoke as follows: 'The Polish people cannot be satisfied by the new administrative regulations for Poland which have been enforced lately by the German Government. The concessions of Germany being but a proof of its weakness, still leave the Motherland of the Poles disunited. Russia is opposing to that its firm resolution to bring into life its appeal to the Poles, of the 12th of April, 1917, proclaiming the constitution of the free Polish nation.

"'The Russian Government has just proposed to the Allies to publish a common act which would confirm and sanction the above proclamation. At the same time, Russia will endeavor to secure to the new independent Polish State the conditions necessary for its economic and financial regeneration.'

"Transmitting to you these words which are the consequent development of the brotherly attitude adopted by New Russia toward the Poles, I wish to recapitulate the words of that first appeal: 'Brethren Poles, take, then, this brotherly hand which free Russia is now stretching to you. For you, also, is the hour of free decision approaching. Forward to fight, shoulder to shoulder, hand in hand, for our and your liberty.'"

WILSON SEES TROOPS DRILL.

Watches Engineers in Training Go "Over the Top."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—President Wilson today saw American soldiers go through all the thrilling work of trench warfare, including "going over the top," cutting through wire entanglements, and using the bayonet in the "enemy" trench. The drill was carried out at the Washington barracks by American engineers training there.

It was the Commander in Chief's first glimpse of what America's army will be called upon to perform upon the fields of France, and he followed the work of the engineers with the keenest interest, as did Mrs. Wilson and several Government officials who accompanied them.

GERMAN DESERTIONS GROW.

Swiss Paper Wants Fugitives Put to Work on Farms.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Oct. 13.—In spite of the extreme vigilance of the German military authorities, desertions of soldiers and even in several cases of officers across the frontier are increasing.

The Berne Bund estimates the number of German deserters who have fled to Switzerland since the war began at 10,000 to 12,000, and demands that they be forced to work in agriculture in order to support themselves, as the Swiss reserve wheat supplies will be exhausted next April unless America helps.

POLAND'S FLAG AT FRONT.

Silver Eagle Soon to Fly with Allied Colors in France.

FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, Sept. 25, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—A new national flag is soon to be unfolded on the French front—that of Poland. The silver eagle on a maroon field is to take its place beside the French Tri-color, the Stars and Stripes, the Union Jack and the battle flags of the other allies, and beneath its folds will fight Polish volunteers from all parts of the world, including thousands from the United States.

An autonomous Polish army is already in course of organization on French soil, and its ranks have been opened to Polish citizens who have wandered abroad in search of freedom from the oppression to which the Polish nation has so long been subjected.

This force is to be entirely independent of any other army, all its officers and men being of Polish birth or descent. The nucleus of the new army is composed of Poles who have served in the French army since the beginning of hostilities. In Paris alone 500 enlisted at the first call, while Toulouse furnished another 450, Abbeville 300, Douai 300, and Marseilles 100, besides many who joined in other cities.

LAUDS FRENCH DIPLOMATS.

Briand Says the History of the War Affords Proof of Their Ability.

PARIS, Oct. 12, (Delayed.)—The diplomacy of France was defended eloquently by ex-Premier Briand in the Chamber of Deputies today in the course of an interpellation on French diplomatic action during the war. M. Briand said that the work of French diplomats must be judged by the results of Germany's ultra modern diplomacy, which had brought the brand of infamy on that country's good name. After Great Britain and Italy had taken their places beside France there had come Japan, Rumania, "the great and noble country, the United States, and almost every country in the world."

"Ask America about our diplomatic action," said the former Premier. "I defy you to find anything humiliating being said about France."

EXTRA PAY IN SIGNAL CORPS.

Companies' Agreement with Drafted Employes Officially Approved.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Approval has been given by the War Department to an agreement reached between the three great communication companies of the country and their employes who have been drafted into the new signal corps organizations of the army for fair treatment of these men. The agreement provides that the companies guarantee for at least one year the difference between the salaries earned before the men became part of the military establishment and the pay received from the Government.

Some time before the break with Germany officers at the head of the Signal Corps had completed a remarkable reserve organization, which included not only the telegraphers and telephone men, but the office managers and district managers. When the United States entered the war there existed a large number of complete field signal battalions, officered by their own managers. These were taken bodily into the service.

VISCOUNT GREY COMING.

Former British Foreign Secretary Said to Plan Visit Here.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The Globe today says it is expected that Viscount Grey, former Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, will visit America.

It was suggested last month that the visit of Viscount Grey might be associated with Colonel E. M. House's new mission to prepare data for the benefit of American delegates to the peace conference, when it comes; for the former isolation of this country in European diplomacy deprived it of having first-hand knowledge on many questions which must come up for settlement—Belgium, Alsace-Lorraine, Poland, the Balkans, Palestine, &c.

Unless it be M. Delcassé, former French Minister of Foreign Affairs, there is no living European statesman who has personally taken part in so many and important European disputes as Viscount Grey, who was the Foreign Secretary from 1905 to Dec. 11, 1916.

GARY SCHOOL HEAD REPLIES TO HYLAN

SAYS PUPILS ARE PLEASED

Challenges Judge to Name One Institution Where Program He Outlined Is in Effect.

Mrs. Alice E. B. Ritter, Principal of Public School 89, in Brooklyn, which was the first school to be "Garyized" in this city three years ago, said yesterday that Judge John F. Hylan, the Tammany Mayoralty candidate, showed woeful ignorance of the Gary system. Answering one of the candidate's recent manuscript speeches regarding the working of the system, Mrs. Ritter, through the Committee on Education of the Fusion Committee, said:

"The Tammany candidate has declared that he gives careful thought to everything he says and that he makes no charge he cannot substantiate. I challenge him to name one Gary school in this city where such a program as he outlines is in effect.

"To give an impression of confusion and constant change he adds moves that are not made. He gives the children two play periods. In the auditorium, he declares, there are children ranging from 6 to 12 years who cannot possibly be interested in the same exercises even by the most efficient teachers. As a matter of fact there is never more than three years' difference in their ages, homogeneous grades, as 1A to 3B, or 4A to 6B, being grouped together. The Judge makes no mention of the special activities, such as drawing, music, library, &c., nor the shopwork.

"'Taking the time into consideration that it is necessary to go from one classroom to another, from the top to the bottom of the big school building—easily half an hour is deducted from the real study period, thus reducing the classroom work,' Judge Hylan would have the public believe.

"The truth is, however, that all the passing time is taken from the time allotted to the special activities, such as music, drawing, &c. No child in an academic class is allowed to pass from the classroom before the next class arrives. As for changing from the lower floor to the top, no child has to do this more than twice a day and many only once.

"The Judge deplores what he considers the lack of individual attention under the Gary plan. 'Little children under the instruction of four or five different teachers are not, and cannot be,' he says, 'properly trained, because no teacher has the child long enough to make an impression on it, nor to discover its strong and weak points, its individual character, and its requirements.'

"Does the Judge know that every classroom teacher has her own class for four periods during each day for academic work, arithmetic, geography, history, grammar, &c., exactly as she did under the old system? She is relieved of the necessity of teaching such highly specialized subjects, however, as music, drawing, library work, and nature study. Even under the old system the children had special teachers for shopwork, cooking, and sewing, as they have now. But they had this work only in the seventh and eighth grades, with less variety and equipment.

"In what Gary school, too, has the Judge found that the shopwork, which he misunderstands as vocational training, 'interferes with the fundamentals which in the past have formed the groundwork of education, which have made it possible for our boys and girls to take advantage of these opportunities that come only to the sons and daughters of this great Republic'? We have exactly as much time given to all academic work as we had under the old system.

"As for the special activities, they were required by the Board of Superintendents long before we ever heard of the Gary plan. The only difference is that they are now taught as they should be taught. Music, drawing, nature study and library work all have their educational value and should be taught by people who know how to teach them, as is done under the Gary plan."

A vote taken by one of the classes in Public School 89 during the luncheon period, declared Mrs. Ritter, showed that among fifty-five pupils of 6B2, averaging twelve years of age, but nine were opposed to the Gary system. Most of them objected because of the longer school day, which will be introduced in all the elementary schools this term to comply with the requirements of the Welsh law that demands additional physical training. When the class was asked if it would like to go back to the old system there were cries of "No."

Catherine Burke, one of the pupils of this class, which has been under the Gary system for three years, returned to the school this term because she insisted that her mother take her from the one to which she had been transferred.

Many of the children, said Mrs. Ritter, were particularly pleased with the special rooms they have under the Gary system for music, drawing and library work. They found the change from the class room to these special rooms and the shops, playground and auditorium "freshened" their minds.

PICKS COURT CANDIDATES.

Citizens Union Announces Selections for Brooklyn Municipal Bench.

The Citizens Union made public yesterday its indorsement of the candidates for the five vacancies in the Municipal Court in Brooklyn to be filled at the coming election. In the case of the Sixth District two candidates for the single place are indorsed. The action of the union is based upon the recommendations of its citywide Committee on Local Candidates. The indorsements are as follows:

FIRST DISTRICT.

JAMES A. DUNNE, (Dem.)—Judge Dunne is now filling an unexpired term by appointment of the Mayor. His record is a good one and his election for a full term fully justified.

SECOND DISTRICT.

GEORGE FREIFELD, (Rep.)—Judge Freifeld has been on the bench eight years and ranks very high among the Municipal Court Judges. There should be no doubt as to his re-election.

THIRD DISTRICT.

WILLIAM J. BOGENSHUTZ, (Dem.)—Judge Bogenshutz's conscientious work on the bench has been brought to our attention by members of the bar. His election for another term seems merited.

SIXTH DISTRICT.

The district has an opportunity, not frequently presented, of choosing between two well-qualified candidates.

EDGAR M. DOUGHTY, (Rep.)—Judge Doughty was a delegate to the 1915 Constitutional Convention and has served in the Municipal Court two years. He possesses the judicial temperament and his work has been generally commended. His two years' experience on the bench is a strong argument for his re-election.

CHARLES H. FULLER, (Dem.)—Former Senator Fuller is a citizen possessing many fine qualities and a genuine public spirit. His splendid record at Albany is a matter of legislative history. His candidacy merits the attention it is certain to receive.

SEVENTH DISTRICT.

EDWARD A. RICHARDS, (Dem.)—Judge Richards has been a leader in many good civic movements and his public spirit is genuine. He has been a good Judge and should be re-elected.

In submitting its recommendations the committee said:

"The litigation in this court and the decisions arising therefrom directly affect the industrial and commercial life of the city. The incumbency for the next few years of nearly half the places on this bench will be determined at the coming election. In making our recommendations we have been guided by the principle that a good Judge becomes more valuable to the community with each year of service."

WAR HONOR FOR CHAPELLE.

City College Student Decorated by France for Bravery in Battle.

Jacques de la Chapelle of the class of 1914 of the College of the City of New York and Sergeant of Engineers in the Army of France was called to Washington by the War Department early this week at the close of a six-week furlough from the trenches, and will now remain in America to help train our soldiers rather than return to his regiment in Macedonia.

Chapelle, who is a native of France, left college when the war broke out, and joined his country's colors. His rise was rapid, and for the last year he has been in charge of a machine gun company of his own. He was recently given six weeks' leave, excluding time of passage to this country, and arrived in New York bearing with him the golden croix de guerre—cross of war—the highest honor of France.

It was not until a few nights ago at the dinner tendered him by the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity that it was discovered how he won the cross. Then he related a tale of retreats, frozen feet, and persistence for a whole day at his gun, deciding a crucial point of attack.

SCHOOL BOOK GRAFT BAR TO PATRIOTISM

Educators Would Change Country's System of Instruction in Regard to Civics.

A NEW VIEW OF GERMAN

Propaganda and Kaiser Glorifying Books Opposed, but Not True Literature.

If plans that were laid at an educational conference held yesterday at the Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, are carried out, there will be changes in the educational system of the country in so far as it relates to the teaching of civics. As for general education, the instructors present believe that every text book now used in the schools through the efforts of an educational lobby or the "political pull of those getting a rake off," should be relegated to the scrap heap and new books selected with greater care and with more regard for their contents. These things are absolutely necessary, it was said, if the youth of the country are to be brought to a higher plane of patriotism and learn more of the real government of the country and less of the theory.

The call for yesterday's meeting was signed by Dr. Robert M. McElroy, who succeeded President Wilson as head of the Department of History and Politics in Princeton; Professor Albert B Hart of Harvard, Dean Shailer Mathews of Chicago University, and Professor Thomas F. Moran of Purdue. The meeting was part of the campaign for patriotism through education that the National Security League is carrying on.

Seated about the table in the library of the Bar Association were Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education; Dr. George E. Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation; President Alexander McKeljohn of Amherst, Dr. Henry W. Farnam of Yale, Dr. John H. Latane of Johns Hopkins, Dr. Franklin H. Giddings, Professor Douglas W. Johnson of California, Professor William [illegible] Princeton, Arthur E. Bestor, President of Chautauqua Institution; Professor Rufus D. Smith of New York University, Professor George M. Dutcher of Wesleyan, Dr. Thomas Carrigan, Dean of the Law School of the Catholic University; John P. Garber, Superintendent of Schools, Philadelphia; Dr. Craven Laycock, Dean of Dartmouth; Dr. William E. Mikell and Professor Edwin R. Keedy of the Law [illegible] University of Pennsylvania, President Jacob Gould Schurman, H. H. Wheaton of the United States Bureau of Education, and Sir Thomas J. Preston of Princeton.

A resolution Dr. McElroy was empowered to communicate with all educational institutions of the country with a view of having appointed three committees "to co-operate with the existing forces of the country studying the same problems for the purpose of effecting improvement in the education in civics, said committees to represent the elementary schools, intermediate schools, colleges, and universities."

It was decided after debate that the committees should take up assimilation of immigrants, education in citizenship, the "under use" movement, which calls for a greater use of the school houses for public good; the text-book evil and divorcing books from politics and pull, and the "dead-money evil." The educators hope to have devoted to patriotic use the money left to institutions of learning with specific purpose and which for that reason they are not able to use as they desire.

The educators also decided that there should be a radical change in the German literature taught. Not that the teaching of German literature is objected to, but it was the opinion that such literature should not be such as glorifies the Kaiser, the military system, or objectionable forms of government, but that the books used should have literary merit rather than propaganda force.

"There should be an entire change in the educational system of the country so as to teach a broader knowledge of the country, the national needs, the operation by which those needs can be met—in other words, we want to impress on youth conditions as they are and how to meet them rather than to fill them with theoretical knowledge that is gleaned from books alone," said Dr. McElroy, who presided. "Your boy in college is not taught the vital things of the day, as, for instance, graft. He reads about it in the newspapers, but he is not taught its effect upon the Government and indirectly its effect upon himself.

"The trouble with the universities and the colleges today is that they are imparting theoretical ideas of government which may be related to basic principles, but give the student no knowledge of the practical working of the system or how to apply himself in remedying the evils which he will find of his own initiative. Education prepares him to meet an ideal condition that has but little place in the condition that he must face when he emerges from college to meet the practical things of life."

Dean Mikell said the salvation of the country is in its best thought and that that thought must be impressed by the teacher, who is in close contact with the youths of the land during the most impressionable period of their lives.

"If he is to be imbued with the spirit of real patriotism and what can result from the active or passive exercise of that spirit, he must obtain it while he is under guidance," he said. "The college professors of this country have an enormous responsibility and the salvation of the country and of democracy depends upon how they fulfill that responsibility."

The teachers in the colleges and universities are not neglecting so much as they are missing one opportunity for patriotic education, was the opinion expressed by Dr. Latane. The vital thing, he thought, is for the American citizen to have a broader knowledge of national and international problems.

Dr. Schurman, who has just been appointed a State Food Commissioner, urged the educators to give heed to the work of instructing the people in the necessity for food conservation. He paid a tribute to Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, for the work he is doing along these lines in the ranks of labor.

The committees to be selected as a result of the meeting will make their report before the Convention of National Service, to be held in Chicago on Feb. 21-23. At this meeting further steps will be taken in the campaign for patriotic education.

COLUMBIA'S GOOD FARMERS.

Reports from 150 Student Workers Show Their Value.

More than 150 Columbia students who worked on farms during the late Spring and through the Summer, have returned to the university with full academic credit. According to Acting Dean Hawkes, more than 90 per cent. of the Columbia volunteers for farm service made good.

Under the Department of Agriculture of the university, plans are on foot for similar work next year, the belief being that there will be greater need than ever for student farm workers.

Everybody can help win the war by conserving food—Eat all you want but don't waste an ounce!

75,400 DRAFT MEN TO JOIN GUARD UNITS

War Department Orders Big Shift to Fill Up Six Divisions in South and West.

MANY GO TO CAMP GORDON

Several Thousand from Camps Upton and Dix to be Sent to Atlanta Cantonment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Orders that had been forecast were issued by the War Department today for an extensive movement of troops of the national army to be utilized in filling up the ranks of those National Guard divisions that are short of men.

The orders, which are preliminary to rounding out the National Guard for early service abroad, involve the use of about 75,400 drafted men in bringing six National Guard divisions up to war strength. They also involve the transfer of about 55,000 drafted men from Eastern and Middle Western cantonments to Camps Gordon and Pike. Altogether about 130,400 men are being redistributed and regrouped to fill up tactical units.

While it is true that all the 687,000 men first drafted have not been sent to camp, and that about 250,000 of them remain to be mobilized, the construction of the cantonments has already reached the point where, so far as barracks are concerned, there will be more quarters at each cantonment than are necessary to accommodate the men thus far drafted. At nearly every national army cantonment there will be quarters available for an extra regiment of 3,000 men, and at some cantonments the surplus barracks will take care of a full brigade. The surplus barracks room will accommodate more than 65,000 men. It is not desired that these quarters be wasted, and for that reason every effort will be made to fill them as soon as men to fill them can be properly equipped.

The War Department is considering calling the second draft increment in December. The original plan contemplated that the second call be made for January. No decision has yet been reached, but the whole trend of plans is in that direction.

National Army of 459,000 Men.

On the basis of 27,000 fighting men to a division, the seventeen divisions of the national army will total 459,000 men. If these were all taken from the first draft there would be 228,000 men left. But 75,400 drafted men are being used to fill up the National Guard divisions, leaving a surplus of 143,600 men. About 80,000 of the drafted men will be used in the aviation service, leaving a surplus of 63,600 men, and not less than 50,000 men will be utilized in the medical service, leaving about 43,000, to say nothing of a force of 250,000 that will have to be provided for service behind the lines in France. Thus, it is evident that there will be a shortage in the force first drafted available for the national army, and that the War Department undoubtedly will have to evolve plans for cutting into the second increment of drafted men, and consequently will have to call them to the colors earlier than was first expected, most probably in December.

The National Guard divisions chiefly deficient are the Thirtieth, at Camp Sevier, South Carolina, which needs 10,000 men; the Thirty-first, at Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga., which needs 15,000; the Thirty-ninth, at Camp Beauregard, Alexandria, La., which needs 9,000; the Thirty-third, at Camp Logan, Houston, Texas, which needs 6,400; the Thirty-eighth, at Camp Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss., which needs 6,000, and the Fortieth, at Camp Kearny, Lindavista, Cal., which needs 9,000.

The surplus white men belonging to the army draft forces at Eastern cantonments at Camps Devens, Upton, Dix, Meade, and Lee, aggregating a surplus of 28,000 men, will be sent to Camp Gordon for use in forming a national army division through amalgamation. The surplus white men at the Middle Western cantonments of Custer, Grant, Taylor, Sherman, Dodge, Funston, and Travis will be sent to Camp Pike, at Little Rock. They number approximately 27,000 men and will be used in forming a draft army division.

Camp Gordon is to transfer all remaining white men to Camp Jackson and receive in return 8,000 white men from Camp Devens, 7,000 from Camp Upton, 5,000 from Camp Dix, 5,000 from Camp Meade, and 8,000 from Camp Lee.

Transfers Pennsylvanians.

Orders to Camp Lee direct that the transfer to Camp Gordon be composed of Pennsylvanians. This is the only case where transfers to other national army divisions are specified by State quotas, as is done with all transfers to National Guard divisions.

Camp Pike: After all remaining white men have been transferred to Camp Jackson to receive 8,000 whites from Camp Custer, 2,000 from Camp Grant, 2,000 from Camp Taylor, 5,000 from Camp Sherman, 8,000 from Camp Dodge, 5,000 from Camp Funston, and 4,600 from Camp Travis.

Camps Gordon and Pike for 15,000 men from Georgia, Florida, and Alabama; the Thirty-ninth Division to call upon Camp Pike for 9,000 men from Arkansas, Louisiana, and Mississippi; Twenty-ninth Division to call upon Camp Dix for 1,000 men from New Jersey and Delaware; Thirty-second Division to call upon Camp Custer for 3,000 men from Michigan and Wisconsin; Thirty-third Division to call upon Camp Grant for 5,400 men from Illinois, and on Camp Dodge for 1,000 men from Illinois; Thirty-eighth Division to call upon Camp Taylor for 6,000 men from Indiana and Kentucky; Twenty-eighth Division to call upon Camp Meade for 1,000 men from Pennsylvania; Thirty-seventh Division to call upon Camp Lee for 2,000 men from West Virginia, and upon Camp Sherman for 3,000 men from Ohio; Thirty-fourth Division to call upon Camp Dodge for 3,000 men from Iowa, Minnesota, and North Dakota, and upon Camp Funston for 2,000 men from Nebraska and South Dakota; Thirty-fifth Division to call upon Camp Funston for 3,000 men from Missouri and Kansas; Fortieth Division to call upon Camp Lewis for 3,000 men from California, Nevada, and Utah, and upon Camp Funston for 6,000 men from Colorado, New Mexico, and Arizona; Thirty-sixth Division to call upon Camp Travis for 5,000 men from Oklahoma and Texas.

Commanders of the National Guard divisions are directed to state the number of men required, to inform the commander of the national army cantonment on whom the call is made of the number of men of special qualifications needed, and the dates on which the levies can be received and accommodated at the guard camps.

NEED AVIATORS' HELPERS.

Government Calls for Mechanics Who Will Not Act as Fliers.

The Aeronautical Office of the United States Army at 104 Broad Street made an appeal yesterday for recruits to go to France immediately as privates in the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps to maintain and repair airplanes.

Major Gen. George O. Squier, Chief Signal Officer of the United States Army, directed yesterday that a recruiting campaign begin at once, with the object of enlisting a total of 100,000 men who will be employed chiefly at the hangars of American aviators in keeping flying equipment in shape. The men called for in this appeal are not to act as flyers, but will remain in barracks at the aviation fields which are occupied by Americans in France. Those who are first to enlist as privates in the Aviation Section will go to France very soon.

Carpenters, electricians, mechanics, men familiar with gas engines, and others who know how to use their hands are asked to enlist at once. If they can pass the physical examination they will be accepted at any age between 18 and 45 years. The pay is $30 a month, with an increase for foreign service, and the prospect for advancement to better paid noncommissioned ranks are particularly good for those who enlist at once.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 13.—The Eastern Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, representing in its jurisdiction New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, today forwarded an appeal to Washington asking that the United States Government extend its activities for the protection of the American forces as exercised around the camps in this country, to foreign fields. The convention adopted resolutions regarding the sale and furnishing of drinks to soldiers of the national army abroad, and lauded the work of Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels in prohibiting the sale of liquors to soldiers in uniform. Resolutions also referred to the alleged privileges extended to some denominations at certain camps and cantonments in the United States, while ministers of other faiths are not accorded the same rights.

GAS TRAINING FOR TROOPS.

Officers and Men at Camp McClellan Will Take Course.

ANNISTON, Ala., Oct. 13.—The officers and men of Camp McClellan will soon learn how to use gas in the trenches. Orders have been issued for the construction of a gashouse for the school in gas defense courses, to be conducted by Lieutenant Tillman of the Medical Department Reserve Corps. Every officer and enlisted man will be instructed in how to protect himself from the poisonous gases, how to use the gas, how to wear and work with gas masks, the appearance of gas clouds, and the construction of gas shells.

The new schedule of training provides for a great deal of bayonet combat training, bombing, hand and rifle grenade work, intrenching, and trench warfare, and more night work than usual. Officials declare that night work in training should include scouting, patrolling, marches, occupation of trenches, trench raids, and trench combats.

The course of training outlined also includes the estimation of distances, familiarity with the use of field glasses, the use of range finders, and sketching and signaling. There will also be firing by platoons, lessons in target designation, finding the range of fire, the distribution of fire and fire discipline, direction and control.

Asks Aid for Serbian Soldiers.

An appeal for warm clothing and other necessities for Serbian soldiers in the field and in enemy prisons has been sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES by Sir Edward Ward, the Director General of Voluntary Organizations in London, which has received a list of the needs of the Serbian soldiers through the Mrs. Haverfield's Comforts Fund, but because of the great demands made upon England for necessities for her own troops in the field it was suggested that the appeal be sent to the United States.

Canada Cuts Beef Consumption.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—More than 16,000 hotels and restaurants in Canada have, by institution of meatless days, reduced consumption of bacon 51 per cent, and beef 40 per cent., as compared with the preceding months. They also have made considerable economies in wheat and flour by substitution of other cereals and by actual cutting of consumption.

WOMEN TO WORK IN FRANCE.

Unit Going to Look After Children Left Unprotected by the War.

A special unit under the auspices of the American Fund for French Wounded will sail from some Atlantic port today for France to work under the Civilian Committee and take care of destitute French babies. The Chairman of this unit is Mrs. E. W. Dickson of Milwaukee. The Vice Chairman is Miss Frances Hoppin, a cousin of Miss Anne Morgan, who has been some time in France in consultation with Dr. Alexander Lambert of the Red Cross, arranging for the work. This unit will go first to a munition town and look after children whose mothers work in munition factories, where it will learn the work that is to be done and later will work with children in the devastated towns back of the war front. The seven young women of the unit are the Misses Louise Hellier, Mary Withers, Mary Humphrey, Loraine Goodrich, Edith Dodge, Isabel Cumming and Susanne Wills. Miss Sue K. Watson and Miss Margot Moore will sail on the same boat to work with the Civilian Committee in France. These young women, hearing there was lack of transportation in France, have purchased a motor truck which they are taking with them and which they will drive themselves.

WAR CHANGES AT BARNARD.

Muller of the Department of Romance Languages and Literature is still absent on active service with the French Army. Dr. Armin K. Lobeck, instructor in geography, has gone to enter Government service. Miss Emilie J. Hutchinson of the Department of Economics has become manager of the Intercollegiate Bureau of Occupations. New instructors include Henry F. Grady, Lecturer on Economics; Lucia Smith, Lecturer in Chemistry; Bessie W. Lyle, Lecturer in Zoology; Helen H. Parkhurst, assistant in philosophy; Margaret Burns, assistant in physical education, and Lilian Egleston, Secretary of Brooks Hall.

REOPENS HEARING ON FREIGHT RATES

SETS CASE FOR WEDNESDAY

Decline in Net Earnings Cited in Urging Revision of Former Decision.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Interstate Commerce Commission granted today the application of the Eastern railways for a rehearing of their appeal for an increase in freight rates. The commission fixed next Wednesday as the date for opening the hearing.

This action was taken after the commission had considered a letter from George F. Randolph, Commissioner of Lines in what is known as official classification territory, written from his office at 143 Liberty street, New York, under yesterday's date. Mr. Randolph's letter read:

"The trunk line traffic executives, after a discussion today, desired me to try to arrange for a short informal conference with the commission next Wednesday or Thursday, (Wednesday preferred,) to talk over the rates on traffic not favorably acted upon in the recent decision of the '15 per cent. advance in rates case,' some of which are now covered by suspended tariffs and hearings arranged for, others covered by tariffs which carriers canceled at the suggestion of the commission, and possibly other matters germane to the subject of securing all of the results originally asked for.

"The thought arises from the carriers' keen necessities, as shown by the results since the case was presented, and was encouraged by the language of the commission on Page 23 of its decision as to amplifying its order if the necessity became apparent.

"If a few of us could have the privilege of such conference on next Wednesday, it is thought it would be of great assistance at the present time in reaching a prompt conclusion as to future action."

To Consider Special Increases.

Last Wednesday representatives of all the carriers in Eastern territory, interested in the question of advancing rates, met and decided to urge upon the commission the advisability of opening hearings with a view to an increase of rates on wheat, other grain, and live stock. These items were omitted from the former decision. The commission at that time made the statement that at a future time further consideration might be expedient.

The Philadelphia conference decided not to press at this time any claim for the consideration of a general increase of rates. This, it was held, should be postponed until the returns are received from operation during October, a month decisive as to revenues from many lines of transportation which had the benefit of the increases granted last year. Among these are revenues on coal, coke, and iron ore.

A summary of railroad earnings for August and the eight months ended with August, as prepared from reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission, shows a falling off in all sections except Southern territory. There the increase of operating revenues is shown to be large, while the increase of operating expenses has not kept pace with that in other sections of the country.

For the United States in August this year, the mileage being practically the same in 1917 as in 1916, the railway operating revenues were $345,544,480, as compared with $306,745,083 in August, 1916. Operating expenses in August this year were $233,870,823, as compared with $192,993,814 in the same month of last year, making the net revenue for the month this year $111,674,157, where it was $115,751,269 in August last year.

Net Revenue Decline in East.

In the Eastern district in August of this year the operating revenues were $160,286,772, and operating expenses $112,428,363, as compared with $141,294,155 and $91,101,764 last year. The net revenues in August this year in Eastern territory were therefore $47,857,909, while they were $50,192,421 in August, 1916. The net revenue per mile for the United States in August this year was $507, compared with $528 last year, and, in Eastern territory, the net revenue per mile in August was $894, while in the same month last year it was $881.

In the eight months ended with August, the net revenues for the railways of the entire country were $721,896,221, as against $730,723,941 in the same eight months of 1916. In the Eastern district the net earnings for the eight months of this year, ended with August, were $287,405,900, as compared with $327,883,607 in the same period of last year.

A general increase of wages, and the advance in prices of materials, especially iron and steel, that enter into railway maintenance and equipment, are mainly responsible for the unfavorable showing of net earnings. This showing comes at a time when there can be no complaint as to the volume of business handled, as the railroads are operating under a strain hitherto unknown in the history of transportation in this country.

TO CLEAN UP CAMP ENVIRONS

County Authorities Move Against Undesirables About Yaphank.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Oct. 13.—There was a conference here this morning of county officials and prominent residents of the county, held at the suggestion of Justice Joseph Morschauser of the Supreme Court, who is down from the Westchester district for the October term, to consider means to combat evil conditions that are slowly but surely creeping up around Camp Upton. The situation is not very bad yet, but all agree that it is not ideal.

Sheriff Biggs said that recently he went to inspect an eating house within five miles of the camp and found two barrels of whiskey hidden. He added that he had evidence that it was being sold without a license and in defiance of the five-mile prohibition. Thefts are almost constant, tires are stolen daily from cars left near the camp or in the villages. Pickpockets have been numerous, and women whose presence is not desired parade in the villages where the soldiers from the camp go when off duty.

Justice Morschauser, County Judge Vunk, Sheriff Biggs, and the District Attorney will appear before the County Supervisors on Monday to urge that money be made available at once to police the county and enable the District Attorney and Sheriff to cope with the situation before it becomes a scandal.

It is proposed to ask Governor Whitman to send members of the State Constabulary to the county, and it was suggested that the county borrow a few men from the New York Police Department to come down and point out known crooks.

PLAN TO SHIFT OFFICERS.

Draft Camps' Instructors May Join Men from Own States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. — Officers serving as instructors of drafted men undergoing training will be permitted to obtain transfers to camps where they may serve with troops from their own States. This provision is in line with the War Department's policy to omit no step which will result in keeping together men drawn from any one part of the country.

Major Gen. Henry McCain has sent the following telegram to commanders of national army camps:

"It is desired to authorize officers appointed from training camps to serve with troops from their own States if they so desire. To accomplish this you will notify all such officers that they can make application to you for transfer to the National Guard division containing troops from their States. After carefully scrutinizing such applications, so that this privilege may not be abused, and satisfying yourself that the transfer requested undoubtedly will put the officer with troops from his State, you will issue the necessary travel orders, sending copies to this office.

"These transfers will be made so as not to leave your division without sufficient officers for its organization."

JUSTICE FOR DRAFTED MEN.

Army Will Free Those Who Are the Sole Support of Dependents.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—It will be the policy of the Government to deal fairly with all cases of drafted men who are able to show that they are the sole support of bona fide dependents. Numerous such cases have been brought to the attention of Major Gen. Enoch Crowder, and in every such instance, it is stated officially, if the facts as alleged are established the men will be ordered discharged from the service.

The majority of such cases are reported from New York City. The State of Louisiana also figures prominently. It is assumed that the local boards in these districts have in some instances misinterpreted the rulings of General Crowder's office on the subject of dependents. Under this ruling it was held that while the law itself did not contain an exemption per se for the individual with dependents, it would be the policy of the authorities handling the draft to exempt without exception such men as were found to be the breadwinners for bona fide dependents.

GARIBALDI HOSPITAL PLEA.

Liberator's Granddaughter Tells of Things Needed on the Carso.

A recent letter from Italia Garibaldi, a granddaughter of the Italian Liberator, appeals to America for supplies for her camp hospital on the Carso. Things needed are bandages, adhesive plaster, squares of common cotton the size of a table napkin, as well as thermometers, needles, catgut, and rubber sheeting.

"Pretty chintz bags," she says, "are greatly appreciated by the wounded to hold what they cling to until the end—the little package of letters, the photos of wife and child, a pocketknife, and their pay. Such bags are invariably greeted with a smile, and when we move our wounded on stretchers to the nearest station the bag goes under the head or in the hollow of the arm."

Mrs. Florence Reid Underhill, Chairman of the newly organized Garibaldi Relief Committee, says materials sent to her this week at 39 North Fullerton Avenue, Montclair, N. J., will be forwarded at once. Contributions of money may be sent to H. R. Simonson at the Essex National Bank at Montclair.

AUSTRIANS FAILED TO RESIST IN BATTLE

Vienna Minister Admits Charge Against Troops, and Also Czech-Slav Aid to Russians.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 13.—The Austrian Minister of Defense, replying at Vienna to an interpellation, said that an investigation had disclosed that small detachments of two regiments of the Nineteenth Austrian Infantry in the fighting at Zboroff had failed to offer the resistance expected of them.

In another reply he confirmed the existence of a Czech-Slav force fighting on the Russian side, composed partly of prisoners taken from the Austro-Hungarians, who had entered the Russian army.

ASTOR HOME FOR HOSPITAL.

Ferncliffe Estate to be a Convalescent Station for Soldiers.

Vincent Astor's offer to convert Ferncliffe, his $3,000,000 country home at Rhinecliff, into a hospital for convalescent American soldiers wounded in the war has been accepted by the Army Medical Department, it was announced yesterday. Mr. Astor made the offer last June from France, where he is an Ensign in the Naval Reserve. He inherited the estate from Colonel John Jacob Astor, his father. It has a frontage of a mile on the east shore of the Hudson and adjoins the estate of Robert P. Huntington, the father of Mr. Astor's wife.

Several other owners of large estates are reported to have made similar offers to the Government, one of them being James Speyer, the banker. Mr. Speyer has a country home at Scarborough which, it is said, he is willing to lend to the Army Medical Department for a war hospital.

GUNS BUSY IN MACEDONIA.

Spirited Artillery Fighting Reported from the Cerna Bend.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Spirited artillery fighting on the Macedonian front, in the Cerna Bend, is announced by the War Office in the following communication:

Eastern Theatre, Oct. 12—The artillery fighting was quite spirited in the Cerna Bend. There was less activity on the other parts of the front.

BERLIN, Oct. 13, (via London.)—The official report from the Macedonian front says:

Apart from lively artillery activity in the Cerna Bend and reconnoitring engagements at Doiran Lake, which were successful for the Bulgarians, there was nothing special to report.

WARNS GERMAN INVESTORS.

Boom in Peace Stocks Baseless, Says Hamburg Observer.

A cable dispatch from Stockholm on Sept. 20 told of a small "peace boom" in German stock markets, apparently based on conditions in Russia. Among the stocks mentioned as rising were shipping shares. Following the "boom," the Hamburg correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung warned the public against being deceived by this movement in a telegram reading in part, as reproduced in the London press, as follows:

"Not only is there no reason whatever for higher quotation of German shipping stocks, but the public should remember that our navigation companies are at present under very heavy expense. It is certain that their dividend prospects will not be very favorable in the first years of peace."

Verdon Men Fail to Get Upon Ballot

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 13.—The application of the candidates of the Verdon Republican ticket in Hudson County for a mandamus to compel County Clerk McGovern to put their names on the Republican ticket was denied today by Supreme Court Justice Francis J Swayze.

OWNERS WELCOME CONTROL OF SHIPS

450 VESSELS ARE ELIGIBLE

Ward, Mallory, Clyde, and Southern Pacific Lines Not Likely to be Affected at Once.

Local shipping men were much gratified yesterday at the announcement that all American steamers of 2,500 tons and over were actually to be taken under Government control. The policy of the Shipping Board as announced is generally considered so fair that little apprehension is felt regarding the manner in which the remaining questions will be settled.

The only important point, from the shipowner's point of view, has to do with the time at which the Government requisition becomes effective in the case of each individual ship. Having in mind the experiences of many British shipowners, whose vessels were requisitioned when in foreign ports, and the owners compelled to bring them home without cargoes, American owners with ships at sea, outward bound, have feared similar treatment at the hands of their own Government. Apprehension on this point had in the last few weeks reached a stage where it was having a bad effect on ocean transport, owners being reluctant to undertake business for their ships which might leave them in straits if the Government requisition was applied indiscriminately. The best thing, in shipping men's opinion, about the Shipping Board's announcement, is that it ends this apprehension once for all. Steamers trading to and from American ports are to complete their voyages before reporting for requisition, and steamers trading to and from foreign ports are simply to be transferred to Government account, but to go about their business as usual until called for.

Shipowners in New York said yesterday that they expected to continue to operate their vessels and practically act as agents for the Government on a 10 per cent. commission basis, clear of expenses. This means that all earnings for carrying passengers, mails, and cargoes, after paying the expenses of the voyage, coal and insurance risk, will go to the Government, minus the 10 per cent. for the steamship company.

There are about 450 vessels now under the American flag which can be taken over by the Shipping Board any time the members deem it expedient to do so. This includes the fleets of the Clyde, Mallory, United Fruit, Southern Pacific, Pacific Mail, Luckenbach, and American Line and other smaller steamship corporations. Among the freight lines are the Kerr Steamship Company, Standard Oil, and Orient Navigation Companies' fleets. Many of these vessels are already under charter to the Navy Department or the Shipping Board as supply ships.

It is not expected that the board will take over any of the Ward Line, Mallory, Clyde, or Southern Pacific vessels at once as its members have expressed their intention not to take any drastic step in commandeering steamships from a special trade unless some urgent necessity arises.

There has been a good deal of talk in shipping circles and at Washington that the Government would take the sixty Dutch steamships in New York Harbor and use them for the duration of the war. According to the opinion of one of the leading American shipowners, who has just returned from Washington, this will not be done, as the United States Shipping Board does not wish to get into any entanglements with foreign Governments which might drift through the courts after the war for twenty-five years before they were straightened out. The board will charter all available Danish, Norwegian, and Swedish ships for the coastwise trade. The passenger and mail steamships of the American Line and their big freight steamships operating between the United States and ports in England have been carrying Government supplies ever since the war was declared against Germany, and it is not supposed that the board will interfere with their regular sailings except to take the profits and give the International Mercantile Marine Company 10 per cent. commission.

Officials of the Clyde and Mallory Lines said yesterday that their business was going along the same as usual, and the steamships for Jacksonville, Galveston, Tampa, and other Southern ports were filled up for the next two months. The Ward Line to Havana and the United Fruit Line to Havana and the West Indies were working under the same conditions. Officials of the last named company said that their vessels were specially constructed for carrying bananas from the West Indies, and to take off these ships would ruin the industry.

ACT ON DUTCH SHIPS SOON.

Holland Newspaper Says Their Seizure Would Be a Hostile Move.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—It was reported today on high authority that a decision might be expected soon as to the course this Government would follow in regard to the Dutch and other neutral tonnage held up in Atlantic seaports. The situation, it was said, had again been placed before President Wilson, the fact that the tonnage was badly needed being emphasized. It has been estimated that the tonnage lying idle aggregates from 400,000 to 450,000, of which at least 250,000 tons are of Dutch ownership.

There have been reports of late that if the neutrals refuse to give ground the power of commandeer may be employed. Interest was displayed here today in the statement published in the influential Liberal Dutch organ, the Handelsblad, that the seizure by the United States of Holland-owned vessels in United States harbors would be regarded as a hostile act.

Inquiry at the State Department elicited the information that the United States, in some instances, had exercised the right of angaria, under which a belligerent country may use neutral vessels in its waters, being obligated to compensate the owners of the ships for their use. It could not be learned authoritatively, however, whether this Government contemplated taking over Dutch tonnage.

It was learned that the Dutch vessels now in American ports numbered between 80 and 100.

GAIN IN OUTPUT OF ANTHRACITE COAL

WILKES-BARRE, Penn., Oct. 13.—The shipments of hard coal for September, 1917, as reported to the anthracite bureau of information amounted to 6,372,750 tons, an increase of 828,680 tons over the corresponding month last year, and 676,281 tons less than the largest tonnage shipped in any previous month. It is pointed out that September had five Sundays and one holiday, leaving twenty-four working days.

The total shipments for the nine months of this year amounted to 57,778,097 tons, an increase over the corresponding period of last year of 7,847,691 tons, and exceeds the ten months' shipments of 1916 by 1,977,477 tons.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Fuel Administration today appointed John E. Williams of Streator, Ill., as State Fuel Administrator.

The Fuel Administrator for Illinois is expected to meet a serious coal shortage crisis in Chicago. He has authority to call on the Fuel Administration here for any amount of coal necessary to provide for Chicago's needs.

While the war traffic on the railroads continues heavy, it is explained here there is an ample flow of fuel toward the Northwest and the great lakes, and it is believed that adequate provision now can be made to eliminate, to a considerable extent at least, the serious situation in Chicago and elsewhere in Illinois.

CANTON, Ohio, Oct. 13.—Mayor Schrantz today confiscated 1,000 tons of coal owned by the Central Power Company, which furnishes the city with electricity. Chairman Seymour, of the Chamber of Commerce Coal Committee, received a telegram from J. M. Roan, head of the State Clearing House, that coal will be shipped to Canton Sunday morning. A price of $5.60 a ton was fixed for the coal confiscated by the city today.

AKRON, Ohio, Oct. 13.—One hundred cars of coal, consigned to lake ports for shipment to the Northwest, were ordered seized here today by Mayor W. B. Laub to alleviate the serious local shortage. The 5,000 tons of coal will be distributed in Akron through local dealers. The coal will be sold at the prevailing price of $6.50 a ton.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 13.—According to a report submitted to Governor Stewart by State officials and made public today, coal miners in Montana make from $6 to $12 a day, in short hours, and cannot be induced to work long enough to get out the amount of coal required to meet the demand.

EXPECT BRITISH REPRISALS.

London Papers See Significance in Activity of Air Chief.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The morning newspapers suggest that the Government is ready to begin carrying out reprisal air raids on Germany. This belief is based on the assignment of Lieut. Gen. David Henderson, Director General of Military Aeronautics, to special work and the sending of Major Gen. W. S. Brancker, Director of Air Organization for the army, to a command abroad.

FILE LIFE RECORD OF NEW SHEPARD GIRLS

Papers Show That One Was an Orphan and That the Other Had Once Been Adopted.

BOTH UNDER 8 YEARS OF AGE

Judge, In Order Permitting Adoption, Says Children's Prospects Will Be Bettered.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 13.—An examination of papers on file in the Westchester County Clerk's office allowing Mr. and Mrs. Finley J. Shepard to adopt two little girls revealed today that one of their future heirs was an orphan, while the history of the other little girl is not given, except the facts surrounding her former adoption by a Brook... couple in February last.

The Shepards endeavored to keep the adoption details secret and requested clerks not to give out the contents, but the facts became known today when they were put upon the official records.

The adoption of Olivia Margaret Shepard and Helen Anne Shepard by Mr. Shepard and his wife was allowed by County Judge Frank L. Young, and not by Supreme Court Justice Young, as reported.

Olivia Margaret Shepard before her adoption was known as Roberta Sarah Clark. She is 7 years, 8 months old. The official record shows that she was born at Yonkers on June 22, 1910. Her mother was Alice Clark, who died on Sept. 17, 1912, while her father, Ernest D... Clark, died on Jan. 16, 1913. The child was delivered to the Leake and Watts Orphan House in New York in October, 1914. She is a Protestant in religion, and the adoption papers say that the Shepards are of the same faith. The adoption was approved of by Howard Duffield, President of the Leake and Watts Institution, and William Albert Clark... and Christopher Mayes Clark, uncles of the child.

Helen Anne Shepard, who is six years and seven months old, was formerly Virginia Myrtle Seitz, born Watts. The papers on file simply show that on February 14, 1911, County Judge Fawcett of Kings County allowed the adoption of Virginia Myrtle... Mildred E. Seitz of 220 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, wife of Jon C. Seitz of the New York World. The child was born at Flushing L. I., Feb. 6, 1911, and was given the name of Seitz after the first adoption.

In an affidavit Mrs. Seitz stated that she was willing to forever release unto Finley J. Shepard and Helen G. Shepard, his wife, all her legal rights respecting the custody, control and disposition of said Virginia Myrtle Seitz, (nee Watts).

Judge Young, in his order allowing the adoption, finds that "the child's moral, temporal interests will be promoted by allowing and confirming her adoption by the Shepards." He also finds that they have sufficient means to properly maintain and educate said minor child, morally, physically and mentally in the best manner possible, and that "they desire to give said child a better home and advantages greater than can said Mildred E. Seitz, and said Mildred E. Seitz is desirous that said minor child should receive such advantages and desires to be relieved of supporting, educating, and maintaining said child."

Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Seitz have adopted more than sixty children, whom they have later placed in other homes. For many years they have been interested in finding homes for orphan children, and for the purpose of obtaining more freedom in handling individual cases have accepted the expedient of first taking out legal papers of guardianship before placing the child with a family.

GALE KILLS SHIP'S MATE.

Meets Death Off Virginia Coast, but Crew Is Rescued.

Twenty-six members of the crew of the steamship New Orleans, wrecked off the Virginia coast in a gale last Wednesday, were brought to an Atlantic port yesterday by the vessel which picked them up just after the ship went down. They reported that Harry L. Kohlmond, first officer, a native of Germany, was washed off the deck aft by a wave and drowned. He was caught in some of the seamen cutting wooden pegs for stopping leaks in the boats when the sea rolled over the starboard side, smashing the deckhouse and hurling him into the sea.

The New Orleans of 1,564 gross tonnage, and commanded by Captain Charles H. Lawrence, left Sabine, Texas, for New York with a cargo of sulphur, and had to put into Norfolk a week ago for bunker coal. She started out again Wednesday. A few hours out the steamship encountered a gale and her twenty-inch suction pipe connected with the condenser was broken.

The water poured into the hold faster than it could be pumped out, and it finally reached the level of the furnaces in the stoke hole and put out the fires. Distress signals were hoisted and the men ordered to take to the small boats just before the ship began to settle.

TO HAVE MORE VEGETABLES.

Big Gain in Yields of Onions, Cabbages, and Beans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Enormous increases in production of Fall onions, cabbages and beans over last year are shown in estimates announced today by the Department of Agriculture.

Fall onions production is forecast at 3,554,150 bushels, compared with 7,832,700 last year. The acreage this year is 41,300, against 28,400 last year. California leads, with 3,318,000 bushels; New York is second, with 2,881,200 bushels, and Ohio third, with 1,966,000 bushels.

Production of cabbages is forecast at 691,920 tons, compared with 252,310 tons last year. The acreage is 73,200, against 40,800 last year. New York leads in production, with 349,680 tons, almost four times as much as last year, and Wisconsin is second, with 121,900 tons.

Almost double the quantity of beans is forecast, with a total of 15,814,000 bushels in the five principal growing States—New York, Michigan, Colorado, New Mexico, and California. California leads, with 9,276,000 bushels; Michigan is second, with 4,006,000 bushels.

FOOD PLEDGE WEEK PUT OFF

President Did Not Like to Have It Interfere with Liberty Loan Week.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—In compliance with a request from President Wilson, food pledge week, set for Oct. 21 to 27, has been deferred a week by Herbert C. Hoover in order to avoid a conflict with the closing week of the Liberty Loan campaign.

In his letter to the Food Administrator, the President pointed out that it would be highly undesirable to have the two great movements under way at the same time.

DUST BLAST CAUSED GRAIN DESTRUCTION

BOMB RUMOR UNFOUNDED

Brophy Finds That Fire in Elevator Tower Was Caused by Spontaneous Combustion.

Fire Marshal Brophy announced last night that after a thorough investigation of the fire which early in the morning destroyed grain valued at $1,200,000, stored in Dow's elevators at the foot of Pacific Street, Brooklyn, was caused by an explosion of grain dust in the tower of the elevator. The grain was intended for the United States and allied armies. Reports of explosions just before the fire was discovered led to rumors of a bomb plot, but these were dissipated after Fire Marshal Brophy's inquiry.

The fire broke out about 8:50 o'clock. Men at work in the storehouse said they heard two explosions. With the first report the top of one elevator, more than 100 feet high, blew off, and the flames shot through the ventilating noses. Four alarms were sounded, which brought Fire Chief Kenion from Manhattan and three fire boats. The firemen were unable to cope with the flames, which soon spread through the storehouse and then to another elevator.

When Fire Marshal Brophy reached the scene of the fire he was told by workmen that they had heard explosions just before the outbreak of the fire. One of these men was Superintendent William Tomlinson. Marshal Brophy suggested that the explosions might have been due to spontaneous combustion of grain dust. Several fires have occurred from this cause, but Superintendent Tomlinson asserted that improvements and the extra care which had been exercised had made a spontaneous outbreak improbable at the Dow stores.

Fire Marshal Brophy spent the greater part of the day investigating the cause of the fire, and later called witnesses to his office in Manhattan, where he questioned them further. After hearing their stories he was convinced that the fire was due to the explosion of grain dust.

After a five hours' fight the fire was under control, although it continued to burn slowly until late in the afternoon, and all day dense clouds of smoke hung over lower Brooklyn. The main structure of the destroyed plant was five stories high and divided into nine separate stores, containing in all about 600,000 bushels of wheat, corn, and rye.

Some of the grain was under Government bond, but most of it was awaiting shipment to France and England. It had been brought to the elevators in canalboats, and was to have been removed in barges to oceangoing steamships. A number of lighters and canalboats were in slips adjoining, but all were hauled to places of safety before the flames reached them.

The storehouse, with the elevators, had a frontage of 600 feet on the river and extended back 100 feet to Columbia Street. The buildings were valued at $150,000.

Michael Manning of Engine Company 224 was struck by falling timber and taken to the Long Island College Hospital suffering from internal injuries and a broken ankle. Two other firemen were slightly hurt.

FIVE FIREMEN OVERCOME.

Suffocating Fumes Encountered at Brooklyn Warehouse Blaze.

Five firemen were overcome by smoke in fighting a fire in the nine-story warehouse of the Charles William Stores at John and Jay Streets in Brooklyn last night, and Lieutenant John Smith of Engine Company 201 is in the Holy Family Hospital in a serious condition from illness caused by smoke and fumes. The four other firemen received medical attention from Captain J. S. W. Meagher, a surgeon in the United States Medical Corps, now on duty at Camp Mills, and were able to go back to their station after other companies had put out the fire, with a probable loss of about $50,000.

A watchman discovered the fire on the fifth floor of the nine-story brick structure, among piles of linoleum and oilcloth, and sent in the alarm. Lieutenant Smith and his company were first to arrive and a detachment went at once to the fifth floor with a house. Firemen Frank Flannery, Thomas Walsh, Lawrence Nelson, and William Scaplehorn were overcome on the stairs leading from the fourth floor and Lieutenant Smith was able to reach the fifth floor, where he fell, overcome by the heavy smoke and fumes given off by the burning linoleum.

Other firemen knew from the action of the hose and the failure to receive signals that the men had been overcome, and a second alarm for additional apparatus was sent in at once, while a rescue squad went into the building. Fireman William Brennan had difficulty in reaching Lieutenant Smith on the fifth floor, but he was able to drag him to the street. The other men got to the street safely with assistance.

... was harassed by repeated breaks in the hose, causing geysers to diminish the pressure, and company officers were not able to give any explanation for the defects. The heaviest damage from fire was caused on the fifth floor, although merchandise on the lower floors was ruined by water and smoke. No cause for the fire is known.

CHEMICAL PLANT BURNED.

Loss in College Point Fire Placed at $250,000.

Fire yesterday morning did damage amounting to more than $250,000 when the plant of the British-American Chemical Company on Third Avenue and Flushing Bay, College Point, was destroyed, the greater part of the loss being in ... and chemicals. The fire also did damage to the extent of several thousand dollars to the aviation plant of the L. W. F. Manufacturing Company, where airplanes are being manufactured for the Government. The damage to this building was caused by smoke and water.

Federal authorities as well as the police and Fire Marshal are conducting an investigation. Following the start of the fire in the chemical plant there was an explosion, but E. W. Stevenson, chief clerk of that concern, says that it was caused by spontaneous combustion of chemicals in a vat in the mixing room. He ridiculed the report that suspicion surrounded the origin of ...

"Enemy spies would have no reason ... plant," he declared, "because it was not engaged in making war supplies, its products being chemicals used as a preservative for canned goods and in manufacturing medicines for rheumatism."

Robert Buxton, 34 years old, of 310 Fifteenth Street, College Point, received a strained arm and contusions while escaping from the burning building, and was removed to the Flushing Hospital.

ARREST 2 GERMANS IN UNTERMYER'S PAY

SECRET SERVICE RETICENT

Employer Says the Men Were Hired by His Captain, and He Does Not Know Them.

Government agents on Friday arrested a man on Samuel Untermyer's estate, "Greystone," in Westchester County and another on Mr. Untermyer's houseboat at City Island and interned them on Ellis Island as enemy aliens.

Secret Service officials were reticent about the arrests, and Mr. Untermyer said that he was in the dark as to the reasons for taking the two men into custody. It was reported yesterday that Mr. Untermyer or representatives of his had yesterday morning demanded an inquiry into the action of the Government agents.

When he was asked over the telephone early yesterday afternoon regarding the arrests, Mr. Untermyer said that he had heard nothing at all about the matter, and that he did not know that any man had been arrested on his property. He said that he would inquire at once. Half an hour later he said:

"These two men were hired by the Captain of my house-boat last Winter on a trip to Florida and remained as members of the crew until the end of the season. After the houseboat had been put up at City Island, they were employed on the boat, but one of the men, I understand, was later put to work at Greystone along with about 100 other laborers. I understand that the two men were Germans and had not registered, which was probably the cause of the arrests.

"I don't know where the arrests took place, and don't know the names of the two men. I don't know where they have been taken to. It is not true that I have made any complaint about the matter, but I understand that somebody here has made inquiries simply for the purpose of finding out why the arrests were made."

Government officials were asked yesterday about rumors to the effect that the two men were German sailors who had escaped from interned German liners, but would give no information as to the cause of the arrests. Captain William M. Offley of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice said:

"I did not know these arrests had been made, and I don't know what branch of the Government caused the arrests."

Government officials admitted that Germans not possessing registration cards had seldom been sought out and arrested on country estates or on boats in Winter quarters. Officials at Ellis Island, where the two men are said to have been taken, are forbidden to make public information regarding such cases.

A Federal official was asked yesterday why no apparent steps are being taken to take into custody certain Germans now in New York who, in the course of the Bolo Pacha inquiry, admitted that they had been close to von Bernstorff in the carrying out of certain plots of which the former German Ambassador was the directing head. This man replied that the internment of these men rested with the Department of Justice in Washington and that, as yet, no orders had come directing internment.

"How about Hugo Schmidt, the agent of the Deutsche Bank, who admitted, when on the stand in the Bolo inquiry, that he was the paymaster of the Bernstorff-Bolo plot to debauch public opinion in France?" this official was asked.

"Schmidt has a custodian," he replied.

"Who?"

"A Supreme Court Justice."

The official pointed out that, within a few hours after Congress declared war, Schmidt was taken into custody by agents of the Department of Justice. His office was searched and it was supposed that Schmidt had been interned. The Supreme Court Justice, however, is said to have informed the Government that he would see to it that Schmidt lived up to the war regulations promulgated by President Wilson. Schmidt was then paroled.

It was stated by the Government official that another German of prominence had been disposed of in the same way, by being paroled in the custody of Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss. When he was asked about Schmidt last night, Justice Hotchkiss said:

"I know nothing about Schmidt. I never heard of him. There was a German paroled in my custody—that is to say, he gave a double parole, one to the Government and one to me. But this man was 77 years old, had been severely ill, and had lived in this country for thirty-five years, during which his conduct had been exemplary. He was a retired Lieutenant Colonel in the German Army, so that this Government could not overlook him."

State officials concerned in the investigation of the activities of Bolo Pacha, the French traitor, declined yesterday to make public the transcript of the testimony of Dr. William Bayard Hale, the former correspondent of the Hearst papers in Berlin. It was stated that the story printed in THE TIMES of Friday was correct in all main essentials and that the stenographic report of Dr. Hale's examination would disclose nothing that had not been printed.

WRITES TO MRS. WILSON.

Man Held for Sending Improper Letter to President's Wife.

Frank Haungs, 22 years old, was held in $5,000 bail yesterday by United States Commissioner Hitchcock to answer a charge of having sent an improper letter to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. The letter was mailed at the general Post Office last Wednesday, and was immediately turned over to the postal authorities. On the flap of the envelope was the name of Ludwig Vogel, foreman of an electrotyping concern, where Haungs was employed.

Secret Service Agents Rubano and Carpenter soon discovered enough evidence to warrant the arrest of Haungs, who was brought before Prosecutor Content. He was made to furnish specimens of his handwriting, and his arraignment followed.

The only motive for the letter, so far as could be learned, was a desire on the part of the writer to make trouble for Vogel. Haungs will be examined Oct. 19.

New Spanish Freight Service.

Manuel Romani arrived in New York yesterday from Valencia, Spain, to inaugurate a new freight service between the United States and Valencia which will be called the Trasmediterranea Line. The vessels will fly the Spanish flag and sail on a monthly schedule at first with cargo only, and later larger vessels will be put in the new service with first and third class passenger accommodations.

DRAFT ANNOYS PLATTSBURG

Selective Boards Call Some Men from the Training Camp.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Through the efforts of some of the selective draft boards in New York City and this New England States to have men now training return to their homes and report to their respective local boards, it was learned today that there were 424 of the students here on the draft rolls, of whom 216 are from New York and vicinity.

Many of the draft boards have been giving the headquarters officers no end of trouble, and it has become necessary for Colonel Wolf to appoint a Lieutenant to take charge of the situation here and keep the students out of trouble. Some of the boards have made demands that a student return for physical examination, and in these cases the boards are informed that the student already has undergone a careful examination here, and the fact that he is still a member of the camp is sufficient as regards his physical standing.

So long as a student remains a member of the camp the draft board cannot have him, and if in the end he is commissioned in the Officers' Reserve Corps the draft board has no further control over that man. At the end of the camp the names of all men under draft, not commissioned, will be telegraphed to their local boards, and they will have to report to their boards, but those not commissioned may take the examination for a non-commissioned place in the regular army.

Colonel Wolf believes that any man failing to gain a commission will certainly be able to pass a non-commissioned examination, and it is hardly likely that a drafted man failing in the first will decline to accept the later.

UNIT OF WOMAN DOCTORS.

Ten Will Go to France to Serve with Pershing's Army.

The first unit of woman doctors to be organized in this country for service in France was formed by the Women's Hospital, at 637 Madison Avenue, in this city, completely equipped, and is soon to leave for a base hospital in France to serve with Pershing's army.

Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton, President of the Women's Hospital, and Dr. Elizabeth Johnson van Slayke, the Superintendent, accompanied by the ten doctors composing the unit, occupied two boxes at the Empire Theatre last night. The ten women army doctors, who are in the service of the Red Cross, were all in their khaki uniforms.

The members of the unit are Dr. Dorothy Child and Dr. Florence Child, both Quakers, who were graduated in medicine from Johns Hopkins after attending Bryn Mawr; Dr. Ethel Lyon Hurd of Galveston, Texas; Dr. Marion L. Stevens, a dentist; Dr. Nevins and Dr. Woodruffe of San Francisco; Dr. Esther Blair, Dr. de Lam Kinney of this city, a dentist; Dr. Esther Parker of Cornell.

They were accompanied also by Miss Martha Townsend, a graduate nurse of the Women's Hospital, who has served for more than a year with the Fourth Canadian Contingent at Saloniki and has the rank of Lieutenant in the Canadian Army. She will leave soon with the woman doctor's unit and serve with it in France.

MUNITIONS EXPERTS TO AID.

British Mission Will Make a Tour of American Plants.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Four members of the British Ministry of Munitions will leave Washington early next week on an extended tour through eastern and middle western States for the purpose of placing at the disposal of American industrial leaders Great Britain's experience in promoting the production of munitions, particularly from the viewpoint of the distribution and effective employment of labor. The Commission goes at the invitation and under the auspices of the Council of National Defense.

Although the members of the party will make some public addresses, it is expected that their information will usually be disseminated through a series of informal conferences. Their first stop will be at Pittsburgh, and among the other cities to be visited are Indianapolis, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, New York, and Boston. They will carry a letter of introduction from Secretary of War Baker.

The members of the mission are Sir Stephenson Kent, a member of the British Council of the Ministry and Director General of the Labor Supply Department; H. W. Garrod, Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Labor Regulation Department; G. H. Baillie, Chief Technical Officer of the Labor Supply Department, and Captain Cyril Asquith, Director of the Artificer's Allocation of the Labor Supply Department.

SWANN PUSHES COCCHI CASE

Will Send an Assistant to Italy to Help in Prosecution.

Although District Attorney Swann has decided not to send Assistant District Attorney Francis X. Mancuso to Italy to assist in the prosecution of Alfredo Cocchi for the murder of Ruth Cruger because Mancuso would be liable to draft into the Italian Army, an announcement has been made that the District Attorney's office will send some other assistant prosecutor. No announcement of the appointment has been made yet, but it is said that the selection of William Harmon Black is being considered.

Mancuso is an American citizen, but under the Italian law he remains an Italian and would be subject to compulsory service if he returned to the country, unless an agreement was made through diplomatic channels to exempt him. He speaks Italian fluently, and the District Attorney chose him for the Cocchi prosecution because of that. A special appeal was made to the Italian Ambassador, who informed the State Department that he had no power to waive the rule of the Italian Government to conscript a person born in America of Italian parents.

CANADIANS CALLED TO SERVE

Those In This Country Warned to Answer—Age Limit 20 to 34.

Charles J. Doherty, Minister of Justice of Canada, has begun, through advertisements printed today in this country, a campaign to call to the colors Canadians living in the United States and eligible for military service.

He recites that by the Military Service act of 1917 all British subjects unmarried on July 6, 1917, or widowers having no children who are ordinarily residents of Canada or have resided there at any time since August, 1914, and who were at the time of the proclamation at least 20 years of age and were born not earlier than 1883, must serve their country.

On or before Nov. 10 they must report themselves for military service. Local boards have been established throughout Canada for the hearing of exemption claims, and they will begin to sit on Nov. 8.

The Minister of Justice warns those who refuse to submit to service or examination that they are liable to severe penalties.

PERSHING INSISTING ON RIFLE PRACTICE

Reports Again That Americans Must Be Up in Marksmanship When They Come to France.

FAVORS WEST POINT RIGOR

Declares the Men Should Be Drilled Rigidly in Military Bearing and Smartness.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The extreme importance of training American soldiers to be superior marksmen has again been brought to the attention of the War Department in a second report on the subject from General Pershing. Pointing out that conditions for target practice should be better in this country than behind the lines in France, General Pershing has urged that no opportunity be lost to make the new American armies the equal of any in the world in marksmanship.

General Pershing's second report on the matter is based on still further observation of conditions along the Franco-Belgian front. The Anglo-French armies appreciate now, General Pershing asserts, their deficiency in small arms training, and to prevent the American forces repeating the experience of the Allies, he adds that it is difficult at the present time to obtain sites for target ranges in France, when the crops are not on the ground, and that the difficulty will increase when the plowing begins. Even should it be possible to obtain an adequate and convenient area in France for a range a great period would be required for the construction of the ranges, and for the improvisation of target materials.

The time that would thus be used in this work, General Pershing said, would be needed in the war areas for the intensive training of the American soldiers in special formations and in the use of new weapons. For these reasons, General Pershing said, he again sought to impress upon the War Department the value of giving all soldiers thorough training in the use of small arms before sending them to France. He also said that the special training in trench warfare the troops are receiving in this country should not be permitted to interfere with the small arms practice nor with the training in the "School of the Soldier," companies and battalions.

The "School of the Soldier" is a phrase employed in the United States army to describe the first steps in the training of a soldier. It includes setting-up exercises, facing, and steps in marching, and the manual of arms. The next course is under the "School of the Squad."

General Pershing laid great emphasis upon his insistence that the grounding of every American soldier in the "School of the Soldier" should be most rigidly thorough. Among the points he makes are:

Officers and men should observe the most military manner, that of rigid position, when rendering salutes and when at attention.

Although a prompt military salute may not be well understood by Americans, even men in the service, its real object is to reveal the true soldier by an aggressive attitude of mind and of body.

The proper kind of pride as well as the superior fighting spirit will be greatly augmented by the closest adherence to this principle, and, besides, it is taken to indicate alertness, readiness, and loyalty.

In the American Army during this country's long period of peace, habits of slovenliness and carelessness and other unmilitary things have grown up, and these include not only the privates, but the highest officers. This situation is detrimental to the aggressive attitude that is essential.

General Pershing concludes with a tribute to the methods used at West Point, which, he asserts, ought to be applied with vigor and completeness to the Regular Army, the National Guard, and the national army.

N. Y. U. SCHOOLS MEET.

Patriotism Marks "Get Together Day" at University Heights.

New York University observed University Day yesterday on the campus at University Heights. This event is an annual affair at which the nine widely distributed schools of the university come together. At 2 o'clock the undergraduates marched in a body with a band to meet the students from the other schools at the University Heights station. Then the whole assemblage of several thousand persons walked in procession about the campus finally dispersing to marquees where the members of the various schools received arm bands in the colors of their respective schools.

This was followed by exercises in the Auditorium. There were addresses by Chancellor Elmer E. Brown, who read the list of New York University men now in their country's service; Dean Archibald L. Bouton of the college, and Dr. George Alexander, President of the University Council.

"I take great pride in the decrease of students in New York University this year," said Chancellor Brown. "In former years I have taken great pride in the increase of students; but this year I take a greater pride in those who have gone to do their duty for their country. We are a small university if we count only those of our members at home, but we are a greater university than ever if we count those who have gone into the service of the United States.

"Our School of Commerce has suffered most heavily with 133 short. The Schools of Arts and Science have lost the largest percentage, or 124 out of 403. Applied Science has lost fifty-seven. Three of our schools show a small increase—the School of Pedagogy, Washington Square College, and the Medical College. The remaining schools—the Veterinary College, School of Law, and the Graduate School—show small losses."

Hebrew Orphan Asylum Report.

The annual report of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, Amsterdam Avenue and 136th Street, states that in the period covered 1,248 children were cared for in the institution, and 235 boarded out, at a total cost of $400,000. The institution spent over $20,000 for the relief of widows, maintaining 250 children in their own homes. The boarding out department was especially successful, and gained the encomium of Deputy Commissioner of Charities Doherty.

AUTO DIVE HOLDS TWO IN DEATH GRIP

HOOD PREVENTS ESCAPE

Slashed Canvas Shows Desperate Effort of Imprisoned Couple to Release Themselves.

Receding tides in Hawtree Basin, an arm of Jamaica Bay, near Howard Beach, in Queens, yesterday disclosed an automobile that had apparently run off a bulkhead at the foot of Deer Avenue during the storm on Friday night, and the police found the bodies of a man and a woman caught in the curtains that had been put up to keep the rain out of the car. The body of the man was identified as that of George G. Greenberg, 23 years old, the son of Joseph Greenberg, a wholesale grocer, of 405 Belmont Avenue, Brooklyn. It was several hours before the body of the woman was identified by Irving Graber of 475 Van Sicklen Avenue, Brooklyn, as that of his wife, Rose, who had left her home on Friday morning.

In the belief that the body of another man might be in the bay the police of Harbor Squad A continued dragging the bay near the pierhead last night.

Greenberg is believed to have made a desperate effort to free himself and the woman from the car. An open knife was found in the machine, and there was a long cut in the top, which was up when the vehicle plunged into the water. The side curtains are believed to have been in place, too, but one of them was missing, and it is thought Greenberg tore it away during his death struggles. The front cushion was missing, and is thought to have floated out of the opening thus created, but Greenberg and the girl were evidently unsuccessful in their efforts to emerge through the same aperture. When found the bodies were floating on the water in the rear part of the car.

Greenberg was last seen by his relatives when he left the store at 7 o'clock Friday night. He did not tell his father where he was going. He sometimes went to Far Rockaway, and there is a route to that place through the southern part of Queens, passing not far from Howard Beach. Having had his car but three weeks, Greenberg is said to have been unfamiliar with the road. It is believed he was on his way to Far Rockaway, and turned off into the road to Howard Beach by mistake. Deer Avenue is an asphalt street, and appears to be a main highway. Greenberg evidently drove along it for a mile. Then, about ten feet before he reached the bulkhead at Hawtree Basin, he drove carefully around a wooden horse left standing in the roadway as a warning. He drove on, and an instant later his car went over the two-inch stringpiece at the end of the bulkhead, and somersaulted into the basin, the closed top and side curtains pinning the occupants within. The machine landed on its side in eight or ten feet of water, and was completely submerged. Hawtree Basin is an artificial stream, not more than fifteen feet wide, but thirty feet deep in the middle. It is thought the accident happened early in the evening, and that the blinding rain splashing against his windshield prevented Greenberg from seeing the water. The drop into the water broke the car's windshield, but otherwise it was practically undamaged.

When the tide went down about noon yesterday Maynard Smith, who lives near the Hawtree Basin, saw the automobile, still partly submerged. He called Patrolmen Fiffe and Ruase of the Richmond Hill precinct. They procured rowboats, pulled aside the automobile's curtains, and found the bodies.

When Greenberg took his automobile from a garage at Glenmore and Pennsylvania Avenues on Friday evening another man was with him, employes there said, and the police continued a search for a third body last night. Graber said that he had seen his wife last on Friday morning when he left his home to go to work. He said his wife had intended to go shopping. He did not know of her acquaintance with Greenberg.

SEVEN HURT IN AUTO SPILL.

Machine Turns Turtle on Home Trip from Camp Upton.

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Early yesterday evening an automobile containing seven persons was wrecked on the South Country Road at Brookhaven, L. I. In turning the off rear wheel slid into a ditch and the machine tumbled over twice. Those in it were thrown to the ground, and all were more or less hurt. A shoulder blade of one of them was broken and ribs of two of the others were fractured, but who those so severely injured were of the seven in the car the attending physicians were unable to name.

Dr. S. R. Corwith of Bellport and Dr. W. H. Roe of Patchogue did everything to relieve the injured persons and assisted them to a train for Manhattan. The party was returning from a trip to Camp Upton. The occupants of the automobile were Edward De Rasy, owner of the car; and his son of 507 West 136th Street; Louis Gompers, Louis and John Frank, Moe Cohn, and John Diament.

TELEPHONE EARNINGS GROW

Increase of 7 Per Cent. on Stock in Nine Months.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company received during the nine months ended on Sept. 30, $21,140,936 in dividends from stocks owned in subsidiary companies, a gain of $1,244,548 over the same period last year. Income from other sources brought the total up to $42,338,383, a gain of $4,664,357. The balance available for dividends was $36,876,111, an increase of $3,381,705 and the equivalent of more than 7 per cent. on the outstanding stock.

The report issued yesterday contained a statement of earnings of the Bell Telephone system for eight months ended Aug. 31. Total operating revenues were $164,327,712, an increase of $22,729,222 over the corresponding eight months the year before. The net revenue was $60,817,449, against $38,040,071.

DUPONT DEFENDANTS LOOK FOR A VICTORY

JUDGE TO PASS ON RETURNS

P. S. du Pont's Associates Claim the Support of Great Bulk of the Independents.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 13.—The first round in the "du Pont securities suit," involving the ownership of securities and cash totaling about $90,000,000, has reached the point where Pierre S. du Pont and his associates in the management of the famous powder company are declared victors. On Wednesday the stockholders of the company met to vote on the question of taking over for their own use 126,628 shares of stock with all of its accumulations of dividends which comprised the $60,000,000 in dispute.

The result of the vote at this meeting is yet to be canvassed by the trial Judge, who will receive, in a few days, a report from the special master appointed to conduct the meeting. Unofficial figures developed during the canvass of the votes show that the plaintiffs in the case hold a total of only 157,663 votes out of a possible 473,132. Of this minority the plaintiffs themselves cast 147,874 votes. Independent stockholders supported the plaintiffs with 10,000 votes, and these, according to the defendants, were cast by only 154 of the nearly 2,300 stockholders not directly affiliated with either side.

The defendants are, with few exceptions, officers engaged in the conduct of the company's affairs. The unofficial vote cast for them is 313,161. Of this number the defendants themselves cast 96,171 shares, which leaves more than 216,000 votes cast in support of them by 2,034 of the independent stockholders.

These figures are attracting unusual attention. The defendants allege that one of the strongest arguments submitted to stockholders during the canvass for proxies by the plaintiffs was that this vast sum involved in the suit could be taken over by the stockholders themselves without one cent of cost; that its acquisition would add $96 to the value of each share, and that this would put the stock on a 24 per cent. dividend basis instead of the 18 per cent. it has been drawing this year.

These contentions had the support and indorsement of the court which in its decree, declared that Pierre S. du Pont and his associates had violated their trust, and that the stockholders were entitled to take over the money.

Proponents of the defendants submitted to the independent stockholders the argument that in spite of the court's decision the business and personal records of the defendants did not justify the belief that they had willfully done wrong; that it would be poor business judgment to discredit them by a vote against them, and thus run the risk of a change in the management of the company, and that adverse action would tend to depress the company's stock to a very low level.

Less than 7 per cent. of the independent stockholders were attracted by the lure of $96 a share, according to the defendants. The latter also allege that at the recent meeting 95 per cent of the 800 stockholders in Wilmington—persons who presumably knew all the ins and outs of the du Pont family and business quarrels, voted with them. Out of the sixty-five members of the du Pont family, excluding the plaintiffs, sixty voted with the defendants.

All of the social bitterness reflected in this family vote had its reflex in attacks on the business relations of the man involved. Alfred I. du Pont was openly accused of failure to co-operate with his fellow-workers. He was removed both as Vice President and as a Director, and it was testified that his lack of co-operation extended to the extreme of trying to block plans to increase the efficiency and reward the efforts of the employes of the company on whom had fallen the great work of meeting the war demands for ammunition.

The Treasurer of the company testified on the witness stand that when the demand for labor became so great that it was advisable to pay higher wages, Alfred I. du Pont voiced his opposition to these payments and accused the management of the company of wasting money by increasing the wages of plant employes.

STRAUS WINS APPROVAL.

Medical Journal Extols Work of Milk Stations.

The following tribute to Nathan Straus appears in the current issue of the New York Medical Journal:

"There are in medicine few more brilliant examples of cause and effect than in the instance of pasteurisation of milk and the reduction of the infant mortality. The credit for the widespread application and popularisation of the fact of bacterial destruction in milk is all due to the efforts of Nathan Straus. Somehow there seems to be more in this achievement than philanthropy in its usual connotation. A great, broad humanitarianism directed toward that tenderest form of life, the young baby, must have actuated the undertaking. This, to our mind, is the greatest type of real philanthropy: to take the science of the laboratory and to give to the people a definite, practical application by which they may insure the lives of the new generation.

"The great war emergency is about to take a heavy toll of the present generation; but in the midst of the horror and destruction all minds turn to the future of peace and security which the results of this war must guarantee. The new lives must be more and more jealously guarded. Long live Nathan Straus and the spirit he embodies, and may his milk stations, saving and building up lives, increase!"

Home for Blind Recommended.

The year book of the New York section of the Council of Jewish Women gives an account of the many activities of the nation during the last twelve months. These include helping immigrants, religion classes to counteract work of Gentile missionaries, visiting penal and correctional institutions, and the maintenance of a Jewish home for women and girls discharged therefrom. More than 900 immigrant girls were cared for. The need of an institutional home for all Jewish blind is recommended. A scholarship fund was established for the maintenance of Jewish girls, without which the report states, continuation in school would be impossible.

Make One Operation of It

The Postmaster-General says that Christmas gifts for our boys in France must be mailed not later than November 15th to reach the army on time. When you come to Lambert's for a wrist watch or other gift for your friend in khaki, why not buy all your Christmas jewelry at the same time and place? Thus you spare yourself effort, and save time and money.

Diamonds, for instance. Yes, prices of beautiful, perfectly cut diamonds are up and are going higher. If we got our supplies through middlemen and had to hand out a big fat check for rent every month, prices of Diamonds would go up like a rocket here, too.

But, as it is, our direct importation of a large and carefully chosen assemblage of Diamonds before the latest elevation of prices, saves some of your money whether you buy a for any price between $10.00 and $1500.00, or any other work of art in Diamond Jewelry.

Another Christmas hint: We remount diamonds. We take old diamond jewelry, long out of fashion, possibly out of repair, and transform it in our own factory into a handsome and appropriate Christmas gift, to which the associations with the gems give a strong, sentimental value. Charges reasonable.

Just a mention of the seamless Solid Gold Wedding Rings that have borne our initials since 1877. We guarantee every one. $3.50 up. Engraving with our compliments.

FEDERAL OFFICIALS AFTER MILK DEALERS

Attorney General of Illinois Turns Over Evidence of Plot to Boost Prices.

PLANNED A BOYCOTT

Also Said to Have Raised $5,000 to Place a Man on the Hoover Price-Fixing Commission.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Evidence to prove a nation-wide plot by milk producers to raise the price of that commodity was presented to Federal authorities here today by Attorney General Brundage of Illinois.

Ramifications of this alleged conspiracy, as indicated in Mr. Brundage's evidence, included the raising of a fund of $5,000 to place a man friendly to the Dairymen's International League on the Hoover Commission formed to fix a just price for milk. This was said to have been done in Utica, N. Y., last July.

The evidence also showed an effort on the part of dairymen to see President Wilson on the price-fixing issue and to [illegible] dealers in Pittsburgh and elsewhere who refused to enter the price-fixing agreement. The efforts to see President Wilson failed.

Mr. Perrigo, assistant to Robert Cantrall, Special United States Attorney [illegible] made the demand for the evidence upon Mr. Brundage, after learning that the documents in the latter's possession were of a more conclusive nature than any collected by State's Attorney Hayne and other officials, who are seeking indictments against local milk producers. Mr. Perrigo asked for the letter which told of the $5,000 appropriation.

It was said to have been written to J. J. Mitts, Secretary of the Milk Producers' Association, Chicago district, and related to the placing of a "friend" on the Hoover Committee. Mr. Kittle is said to have replied that he deemed such action indiscreet and evidently no further move in that direction was taken.

The evidence at hand is said to show that the October price of milk in Chicago—11 cents—was the aftermath of a meeting of milk producers held here Sept. 21 last. Mr. Kittle's notice to the President of the association regarding this meeting says: "The months of November, December, January, February, and March are to be adjusted later."

ECONOMY IN WHEAT NEEDED

Only 11.8 Per Cent. of Crop Will Be Left for Allies Otherwise.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Of this year's wheat crop only 77,696,000 bushels, or about 11.8 per cent., will be left for export to the Allies and neutrals after the requirements of the United States are filled, unless Americans heed the call of the food administration and curtail their consumption.

Experts of the Bureau of Crop Estimates in calculating this year's theoretical wheat surplus have placed the consumption at 10 per cent. less than the normal of 5.3 bushels, as this year's conditions resemble those of 1916, when the apparent per capita consumption was about 4.75 bushels. For the estimated population of the country—103,385,000—the requirement on that basis is 494,8 0,000 bushels. Seed requirements they estimate at 87,271,000 bushels.

This year's wheat crop, from the preliminary estimates, is 659,797,000 bushels and the total requirements of the United States are placed at 582,101,000 bushels, leaving 77,696,000 bushels surplus.

Food administration officials figure the allied countries will have a deficiency of more than 465,000,000 bushels of wheat, basing their estimate on normal requirements. Although they are rigorously administering and economizing their food, the situation in wheat, according to the food administration, is one of great difficulty and concern. Canada, figures available here show, will have a possible surplus of 120,000,000 bushels, and that added to the surplus of the United States will make fewer than 200,000,000 bushels.

AID FOR STRANDED JEWS.

Money Sent to Yokohama for Russian Refugees.

In order to relieve the destitution of hundreds of Jews who are stranded in Yokohoma, the Hebrew Shelter ng and Immigrant Aid Society announ d yesterday it has forwarded to B. M Fleisher, publisher of the Japan Advertiser of Yokohama, $3,000 with which to lease a suitable building for an immigrant station, and that it will shortly send to the Far East a representative to superintend the caring for those in need. Ever since the war made it almost impossible for immigrants to leave Russia by way of European ports hundreds of women and children and a few aged men have been trying to get to their relatives and friends in this country and they have been coming by way of China and Japan. Some have come through, but a majority have been unable to continue their journey.

Secretary of State Lansing notified the Immigrant Aid Society that these Jews are in a deplorable condition. The investigation made by the United States Consul at Yokohama, showed that many of them have been exploited, and that they have been left absolutely without means.

The following letter has been received by Mr. Lansing:

"One man, 156 women, and 170 children, Jewish refugees, are in this port awaiting transportation to the United States in order to rejoin relatives. They are poorly fed, quarters crowded, and unsanitary. Exploit cases in the matter of the exchange of moneys, purchasing transportation, and hotel accommodations, have occurred among them. No white slave cases authenticated. More than 2,000 immigrants en route to Yokohama are held in Harbin lacking accommodation. * * * The number arriving is increasing steadily, at the present moment exceeding steerage accommodations on all steamers plying to North America."

Advices received by the Immigrant Aid Society show that the need is urgent and that already the charitable inclined in Yokohama have been heavily taxed to keep these hundreds of women and children from actual starvation. In the latter city 109 persons were found living in nine rooms in a house in a squalid neighborhood. In a Chinatown house the investigators found twelve persons living in a small room. In another were crowded a mother and her six children.

LA FOLLETTE'S ACTS SHOCKING TO TAFT

Ex-President Condemns Senator's Assumption That Our Rights at Sea Are 'Technical.'

A DETESTABLE ATTITUDE

Taken by Those Who Are Traitors to America to Please Pro-Germans—Speaks for Liberty Loan.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Forces, both in and out of Congress, working for a premature peace were attacked by William H. Taft, President of the League to Enforce Peace, in a speech delivered here tonight under the auspices of the Liberty Loan Committee.

"While we may sympathize with the sorrowful feelings of our loyal fellow-citizens of German antecedents," said Mr. Taft, "how detestable is the attitude of those with no such traditional and family ties, who because of the supposed pro-German sympathies of their constituencies conduct themselves in both houses of Congress and in newspaper columns so as to delay and obstruct as far as possible our government in its conduct of the war against Germany. It may be that they are able, under our careful guarding of individual rights of free speech, to escape penalties for what is in spirit treason, but let us hope that they will remain embalmed forever in the just contempt of the American people.

"Senator La Follette," said Mr. Taft, speaking of Germany's unrestricted submarine warfare, "says that while our citizens had the right to go upon commercial vessels carrying supplies to the Allies, it was only a technical right, and one that we might well waive rather than go to war. Was the right of those innocent 11 American men, women, and children, sent to their death without warning on the Lusitania, to life and safety only a 'technical' right? It shocks one's deepest feelings to think that a Senator in the Congress of the United States could use words of such an import.

"Those citizens had a right to be where they were and a right to life and safety. Senator La Follette ignores the humiliation, the dishonor, and the lasting injury to our national influence of yielding the rights of our citizens, or of withholding protection from them in the pursuit of their lawful trades on the high sea at the dictation of a military power like Germany, because of a fear of that power."

Mr. Taft described the rise of German militarism, and declared that Germany "is seeking a peace that will rescue her Hohenzollern dynasty, her military autocracy, her Prussian Army régime from revolutionary destruction, so that she may rehabilitate her great machine of force and strike again when better opportunity offers.

"Not until the German military caste is defeated," continued Mr. Taft, "not until the Emperor as the head of that caste is brought to his knees by force, will the Imperial German people be made aware of the hideous error in their policy. When they see that all their heroic efforts are in vain, that they have not conquered the world, that they have staked all on military efficiency and lost, they must and will visit their resentment upon their present form of government. Then that structure, with the Emperor at the head, and the supremacy of the army as the chief end of the State, will come tumbling down into some other form of government, and they will cease to be the Imperial German people. Then will they cease to be a menace and an obstruction to the peace of the world. This is the object for which we are fighting. We are vitally concerned in its attainment."

In his direct appeal for the support of the Liberty Loan, Mr. Taft said:

"Our country is fighting for our life as an independent nation and for the independence of other nations. It is struggling for the peace of the world. And now we are called upon to give it the means of fighting this war through. This Liberty Loan does not ask for a real sacrifice from anybody. It asks the wage earners, the men on salary, the men of moderate means, the man of wealth, to invest in a bond of the Government which pays a good interest, free from taxes, and which will be a source of income."

Mr. Taft's address was the first of several he will deliver in different parts of the country on behalf of the second Liberty Loan. In addition to his personal services, he has placed at the disposal of the National Liberty Loan Committee the resources of the League to Enforce Peace branch organizations in every State.

DANIELS HOPES WAR WILL REVIVE ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—In a speech in behalf of the Second Liberty Loan, delivered at the gun factory at the Washington Navy Yard today, before the thousands of men making guns for the navy, Secretary Daniels emphasized the importance of every American doing his full share in the war, even if it involved heavy sacrifices.

"There can be no real compensation for the tragedy of war," said Secretary Daniels. "But if we are wise we may learn the virtues of economy and saving which characterized our fathers, but which our generation has regarded as too old fashioned for us.

"I hope we shall never return to the period of low wages and cheap agricultural products, but we ought to return to the days of high thinking and plain living, putting aside every week for a rainy day some portion of our earnings. If the war should convert this Republic from its lavishness in expenditure and its wanton extravagance, that would at least palliate some of its ills.

"Patriotism is an incentive to saving today. A million boys have been withdrawn from gainful occupations, and have heeded the call to the colors. We who remain at home should increase production to make up the loss caused by their response. We are under the compulsion of good citizenship to see that they are supplied with food and clothes.

"There are enough men of wealth to subscribe to all the bonds issued. In former times bond issues were taken almost exclusively by men of wealth. It was a happy thought, inspired by faith in the people, that caused Secretary McAdoo to make an appeal to all the people to become financial partners in the great enterprise of this war for enduring peace by investing a portion of their earnings in Liberty bonds. Their response to the first issue showed there is no class in America, but that men with much and men with little are ready alike to say to the President: 'We are behind you to the last man and the last dollar.' That is the only way to hasten peace—let the enemies of democracy know that everything (life and property alike) is laid upon the altar of sacrifice.

"It is no credit to a man to do something for his country that he does not feel. It is a noble thing to see our brave young men go from home and business, knowing that death on the field of battle may be their portion. Men give not only all they have but all they hope to be. What about us at home? No matter how we toil, we have the comforts and the blessings of home, no matter how humble. Can we look the soldier boys in the face unless we are willing to follow their example and make some sacrifice for the cause?

"I would love to see every employe in the Washington gun factory own at least one bond. It is the patriotic thing to do, but it is good business, also. A Government 4 per cent. bond is the best security in the world, as sound as any gold of Ophir, and the man who makes sacrifice to buy a bond is helping his country, and at the same time is helping himself."

SLAYER KILLS WIFE WITH POLICE NEARBY

Forced Her to Accompany Him to Barricaded House, Where He Tried to Resist Arrest.

KILLED HER PROTECTORS

And Escaped to Massachusetts Woods, from Which He Was Driven by Cold and Hunger.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 13.—Fred Gallerani, sought since the murder early Thursday morning of Clement Martini and his daughter, Della Gallerani, in their home in West Springfield, was captured this afternoon in a house in Feeding Hills, several miles west of this city, after a running gun fight with a posse of police and civilians, and after he had killed his wife, Armella Gallerani, and been wounded or attempted suicide himself.

Gallerani, it was learned, after the capture, had been in the woods since the murder Thursday, and only this afternoon took refuge in a small house occupied by his wife's parents and her brother. With him was his wife, whom he had forcibly removed from the Martini home, after the murders. He was forced by cold and hunger to forsake the woods, and soon after he reached the house a small party of searchers arrived. Mrs. Gallerani's parents and brother ran from the house when the officers appeared, but Gallerani refused to leave, and compelled his wife to remain.

Reinforcements were sent for, and Chief of Police Edward Bromage brought up a party of twenty or more, composed of police officers and Home Defense members, who surrounded the house. Taking cover behind trees and telegraph poles, the party opened fire on the house, quickly riddling the windows, while Gallerani returned the fire, firing perhaps a dozen shots in all, none of which took effect.

After the fire had been continued for some time the besiegers made a rush and kicked in the door.

Gallerani's wife lay dead on the floor of the sitting room with a bullet wound between the eyes, while Gallerani was helpless from a wound in the temple. Whether he had shot his wife when the attack began, or only when it became evident that he would be captured, is not known. The police believe that the murderer attempted to take his own life at the last, for just before the rush two shots were heard that did not seem to be directed out of the house. Gallerani's wound is not serious, and he was brought to a hospital here.

Mrs. Gallerani evidently was aware of the fate that awaited her at her husband's hands, for she had left a letter in her bedroom bidding good-bye to her two children who were in a local institution.

Gallerani is 26 years of age, and his dead wife was about the same age. Owing to domestic discord she had separated from him some time ago and made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Clement Martini, who were distant relatives. Gallerani, accompanied, it is believed, by another man and with an automobile, went to the Martini house about 1 o'clock Thursday morning and after forcing entrance shot and instantly killed Martini, fatally wounded Mrs. Della Gallerani, and seriously wounded Mrs. Martini. He then spirited away his wife.

GETS CANADA RIFLES FOR BOYS' TRAINING

Adjutant General Buys 10,000 to Equip Youths Who Come Under Slater Law.

INSTRUCTION IN ARMORIES

Boys Between Ages of 16 and 18 in Public and Private Schools Must Undergo Military Drills.

Charles H. Sherrill, Adjutant General, has made arrangements to purchase 10,000 rifles from the Canadian Government as a start toward the equipment necessary to put into effect the Slater law, which provides compulsory military service for the State of New York.

The first steps toward the enforcement of the Slater law in this city have been taken under Major L. M. Greer, Supervisor of the Military District, including Manhattan and the Bronx. Lack of weapons, the difficulty in obtaining competent instructors, and other obstacles incident to the work of training practically every youth in the State to be a soldier, have made it impossible to call out all affected by the Slater law.

Under this law, which became operative with the present school term, every boy between the ages of 16 and 18, with the exception of those who are earning their own living, must undergo military drill. This applies to all boys in public and private schools of this age.

When the difficulties in connection with the work of introducing a vast and complicated military system into the schools of the State are overcome, New York State will have in its schools a standing army more than twice as large as that which England possessed before the war, and about four times as large as the regular army of the United States was at the beginning of the present year.

According to calculations of the board, which has charge of the introduction of the new system, there are about 300,000 boys in the State who will be compelled to take military instruction under this law.

Major Dreer last week began the enforcement of the law with the pupils of De Witt Clinton High School, the High School of Commerce, the Stuyvesant High School, the College of the City of New York, and other educational institutions in this city. Military instruction was given to 7,000 students in Manhattan in the armories of the Twelfth Regiment, Twenty-second Engineers, Sixty-ninth and Ninth Infantry, and the Second Field Artillery.

Notice has been sent to private schools attended by boys of military training age to appear on Friday at 4 o'clock at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory for drilling. There are more than 40,000 youths in Manhattan and the Bronx, who will be required to drill for one day a week when arrangements and equipment have been provided.

At present, the armories have been entirely depleted of army rifles and of most other equipment, so that the drills so far have taken place without arms and have been in the rudiments of soldier training. This period of instruction will last several weeks before equipment with rifles is necessary.

The new rifles which have been purchased are said to be those which were used by the first Canadian contingents in France and in some of the greatest battles of the war.

Several thousand schoolboys of military tarining age were called out for military training in Brooklyn and other parts of Long Island yesterday by Major Elliott Bigelow, Supervisor of the military training in Brooklyn and its environs. Major Greer has six assistant instructors and more will be required when the work gets in full swing. All of the available armories in this city will be required for the military training of boys of high school age. Major Bigelow also has several assistants. Both commanders are in need of drill sergeants and large staffs of military instructors will be required before the Slater law is completely applied.

The State has been divided into six geographical divisions for the application of the new law. Colonel William A. Chapin, who has been appointed to have full charge of the introduction of the law in the State, is now at Buffalo supervising the military training preparations there and will continue on a tour of the State until school military instruction has been thoroughly organized in all parts.

WOULD END SHORT SELLING.

Untermyer Urges That Otherwise the Stock Exchange Be Closed.

Samuel Untermyer issued a statement yesterday regarding the low prices of stocks, in which he said that short selling should be stopped or some drastic step should be taken.

"Perhaps the wisest and most effective action," he said, "would be to close the Exchange and declare a moratorium for six months of all Stock Exchange transactions and all loans by members on Stock Exchange collateral. The country experienced no great discomfort when the Exchange was last closed."

Mr. Untermyer urged that if the closing of the Exchange was not feasible some way must at least be found to put an end to short selling.

MRS. W. J. BRYAN SPEAKS.

Mrs. William Jennings Bryan spoke in support of woman suffrage at two meetings on the east side last night. At Grand and Pitt Streets she talked to about 300 persons at an open-air meeting held by the suffrage organizations of the First Assembly District, and then went to the Neighborhood Playhouse, at 466 Grand Street, where she spoke again to about 500 persons. Mrs. Bryan talked only a few minutes at both places because her voice failed to reach those on the outskirts of the crowd, and other speakers on the program took her place.

She told of the progress of suffrage in Western States and said the votes of women had instituted many reforms there. She said she believed that two votes in every home would increase happiness by increasing comradeship and by tending to put man and woman on the same intellectual plane. She said she thought the vote for women would decrease the amount of gossip in many homes because politics and plans for reform would leave little time for talk about neighbors.

Mrs. Bryan will be the guest of Miss Lillian Wald at the Henry Street Settlement during her stay here. She will attend other suffrage meetings under the auspices of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party.

SHIFT IN BANK DEPOSITS.

State Institutions Show Effect of Government Financing.

ALBANY, Oct. 13.—The State banks of deposit and discount had total resources of $826,780,206 on Sept. 8, according to reports filed with State Supt. of Banks George I. Skinner. This total showed a decline of $71,805,400 from the figure brought out by the last preceding bank call on June 20. In the same period deposits declined $90,903,650, with a total on Sept. 8 amounting to $715,773,865.

The reduction in the aggregate resources of the banks was accounted for in part by the fact that one State bank with $17,000,000 of resources joined the national banking system subsequent to the call in June. The shifting of bank deposits incidental to the tremendous Government financing from June to September presumably was an important factor in lowering the total of such deposits in State institutions. Payments made on the first Liberty Loan transferred funds from bank accounts to the Federal coffers.

Loans and discounts secured by collateral other than bond, mortgage, or other security vested in real estate were held by the banks on Sept. 8 to a total of $162,059,218, against $175,517,661 on June 20. The amount due from trust companies, banks, and bankers was $105,392,137 on Sept. 8, an increase of more than $12,800,000. Cash totaled $85,635,228, a decline of approximately $68,500,000.

OFFICERS TO MERCHANTMEN

Thirty officers for the merchant marine were graduated from the New York State Nautical School yesterday, and formal exercises were held on the deck of the school ship Newport, at the foot of West 129th Street. It was announced that many of the graduates were to go to work immediately on ships in the coastwise service, as well as vessels in the transatlantic service. Speakers at the exercises declared that sailors would be of the greatest benefit toward the success of the war, and urged the graduates to board ships immediately.

Several medals were awarded for excellence in the deck and engineer departments. The prizes were given by the National Board of Steam Navigation.

Of the thirty officers graduated yesterday six have been engaged by the International Mercantile Marine as junior officers for the American Line ships at $75 a month; four more are to go to the Panama Line at the same wages, and the remainder have been engaged by the Old Dominion, Clyde, Mallory, Ward, and other steamship companies sailing out of New York and Boston. The salaries paid now to junior officers in the merchant marine are 100 per cent. higher than they were ten years ago, and with the great increase of the American merchant marine there is every opportunity for a man to rise to command before he is 35 years old. In addition to their wages the officers in the Atlantic trade receive a bonus of from 25 to 50 per cent. for every voyage.

BORDEN MINISTRY SECURE.

Premier Strengthened by Adding Carvell and Murray to Cabinet.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 13.—Success for Union Government under Premier Borden was assured today when F. B. Carvell of New Brunswick took office as Minister of Public Works, and Premier George Murray of Nova Scotia consented to become Secretary of State. Mr. Carvell has been the most active and effective opponent of the Conservative Government. His attitude was more feared than that of any other single member of the opposition. He supported compulsory military service, and broke with his leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, upon that issue.

Mr. Murray never has been in federal politics, but has shown great strength in his own province, and recently was returned with a great majority of followers in a general provincial election. When Mr. Murray takes office the formation of the new government will have been completed.

Colonel C. C. Ballantyne, whom Mr. Carvell succeeds, became Minister of Marine and Fisheries, the portfolio vacated by J. D. Hazen.

CATSKILL AQUEDUCT CELEBRATION CLOSES

Engineer Tells How Great Tube Was Driven Through Rock to Supply City Water.

Exercises attending the opening of the new Catskill Aqueduct to furnish water for the city were ended last night in the auditorium at the City College when Albert W. Flynn, Deputy Chief Engineer of the Board of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity, gave a lecture upon the engineering of the work from its beginning. Pictures of the construction at different stages were shown, and Mr. Flynn also gave the figures on the cost of the aqueduct and explained the great engineering difficulties encountered in carrying the tunnel at its greatest depths through the solid rock under Manhattan Island.

Several of the student organizations turned out for the close of the aqueduct exercises, as did the Faculties and about 300 guests. Mayor Mitchel and other city officials who aided in the work of directing the construction and in financing it were unable to be present, but several members of the active engineering staff came to hear expert judgment on their work. The exercises were begun in Central Park on Friday, when the water was formally turned through the new system.

No Queens Mayoralty Indorsement.

Members of the Queens County Republican Club did not discuss the indorsement of a candidate in the Mayoralty contest at their meeting in the Richmond Hill Republican Club last night, and it was said that no action would be taken. They said the only question discussed was the selection of a candidate for State Senator, and that it was decided that Frederick Baumann of Woodhaven should be the candidate.

HOW OUR DOCTORS CAN HELP HOOVER

They Are Urged as Patriots to Put the Nation on a War-Ration Basis.

VALUE TO HEALTH PROVED

Restricted Diet, Enforced by War, Has Reduced the Death Rates of Belgium, England, and Germany.

Charles O'Brien of New York, author of "Food Preparedness for the United States," suggests that the physicians of this country aid Herbert Hoover in his tremendous task by rationing the nation in much the same manner as if the entire population were under medical treatment. Writing in the current issue of Medicine and Surgery, he says:

"Here is a hint on how to help win the war. It is based on a study at first hand by me of war food economics as developed in the present European struggle, coupled with a lively realization of the meaning and the menace of the German submarine campaign. Torpedoes are being sent against food cargoes. The aim is to starve out the Allies before we can become of weight in a military way. The suggestion here given is one designed to help Herbert Hoover in his task of conserving the food supply. Upon him rests the burden of offsetting the German program. His responsibility is gigantic. He deserves every ounce of assistance possible in any individual's power.

"My hint to you, doctor, is that the food economies practiced in the war, particularly those by Germany herself, indicate that vast savings can be made here by cutting down the ration of the individual, and that the result is beneficial to health rather than otherwise. We cannot have in this country any system of rationing such as has been applied in Germany. It would seem preposterous to propose it. But we can simulate it. At least the practicing physician can. He is about the only person we Americans will listen to in such matters. He commonly puts us on a diet when we get sick. He knows the value thereof, and he knows the heavy penalties of overfeeding and its train of ills. He is, therefore, in a unique position to be a leader in food conservation in this crisis.

"If individually and as a whole, through their medical associations, the physicians of the country would realize their opportunity and take every possible occasion to advise their patients to reduce their food intake, the saving in the aggregate would be tremendous. It is a matter it would seem, that is worthy of being taken up officially by the various medical organizations with a view of securing concerted action.

"There is no space here to enter into a full discussion of what has been done abroad. But a few facts will suggest a line of thought.

"According to Dr. M. Hindhede of Copenhagen, one of the greatest nutrition experts in the world, the death rate among German men before the war had risen to 18.2 a thousand per annum. He attributes this largely to the fact that in the preceding fifty years the German had become the world's champion meat eater. Dr. Hindhede believes that 10 per cent. of protein is sufficient, and he is a believer in fewer calories than prescribed in the old standards.

"In the war the death rate in Berlin last Fall had fallen to 12. London, even before she adopted rationing, and while still under the mere restriction of high prices, had achieved a like result. In Belgium, while it was still under the efficient management of the American Relief Commission, the astoundingly low rate of 8 was attained. And according to Horace Fletcher, food economist, who, as a member of the commission, was partly instrumental in the adoption of the food prescription in force in Belgium, the common diseases of civilization were all but eliminated. Compare the above with the death rate in New York City before the war, 14.5, claimed as a world's record.

"Germany has received much help from her neutral neighbors. Pressure is being brought to bear to cut this off. She will doubtless suffer as a result. And Belgium will suffer still more. The supply may drop below the point of subsistence. But to date, through three years of war, we have been shown that a nation can live on a highly restricted diet, perhaps but a half of what was formerly consumed, and benefit in health thereby.

"Except in cases where there is danger from under-nutrition, it would seem plain that the American doctor from patriotic motives should seize the opportunity of leading the nation to what might be called a war ration basis."

GIANTS COLLAPSE IN LATE INNINGS AND DROP FIFTH WORLD'S SERIES CONTEST TO WHITE SOX

SOX SMASH WAY TO LATE VICTORY

game, each of them making three hits, while Benny Kauff had answered the storm of Chicago jeers with a couple of solid drives.

No Respect for Sallee.

The Sox had stormed Sallee for thirteen hits before McGraw decided to yank him out. It was these thirteen hits on the thirteenth day of October which spelled the Giants' downfall.

After the two victories in New York the Giants took the field this afternoon full of ginger and snap. When they leaped into an early lead and found the Sox erratic and disorganized, their confidence knew no bounds and McGraw seemed to have the notion that the Giants couldn't lose no matter how hard these Sox pummeled Sallee.

That Chicago was not pleased with the behavior of the White Sox on their recent visit to New York was shown by the falling off in the attendance at today's game. There were blocks of empty seats in the bleachers, and only a few fans braved the cold night to stand in line for the opening of the gates early this morning. The small line kept warm by building bonfires, but when it was discovered that the fuel was coming from a neighboring lumberyard the police put out the fires, and the fans had to shiver.

The fan who held the place of honor at the head of the line when the bleacher gates opened was Albert Brosuis, who came from Oshkosh, Wis. He took up his place at the gate at 10 o'clock last night and was the first man inside today. By noontime all the rush seats had been taken, and only those who were fortunate enough to get places in the sun were comfortable. As soon as the band arrived the crowd was happy, for the fans hugged each other and danced the fox trot to keep warm.

There were more New Yorkers here than at the two previous games on the local grounds. C. K. G. Billings, the horseman, was here, and also a number of other personages who are seen along Broadway. One of the most enthusiastic spectators was Wallace McCutcheon, who was a stage dancer on his last visit to Chicago. Since then McCutcheon has been serving at the front and is now an officer in the British Army. He was wounded in Flanders and is on a furlough.

Sallee Selected at Last Minute.

Manager McGraw seemed to be in doubt right up to the last minute about his choice of pitchers. Perritt, Schupp, and Sallee all warmed up before the game, and, in spite of the cold weather, he picked Sallee. Russell seemed to have a world of speed when he was warming up, and Rowland consented to give Reb the chance he has been looking for.

Russell was as wild as a hawk at the start, and walked Burns on four straight balls. As good a judge as Christy Mathewson, one time New York hero, later manager of the Reds, and just now employed in penning deathless lines for the newspapers, observed that Russell seemed to think that the plate was somewhere near the Giants bench.

The Chicago fans suspected that the worst was going to happen when Herzog's crack to right pushed Burns to third. This suspicion took the form of certainty and groans, when Benny Kauff jammed the first ball Russell served to right field for two bases, sending Burns home and landing Herzie at third. After Kauff's big thump, Rowland, the White Sox leader, rushed from the bench waving his arms as if he was trying to flag a freight train. Russell seemed to understand what he meant and he took the shortest route for the dugout.

Williams and Danforth were both warming up in left field, but suddenly Cicotte jumped into view and went out to take up the pitching burden.

More Boos for Zimmerman.

A roar of jeers greeted Zim as he tapped a roller to Weaver and Herzog was run down by Schalk, and the Chicago joy burst all bounds when Fletcher rolled to McMullin and Kauff was out trying to score. At the beginning of the game McGraw had sent Indian Jim Thorpe to right field, as he relied on Jim to hit better than Robertson against Russell, a left-handed pitcher. However, when Cicotte came in Robertson took his place at the bat, cracked a single to centre, and sent Zimmerman home.

Sallee got a bad start in the Sox half of the first, and he was lucky when he pitched himself out of an excavation which was as deep as a well. With the bases jammed and two out, Gandil hoisted a pop fly to Holke, and Sal was saved for the time being. Sallee had hard trouble in finding the plate. It was evident that the cold weather was interfering seriously with his flinging.

Eddie Collins craftily waited Sallee out in the third and his patience was rewarded with a pass. Joe Jackson poled a fly to Robertson and Hap Felsch, who broke up the first game Sallee pitched here, almost repeated his home run drive. He crashed a double to left in exactly the same path as his homer of last Saturday. The ball, however, didn't have the carry, and bounded away from the screen in front of the bleachers. Collins raced home on the bang.

The White Sox gave a weird exhibition of baseball in the fourth. Bill Rariden called the meeting to order with a single to right and Sallee unselfishly laid down a sacrifice. A one-base prod to right sent Rariden over the plate, and when Shano Collins juggled the ball Burns went to second. Herzog rolled an easy one to Weaver, who booted the ball around in a manner which prompted many to suggest that Buck get a basket. Kauff bounded an easy hopper to Gandil, who made a miserable relay to Cicotte, covering the bag, and Burns scored. McMullin halted the Giants' march when he gathered in Zim's grasser and chucked to second, forcing Kauff, while Eddie Collins had the ball over to Gandil in a jiffy for a double play.

Hits Fly Thick and Fast.

Sallee began to slip, and in the sixth the crowd hooted and yelled, but Sal is such an old stager at the game that it was not the jeering that started him on the downward path. With one gone Buck Weaver smacked a single to left and went to third when Ray Schalk poled a hit to right. Here Rowland called on Risberg as a pinch hitter. The Swede is only an ordinary batsman and the Giants held him in no high esteem. Weren't they three runs ahead and did any one ever accuse Risberg of being a hitter? He wasn't good enough to be in the lineup for the series, was he? Why should Sal be afraid of him?

Risberg gave Sallee, McGraw, and the other Giants an awful shock. He hit the ball, yes, and he hit it for a single to right field and Weaver scored. The Sox didn't do anything more that inning, but they suddenly became imbued with a lot of courage, and when they came up in the seventh they started on Sallee just where Risberg had left off.

Claude Williams, another of the Sox erratic lefthanders, pitched in the seventh. Fletcher greeted him with a two-base smash to left, and when Robertson tried to bunt, and sent a little pop fly Williams's way, the southpaw fell all over himself in trying to make the catch and muffed the ball. Williams got his twists working while Holke was at bat, and they were working so well that one carromed off Holke's bat as he was trying to duck an inshoot and hit the Giants' first baseman in the head, dropping him in his tracks. After Holke had seen all the stars known to astronomy, he bravely stepped up again and the Chicago crowd joined the New York fans and applauded the bat-man. After that Holke struck out. Rariden pumped his third hit of the afternoon to right, and Fletcher scored. Williams then fanned Sallee and Burns, and became the target of Chicago's unrestrained vocal admiration.

Giants Still Confident.

The Giants now had the game 5 to 2, and the word worry wasn't in their dictionary. As they regarded the situation, the Sox were trimmed, and were trimmed right. In their rosy dream of victory, they never thought for a moment that there was any kick left in Rowland's men. If they had only known what the Sox had in reserve; if they only hadn't been so all-fired sure of themselves, this seventh-inning calamity which is about to break might never have happened.

Edward Trowbridge Collins, the first of the Sox to face Sallee in the seventh, was soft picking, and hoisted a rocket to Fletcher. Easy Joe Jackson jammed a single to left, and so did Felsch, and then the crowd cut loose and kept it up from that time until the end of the game. The Giants couldn't hear themselves think. The roaring cheers of the crowd hammered against their ears from that time on. The storm broke in all its fury, and the first thing that the Giants knew they did not know anything whatever.

Chick Gandil, slapping a singing double over Dave Robertson's roof, in right, furnished the power which propelled Jackson and Felsch over the plate. Then, in the midst of all the storm and confusion, Weaver went out at first, Gandil going to third. Ray Schalk waited for a pass and Byrd Lynn was rushed in as a pinch hitter for Williams.

Giants Going Further Up!

The dark object now flitting athwart the rays of the setting sun is the New York ball club going cloudward. Schalk and Gandil started a double steal. Rariden made a bluff throw to second to head off Schalk, but instead threw to Sallee. Sal saw Schalk continuing his flight to second so he soaked the ball back to Herzog. Herzog was full of holes at that moment and the ball rolled merrily out toward centre field. Fletcher raced back to get the truant ball, and in the meantime Gandil was hurrying over the plate with the tieing run. Fletcher made a poor throw to the plate and Schalk went to third.

The score was tied at 5 to 5 and the Giants were groggy. Lynn was all fussed up in the commotion and struck out.

Faber started to pitch in the eighth, and he burnt them over so fast that the Giants couldn't see the ball in the fading twilight. Being accustomed, however, to the Chicago atmosphere, the Sox had no trouble in seeing the shoots that were served to them in the next inning. One would have thought that after the lacing that Sallee received in the seventh he would call it a day and vamoose. But McGraw sent Sallee back to the firing line. It was just like leading a turkey up to the chopping block the day before Thanksgiving.

Riotous Chicago had never before been quite as riotous as it was then. The White Sox players were doing an Indian war dance in front of their bench, throwing blankets and bats and gloves and balls up into the air. The people in the stands were all up on their feet waving hats and White Sox pennants. Out in the bleachers, boys and men had to be restrained from jumping onto the field.

Sallee Gets Royal Welcome.

The Sox were never so glad in their lives to see any one as they were to see Slim Sallee. They expected that McGraw would at least honor them with Pol Perritt, who had pitched two or three games during the long time he was warming up in right field. They figured that Perritt would be just as tired as Sallee was, but when they looked up and saw that Sallee was still on the job, their joy knew no bounds.

John Collins walked up to the bat in the eighth wearing a sort of half-ashamed expression. He seemed to say to himself, "Oh, what a pity to do what we are going to do to this poor thing." Shano smacked a single to right and McMullin pushed him along one station with a sacrifice. Did McGraw take Sallee out then? He did not.

Eddie Collins, the man who, McGraw admits, is the most dangerous world's series performer in the business, was at the bat, and still Sallee's Eiffel Tower figure graced the middle of the diamond. Amid thundering cheers, which rumpled all over the South Side and were carried by the breeze far out into Lake Michigan, Sallee began to pitch to Eddie Collins. Crack! The ash blistered the leather and out over second base to centre field flew the ball, while Shano Collins came tearing home with the run which broke the tie and put the Sox in the lead. The players from the Chicago bench rushed out as one man, grabbed John Collins in their clutches, and showered him with pats.

Sallee Still Pitching.

Did Sallee then perceive that he had enough? He did not. Never before was a pitcher so badly beaten without knowing it.

Joe Jackson at bat, and Sallee still in there trying to pitch. He wasn't pitching, but merely throwing the ball. Yes, and the Sox were hitting it. For ten or fifteen minutes Bill Rariden did not once get his clutches on the ball. It could not get past the White Sox bats. Every ball that poor, staggering Sallee threw was jammed back somewhere into the outfield before Rariden got a chance even to look at it.

Rariden was the acting catcher of the New York team, but for quite a stretch he was idle. Balls which it was his duty to catch were being sprayed all over the lot. Jackson ripped a single to right, and Eddie Collins raced around to third. Robertson threw the ball over to Zim to head off Collins, but Eddie was there ahead of the ball, and as Jackson was rushing toward second, Zim hurled the ball down that way to try to catch Jackson. Zimmerman had caught the fever from watching Sallee so long, and when he threw to second he threw just the way Sal had been throwing to the batters. The toss was wild and rolled out of everybody's reach, while Eddie Collins raced home.

What's this that's going on now? Sallee seems to be limping off the field. The board of strategy of the New York Club had held a hurried meeting, and by a close vote it was decided that Sallee was being hit by the White Sox and should be taken out of the game.

Finally Sallee Is Banished.

This stroke of inside ball was made only after the Giants' scouts and coachers had come to the conclusion that the Higginsport Sheriff couldn't last the game out. The wigwag system worked first rate, and every hit made off Sallee was duly reported to the New York bench. They looked up a book on how to play the game, and ran across a paragraph which said that when a pitcher is being hit hard it is advisable to take him out. Oh, that's different, take Sallee out, by all means.

Happy Felsch was the first to face Perritt, but, as has been chronicled before, Pol was so worn out by warming up that he didn't have much stamina left. Felsch pickled a drive to centre so hard that it almost seemed as if Sallee was still pitching. Felsch's single sent Jackson home with the last White Sox run.

Thus it was that the Sox rose in their wrath and pulled the game out of the glowing coals. Thus it was that Sallee was left in the game after he had been battered beyond recognition. But this sudden flare-up by the Sox has not scared the Giants one bit. Ask any one of them and he will tell you without hesitation that these White Sox will pay dearly for doing what they did to Sallee today. All that the Giants expect to do is to beat the Sox on Monday, and then on Tuesday they plan to spend the afternoon winning the series.

MANY THRILLS FOR FANS.

New York's ticker crowds got enough thrills yesterday to last a lifetime. Almost every conceivable emotion was observed in the many gatherings which held up the business of the greater city in every borough and stopped the drills of recruits in most of the army encampments.

When Benny Kauff spanked a double off the delivery of Reb Russell in the first inning of the game and started the Giants toward what appeared then to be certain victory, the "I-told-you-so" variety of fans gathered in groups and expounded their brilliant theories. John McGraw certainly knew what he was doing when he advised the expenditure of some $35,000 for bashful Benny, was the gist of the talkative fan.

When the Giants made the score 4 to 1 in their favor and apparently had the White Sox on the run, the enthusiasm of New York knew no bounds. Manhattan and the Bronx were alive with cheering hordes. Even though they were 1,000 miles away from the scene of activities, the fans slapped each other on the back and acted as if the Giant success thus far in the game was a personal effort crowned with glory of achievement.

"Didn't Slim Sallee stand the White Sox on their heads in the opening game until that lucky stiff, Felsch, got a luckier smash into the bleachers?" yelled the fans.

When the White Sox collected a bit of tribute in the shape of runs New York even then was not discouraged. "Slim's only playing with them. He'll buzz the ball across the plate so fast they won't be able to see it, once he gets started," again assured the confident thousands.

But in the seventh inning when Gandil and Schalk worked a double steal and Gandil crossed the plate with the run which tied the score at 5-all and put Chicago in the running for the first time during the game, New York's fans were seized with doubt.

Brooklyn, ever a rival to things Manhattan, found considerable pleasure in the uphill victory scored by Chicago. The crowd around Atlantic Avenue, which watched the contest played on a big scoreboard, was gloomy at the start, but once Chicago began to fight back with a vim which halfway promised success, Brooklyn displayed to any visitor from across the bridge who might have been in that region at that time just where the sympathies of Brooklyn lie in this affair. Every Chicago move in the last few innings was cheered to the echo by Brooklyn.

New York's fan army which was denied the pleasure of seeing the Chicago games seemed more interested yesterday than in any time during the series. Not a bulletin board or ticker but attracted suffocating crowds. Theatres again gave the news to matinée patrons and again the actors suffered in consequence.

Most of the theatre crowd was on its way home before it was made plain to them that the Giants had lost the fifth game of the series and that Chicago now led 3 games to 2 for the annual championship. Subway guards got the news by telephone and offered to each purchaser of a ride the news of the Chicago proceedings. In that way New York's army of toilers got home on time, but arrived without great enthusiasm.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The subjoined is the sad story in detail of today's short flight and disastrous fall of the Giants' airplane. For two-thirds of the alloted span of the game it soared merrily onward and upward with thousands of Chicago molars gnashing and snapping at it savagely but vainly. Then it halted, whirred, buzzed ominously, and came crashing to earth. It happened like this:

First Inning.

GIANTS—George Burns was the first recipient of Reb Russell's attentions and favors. Four wide ones in a row came up from the box and Burns jogged to first. Herzog took a ball and a called strike and then, on the hit and run play, singled to right centre, Burns getting around to third. At this early stage of the proceedings Cicotte and Williams began to warm up.

Benny Kauff, still fired by the memory of his glorious assault of Thursday on the White Sox brand of pitching, smashed Russell's first offering to the right field bleachers, scoring Burns and putting Herzog on third. Heinie Zimmerman came forth and faced Cicotte, Russell's brief and pathetic story being finished. Zim struck unavailingly at the first ball pitched. On the second essay he grounded to Weaver and the latter threw to Schalk to head off Herzog, who was run down and put out by the little White Sox catcher. Kauff moved along to third on the play.

Fletcher drove a sharp bounder to McMullin, whose throw to Schalk caught Kauff as he slid for the plate. Jim Thorpe had been listed to pay when Russell started to pitch, but against Cicotte's right handed delivery Robertson was reinstated. He took a couple of balls and then singled to centre. Zimmerman scored and Fletcher went to third and Robertson to second on the throw-in. With two strikes and a ball counted, Holke dribbled a wee grounder to Cicotte, who threw him out at first. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

WHITE SOX—John Collins popped up a fly to Zimmerman on the first ball from Sallee's port wing. McMullin got four balls with a called strike sandwiched among them, and cantered down to Holke's station. Sallee's curves were breaking badly and his control at this stage was poor. Two wide ones were sent up to Eddie Collins and then one cut the plate for a called strike. The fourth ball suited Collins to perfection and he laced it to centre for a single. McMullin was held at second by Kauff's quick return of the ball. Perritt began to warm up and continued to warm up until the game was nearly over. Joe Jackson flied out to Burns on the second ball pitched. Felsch sent a sharp grounder to Fletcher, who booted it, and the bases were full. No harm was done, however, as Holke took Gandil's pop fly with neatness and dispatch. No runs, one hit, one error.

Second Inning.

GIANTS—Cicotte's first pitch to Rariden broke low and outside the plate. On the next Rariden shot the ball past Eddie Collins for a single. Sallee bunted the first ball to Gandil, who turned and whipped it to Weaver, forcing Rariden at second. Cicotte's side-arm ball crossed over on Burns for a strike. The next broke outside. Burns let the next go by for a called strike. He then struck out on a side-arm pitch that cut the heart of the plate. Cicotte pitched the first low and outside to Herzog. On the next Herzog grounded to Weaver, who fumbled. Weaver tried for Sallee at second, but missed on a very close play. The Sox outfielders backed up as Kauff came to the plate. Benny let O'Loughlin call the first strike on him. Cicotte tried to fool Kauff with one low and inside, but the batter stepped away from the plate. The Sox pitcher tried the same thing again, and once more Kauff backed away. When the next ball came over Kauff hit to Eddie Collins and was thrown out. No runs, one hit, one error.

WHITE SOX—Sallee gave Weaver two balls and two strikes, and then the Chicago short fielder slashed a sharp liner to Fletcher, who knocked it down and got his man at first. Ray Schalk grounded out by the same route. Sallee, inspired by professional courtesy and chill digits, proffered Cicotte a base on balls, which was accepted in the same spirit in which it was offered. John Collins lifted a high one back of the plate to Rariden, who snared it. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Inning.

GIANTS—Zimmerman was greeted by the boo boo chorus. He retorted quietly but effectively by dropping a fly at the centre of a triangle of which the galloping Collins boys and Felsch formed the apex. It was a clean single. With two balls and two strikes on Fletcher, Zimmerman was caught off first by Cicotte's throw to Gandil, but Weaver dropped Gandil's toss and Zimmerman got back to first in safety. Fletcher drove a liner to McMullin on the next ball pitched, and Zim was doubled off first. Robertson tapped an infield hit to Cicotte and beat the latter's throw to Gandil. Holke took a called strike and a ball, fouled one off for a second strike and then cleft the turgid Chicago air with a vain thrust at the sphere. No runs, two hits, one error.

WHITE SOX—McMullin waited for a ball on the outside. Sallee put over a called strike that cut the heart of the plate. McMullin slammed the next pitch for a fly to Robertson near the right field line. The first to Eddie Collins was a called strike, when he dodged away from the ball. The next two were on the outside. Collins waited for another ball and had the advantage. He strolled on the next, which was high. Sallee's first to Jackson was a curve, and he hoisted to Robertson in short right.

Felsch slammed the first ball, a curve, against the left field fence for a double, scoring Eddie Collins, who had taken a flying start off first on a hit-and-run play. Sallee sent over a fast one on the outside to Gandil. Chick then swung heavily at a curve and missed. He pounded the next one for an easy fly to Kauff. One run, one hit, no errors.

Fourth Inning.

GIANTS.—Rariden took a called strike and a ball and sent the third of Cicotte's offerings skipping merrily over the ground between Eddie Collins and Chick Gandil for a neat single. Sallee got a salvo of applause as he shouldered the ash. He laid down a sacrifice bunt to Gandil and Rariden perched on second. George Burns let two poor ones sail past and then singled sharply to right. John Collins messed the ball all up in trying to retrieve it, and Rariden scored, while Burns went to second.

Herzog got one ball and then fouled off a couple for strikes. The next one he sent bounding to Weaver, who fumbled it badly, and Burns took third while Herzog was safe at the initial stopping place. Kauff took a healthy swing and then fouled one off. He connected with the next one and sent it bounding to Gandil, who threw wildly to Cicotte, covering fist. Burns tallied and Herzog got around to third. Zimmerman put an end to the festivities by hitting into a double play, McMullin to Eddie Collins to Gandil. Two runs, two hits, three errors.

WHITE SOX—Weaver fouled the first one into the stands. The next was wide, and on the third the White Sox shortstop sent a skipper to Zimmerman, who shot the ball to Holke for the out. Ray Schalk grounded to Holke, who accomplished his demise without aid, and Eddie Cicotte flied so accommodatingly to Burns that the latter hardly had to sway to catch the ball. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

GIANTS—Fletcher tried to bunt the opening offering and got a strike. The next two were wide and on the fourth delivery the shortstop pounded the sphere for a low line drive to Jackson in left field. Dave Robertson fouled one off and picked a quiet little nook in right field for the next offering. The ball was uncontaminated by mortal hand until Robertson had reached first. Holke flied out to Weaver on the first ball pitched. Rariden, who had two singles to his credit, was then purposely passed. Sallee dodged away from a ball and fouled the next back to the screen. Sallee waited for another ball on the outside, fouled the next pitch back for a second strike, and then fanned on a low curve. No runs, one hit, no errors.

WHITE SOX—Sallee shot a curve over on J. Collins, but it was wide. John watched a perfect called strike, then fouled off a bad one for strike two. He fouled off a curve that Rariden tried to catch, but it hit a fan in one of the boxes. Collins then swung at a slow ball on the outside and fanned. Sallee put over a ball on the inside to McMullin and then sent a fast one straight over the plate for a called strike. McMullin dodged from a near wild pitch and then smashed a high fly to right centre, Kauff making a clever catch.

E. Collins clipped off a foul trying to connect with a fast one. The next was a wide curve for a ball. Collins threw his bat down in disgust when Sallee slipped over a curve for a called strike. He then lined a clean single to left. Salee curved over a called strike to Jackson. Jackson drove the next pitch for a hard smash against Salee's glove that bounded half way to first base for a single, E. Collins halting at second. Felsch hit the first ball pitched for an easy roller and was out, Sallee to Holke. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

GIANTS.—Cicotte thought the plate a dangerous spot for the ball with George Burns standing there, and he kept it away until three balls had been called. The next was over the outside corner, and then Burns flied out to Jackson in left field. Herzog sent a grass-clipper to Eddie Collins and expired at first. Kauff lined the first one to left for a single and stole second on the first delivery to Zimmerman, which was a ball. Zim gave the boobs' chorus a treat by swinging vainly at two shoots, and then sent a fast bounder toward second. Eddie Collins nailed it by a neat play and threw out the runner at first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

WHITE SOX.—Chick Gandil bounced the first offering to Sallee and was out at first. Weaver let a wide one go by, but the next was much narrower and he whaled it between Zimmerman and Fletcher, both of whom stretched imploring arms toward it as it sped past. It was a clean single, and Ray Schalk duplicated it an instant later, choosing Herzog's territory for the blow. Weaver got all the way around to third on his punch.

Risberg, batting for Cicotte, who was through for the day, took two balls and a called strike and then singled to right, sending Weaver home, while Schalk was held at second. John Collins grounded out to Holke, who made the play unassisted, and McMullin ended Sallee's agony, for the nonce, by grounding sharply to Herzog, who smothered the twisting sphere and shot it to Holke for the third out. One run, three hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

Holke also attempted to sacrifice, and fouled off the first one. The next was a ball, and the next was so far inside that Holke ducked. The ball hit his bat, and caromed off, hitting his head and hurting him painfully. He was knocked out for several minutes by the blow, but resumed his place at the plate, amid kindly cheers from the stands. The foul tip made his second strike, and he fanned on a swift one over the heart of the plate.

Bill Rariden got one wide one and then singled to right. Fletcher scored from second on the tap, and Robertson was held at the midway station. Sallee impeded the proceedings only as long as was necessary for two swings and a called strike, and the fate of George Burns was similar, giving Williams three strike outs for the inning. One run, two hits, one error.

WHITE SOX.—E. Collins hit the first ball pitched and raised a high fly to Fletcher. Jackson dodged away from a ball that curved and fooled him for a called strike. He fouled the next. The next offering was a ball, and then Joe singled to left. Sallee put over a beautiful called strike on Felsch, who drove the next to left for a clean single to centre, sending Jackson to second. Gandil hit Sallee's first pitched for a double to right centre, scoring Jackson and Felsch and bringing the crowd to its feet.

The fans stood for several minutes rooting for Weaver to come through. He swung heavily and missed the first pitch. He then fouled into the press box. He sent another foul to the left field stands and continued to foul them. Finally he landed on a curve and grounded out, Fletcher to Holke, and Gandil took third. Sallee pitched wide to Schalk on his first offering and until Schalk strolled. Lynn batted for Williams and swung heavily at the first pitch, a curve. He then waited for a ball. He swung at a high one. Schalk stole second, and when Sallee tried to catch him Herzog muffed the throw. The ball rolled to centre field and Gandil started for home. Fletcher's throw failed to head him off, and the score was tied. Schalk went to third, but Lynn fanned on the next ball pitched. Three runs, three hits, one error.

Eighth Inning.

GIANTS.—Faber went in to pitch for the White Sox. The Cascade curver slipped the first ball over on Herzog for a strike. The next was a foul. Herzog swung wildly on the next pitched ball and walked back to the bench. Kauff hit an easy grounder to Faber in the pitcher's box and was out at first base. As Zimmerman walked to the plate he was greeted with the usual booing. Heinie hit a line drive to right field and Jack Collins caught the ball off his shoe tops. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WHITE SOX.—J. Collins dropped a single in short right and the stands rocked. McMullin sacrificed, Zimmerman to Holke. E. Collins slammed a single to centre, and J. Collins scored. The rooters went wild with delight, and the White Sox players performed a dance in front of the dugout. Jackson singled to centre and E. Collins went to third. Kauff threw to Zimmerman to head off Collins. Zimmerman threw wild to catch Jackson, E. Collins scoring and Jackson going to third. Perritt finally replaced Sallee for New York. Felsch singled to centre and Jackson scored. Gandil lifted a high fly to Burns. Felsch died stealing, Rariden to Fletcher. Three runs, four hits, one error.

Ninth Inning.

GIANTS.—The Giants had the ninth inning all to themselves, but it did them slight good. Artie Fletcher's best, after fouling off the first one, was a grounder to Weaver. Artie never reached first. Robertson flied to Jackson, and Holke, after fouling off several, sent a bounder to McMullin and gasped his last this side of first base. No runs, no hits, no errors.

SOX TO PLAY UPLAND TEAM.

Millionaire to Give Chicago Players $10,000 for Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CHESTER, Penn., Oct. 13.—Twelve regulars of the Chicago White Sox team, in command of Eddie Collins, who are participating in the world's series with the New York Giants, have accepted the offer of John P. Crozer, millionaire of Upland and backer of the Upland team in the Delaware County League, to play an exhibition game with Upland Oct. 19.

A guarantee of $10,000 was promised the White Sox players by Mr. Crozer. This will be the only exhibition game played by the Chicago team following the world's series. The players are: Schalk, Williams, Cicotte, Faber, Benz, Gandil, Eddie Collins, Weaver, McMullin, Liebold, Felsch, and Jackson. Chief Bender of the Phillies will pitch for Upland.

CHICAGO SCALPERS LOSE.

Small Crowd Brings Down Price Asked or Tickets.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Scalpers of world's series tickets got a severe jolt today after reaping a golden harvest during the first two games played in Chicago.

Box seat tickets purchased for $5, and which speculators sold for $25 and $30 for the first two games, were disposed of today for $5 and $6—and the scalpers had trouble in getting rid of them at that price. The cold weather and the two beatings the White Sox got in New York somewhat dampened the spirits of the Chicagoans. Scalpers sold reserved seats in the grandstand today for $2 and $3.

IRVIN COBB FINDS JACKSON IS GUILTY

WINGS TUMBLE ON McGRAW

By IRVIN S. COBB.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—It was all set. John J. McGraw was to present a revised version of that sterling drama entitled "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or, "Life Among the Slowly," with a cast made up half of stars and half of dubs. Mr. McGraw was to play Simon Legree with his cruel sneer and his long lashed blacksnake whip. He was to stand by smiling in triumph while little Eva Rowland died pathetically and ascended to heaven among a flock of bingles. His troupe of Siberian swat hounds were to chase a whole flock of Elizas across the ice. The curtain was to ring down upon the beautiful and inspiring tableau called "making it three in a row." Such was the program that had been mapped out.

Nothing succeeds like having tucked away two in succession, and as Mr. McGraw viewed the prospect there was no earthly chance for a slip up or a fall down anywhere. And in justice to Mr. McGraw it must be stated that up to a certain point everything passed off in the most pleasant manner possible to imagine with Hans Lobert, in the rôle of Marks the lawyer, cutting up his funny didoes all over the lot, and Slim Sallee distinguishing himself in the rôle of Topsy, and Mr. McGraw over in the wings by the first entrance overflowing with pride and confidence in the work of his gallant company; but how truly has it been said that it never does to count the goose eggs until the box score has been hatched; and that the well laid plans of mice and men go off to the glue works; and that you never can tell; and, furthermore, that great heartaches from little base hits grow; and also that to err is Herzogish, but to forgive is impossible, and, finally, that no man can foretell with any certainty when a Topsy will turn into a Patsy and when an outfit of brave boys will be transformed into a wrecked heap.

During the first part of the performance there was no indication other than that Mr. McGraw's production would be a hit, and his matinée blew all to flinders with scarcely any warning at all. One moment he was as jaunty as Cock Robin ever dared to be, and the next the shrapnel of sudden and dire disaster was bursting about his devoted head, and later, as he emerged from his dressing room, it was to be seen that with the make-up removed he had the pallid bust of Pallas shoved clear off the pedestal when it came to being a bust and, likewise, when it came to being pallid.

Enough Surprises Furnished.

Baseball always is proverbially full of surprises and world's series games are notably so, but no man with a leaky valve in his heart, be he a Chicago rooter or a New York fan, could be expected to survive many surprises, such as the one which eventuated in so painful a manner in the seventh—the fatal seventh, when the spectators got up and the Giants went down.

It was a cold crowd that went to a cold spot to see a massacre in cold blood. That concrete park of Comiskey's was like an icebox for frigidness, and the crowd, which, of course, was overwhelmingly in favor of the White Socks, but considerably abashed in the face of those last two drubbings which its favorites had suffered in New York, reflected in its general behavior the prevalent chilliness. The yelling at the outset sounded perfunctory and thin; howsomever, there is very little nourishment in starting a whoop which turns to a gush of blue steam as soon as it strikes the wintry air. Anyhow, the yells were soon destined to turn to low, despairing moans.

The fans revived, and with good reason, along toward the fag end of the pastiming, but I am speaking now of the startoff. The customary vocal fervor was lacking even from the outburst when the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," and all hands removed their hats, and then you could see by the rockets' red glare that most of Kid Gleason's back hair wasn't there.

How cheering to the soul of any person were those opening stanzas with Russell lasting about six and a quarter minutes; with Sallee, the human hat tree, getting into more holes than a woodpecker, but getting out of them again; with Davey Robertson slamming them out like a veritable walloping window blind; with the members of the White Sockian infield juggling the ball as though they had been parlor magicians; with the local outfit piling up errors while the visitors piled up runs to the number of five; with the spectators settling low in their seats as their spirits went down and down with Joe Jackson's batting average, for the game as thus far played closely resembled the temperature chart of a typhoid patient; with the man in the brown derby hat, who is always present on such an occasion as this one, hoarsely begging the White Cocks to come out of their trance and do something, but getting no answer to his prayers; with Cicotte's slanting offerings being freely assailed by the Giants; with Buck Weaver doing everything to short slams except scoop them up; with that most valiant of New York enthusiastic actors, William Farnum, waving the skirts of the whole leather raincoat which causes him, when wearing it, to resemble a skinned horse, the while he danced in glad abandon; with the sixth inning over and the seventh starting off so auspiciously, and then berlooie.

Enough Is Enough.

As a tender-hearted person who purposely avoids discussing depressing incidents at spectacles, I shall go no further along this line. Those who are morbidly inclined are respectfully referred to the list of killed, wounded, and missing for the hideous particulars.

Anybody is entitled to his opinion as to the cause of the undoing of the Giants at the moment when that sweet old bird, victory, seemed about to perch upon their banner, but I have my own idea about the underlying reason, and I here and now tender it and you can take it or leave it alone, just as suits you. I think the beginning of the downfall dated from that moment in the fifth inning when Joe Jackson slammed the ball right into the minute and practically negligible midriff of Slim Sallee. It was beautiful marksmanship—a man who could so clout a baseball that it hit Slim's stomach could hit anything, for Slim measures 6 feet the long way and only about six inches on the bias.

The force of the impact jarred him from pit to dome, as it were, and shortly thereafter it seemed to me that Slim began to suffer from chilled feet and shell shock. The cold feet were enough, because when Slim gets anything the matter with his feet he is practically suffering from general debility. He has that sort of feet—not wide, but long, extending along the earth for a considerable distance. He lasted until the seventh, when the White Socks fell upon him and spread him all on the minutes.

I have discovered how the Giants, now going East, (in two sections and second place,) may overcome Cicotte the next time he starts against them, should it so befall that the series lasts that long. A man who should know told me the secret of Ci's famous shine ball. This man says Cicotte smears white paraffin on the side seams and seat of his trousers and then rubs the ball in it. This being the case, all McGraw need do is slip up behind Cicotte when Cicotte isn't looking and touch a match to Cicotte's pants and destroy him utterly.

PLAY SEVENTH GAME HERE.

Hempstead Wins Toss for Scene of Last Contest.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Should the Giants again succeed in proving invincible on their home grounds in the sixth game of the series Monday and thereby a seventh game become necessary, it will be played at the Polo Grounds Tuesday. This was decided this morning when officials of the contesting world's series entrants met the National Commission and representatives of the Giants guessed right on the flip of a coin.

Harry N. Hempstead, President of the Giants, who made the trip to Chicago this time, although kept at home from the opening two games, was the party who called how the coin was going to turn and he immediately designated the Polo Grounds as the scene of the seventh game, provided all the time that such a game is needed.

It is purely up to the Giants now to make a seventh game a reality. The White Sox are much in favor of six games being the limit and will come East with the intention of cutting the classic short. The Giants figure that it will be to their advantage playing the deciding game in New York, since they have proved so efficient and the Sox so inefficient there

RUTGERS BOWS TO SYRACUSE ELEVEN'S ATTACK

LONG SYRACUSE RUN HUMBLES RUTGERS

FINAL SCORE IS 14 TO 10

Robeson, Colored Giant, Star of Game for New Brunswick Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Malone's 48-yard run for a touchdown at the opening of the fourth period featured the football clash between Rutgers and Syracuse, which was won by the latter by a 14-to-10 score in the stadium here today. A few minutes later Malone ran 30 yards for the goal again, but Syracuse was penalized 15 yards for holding, and the score did not count.

The Syracuse line was light, but full of fight, and it outplayed the Scarlet forwards except in the final quarter. The Orange backs ripped up the Rutgers line for big gains, while the Rutgers backs, every one a light man, were compelled to resort to open and trick plays for their gains. Robeson, the giant colored end from New Brunswick, stood head and shoulders above his teammates for all around playing. He was a tower of strength on the Scarlet defense, and not one run could Chick Meehan, the lightning Orange quarter back, make around his end. Practically every forward pass Foster Sanford's men used was built around Robeson. He towered above every man on the field, and when he stretched his arms up in the air he pulled down forward passes that an ordinary player would have to use a stepladder to reach. Robeson was directly responsible for the Rutgers touchdown in the final period, when he was on the receiving end of three forward passes, which netted Rutgers a total of 40 yards and put the ball on the Orange ten-yard line. Quarter back Baker took the ball over for the touchdown after three line bucks.

The Orange scored its first touchdown in the third quarter when the Rutgers backs juggled the ball and Robeson recovered for Syracuse on the Rutgers 15-yard line. A line buck by Finster Wald, who is considered the greatest plunging back Syracuse has had since Red Wilkinson, took the ball to the five-yard line and quarterback Meehan wormed his way through the line for a touchdown.

One of the features of the game was the placement kick by Whitehill from the 35-yard line, just before the close of the first half. It was a beautiful kick, the ball falling directly above the centre of the crossbar and at a good elevation. It was about the most bloody battle that has been seen in the Stadium in years. The men on both sides went after each other hammer and tongs and the face beneath many a helmet was adorned with a bloody nose or a black eye before the game was over. Even Referee Nate Tufts came in for a share of the hard knocks, as he was hit in the eye with the football and had to hold up the game for several minutes, until he could see.

The ball slippery from the muddy field, was hard to handle and was fumbled frequently. The penalties were frequent, also, the referee at times carrying the ball more than the players.

The lineup:

HARVARD CUBS ARE VICTORS

Make Two Touchdowns and Field Goal Against Andover.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Harvard freshmen defeated Andover today, 16 to 0. Humphreys and Lothrop punctured Andover's line in the first period with plunges that advanced to the twelve-yard line, whence Humphrey skirted the end for a score. In the second period Faxon drop-kicked a goal from twenty yards. Faxon and Humphrey made constant gains in the third period that advanced the ball to the one-yard line and from there Lothrop took it over.

George Dewey Braden, the Andover full back, did fine defensive work and line bucking, but had little support in the line. Andover was never in danger of scoring, yet many first downs were made, largely through the work of Braden.

Humphrey, the freshman first string full back, displayed the same calibre of line bucking that Braden did for Andover, but he had better assistance. It was largely Braden's work that checked the freshmen so that Faxon had to boot a field goal.

The lineup:

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Penn., Oct. 13.—Lafayette started with spurts, scored two touchdowns and then lost the punch, but came out finally victor in the game with Ursinus on March Field this afternoon, by the score of 19 to 6. A brilliant forward pass, Sigel to King, who stood beyond the goal line, netted the first Lafayette score.

TIGER CUBS LOSE GAME.

Princeton Freshmen Beaten by Mercersburg, 14 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 13.—Princeton freshmen struggled for three periods this afternoon to stave off defeat at the hands of the Mercersburg Academy team, which showed unexpected strength, and then succumbed in the final period, losing the game, 14 to 0. The prep school eleven was reported as being a good one, but so was the Tiger team, and the manner in which the Blue took matters in hand as soon as the whistle blew and held them there was a great surprise to Tiger football followers. Mercersburg should have made a much larger score, but the game struggle of the Princeton youngsters, aided by the fact that their opponents were frequently penalized, held the score down.

Mercersburg should really have won the game in the first quarter. Grandin fumbled the initial kick off, and a Mercersburg forward fell on the ball on the 25-yard line. The ball was carried up to Princeton's 12-yard line, but there the Tiger line made a determined stand. A penalty for the school team came to the freshmen's rescue, and the score was averted. Mercersburg had one other opportunity in the first period to score and failed. The second period was a duplicate of the first, the school boys advancing up the field at least three times, only to be denied because of some offending lineman. Snively attempted a drop kick near the end of the period which went straight through the posts. A Mercersburg back was found offside, however, and the score did not count.

The fourth period was the disastrous one for the cubs. Mercersburg started the period with the ball in its possession on the 30-yard line. A pretty forward pass, Snively to Davis, netted over 25 yards, and then Snively carried the ball over on the third play. McNamara kicked the goal. Just about a minute afterward Davis intercepted an attempted Tiger forward pass, and ran it 35 yards for a touchdown. McNamara kicked this goal also. The cubs still made a spirited effort to score, but the rejuvenated Mercersburg team held them at a safe distance for the remaining three minutes of the game.

The lineup:

| Mercersburg, (14.) | Position. | Princeton, (0.) |
|---|---|---|
| Jenkins | L. E. | Harvey |
| Eismann | L. T. | McAuli |
| Hunt | L. G. | Hawke |
| Lucas | C. | Scheerer |
| Ester | R. G. | Skiner |
| McMammon | R. T. | Speers |
| McNamara | R. E. | Davis |
| Gormon | Q. B. | Grandin |
| Davis | L. H. B. | Penny |
| Cleaves | R. H. B. | Ball |
| Snively | F. B. | Sweet |

Touchdowns—McNamara, Snively. Goals from touchdowns—McNamara, (2.) Substitutions—Princeton: McAlpin for Grandin; Knox for Penny; Raymond for Davis; Fleming for Hawkes; Taylor for Skinner. Mercersburg: Campbell for Gormon. Referee—Mr. Schwartz of Brown. Umpire—Mr. Plummer of Cornell. Head linesman—Mr. Greer of Pennsylvania. Time of quarters—10 minutes.

KING NEPTUNE WINS IN MUD.

Outsider Defeats Ticket and Hendrie in Handicap.

LAUREL, Oct. 13.—Fine weather was a welcome change for the large crowd that visited the track of the Maryland Fair Association today, but the rain of the last few days had left its impress on the course so that what promised to be one of the best programs of the meetings was marred by many scratches.

None of the topnotchers named for the Washington Handicap, at a mile and a furlong, were sent to the post and there were only three contenders for $2,000 in added money. The time worn advice to play the outsider in a three-horse race once again took on the semblance of a prophecy, for J. S. Tyree's lightly weighted King Neptune, a well named son of Sea King, was at home in the going, which resembled the ocean, and skimmed along in front to the end, with the favorites, Ticket and Hendrie, floundering behind.

Exeter Beats Colby 13 to 6.

Special to The New York Times.

EXETER, N. H., Oct. 13.—Exeter, although giving a poor exhibition, managed to defeat Colby Academy, 13 to 6, today. Colby had several unrealized chances to score. Both teams fumbled badly, Colby's errors giving Exeter an opportunity to score in the first period. In the third period Laird kicked a field goal from the 20-yard line, and later in the game H. Parnum repeated.

PENN DRIVE DOWNS GARNET ELEVEN

Folwell's Red and Blue Team Redeems 1916 Defeat by Swarthmores.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Pennsylvania redeemed in a measure its crushing defeat at the hands of the Georgia Tech team a week ago when it wiped out last year's defeat by Swarthmore by trouncing that sturdy Quaker eleven this afternoon on Franklin Field by a score of 10 to 0.

The work of the Red and Blue team was extremely rough in spots and crude, but the power was in evidence, and at times there was a drive and rip in the attack that made rapid headway with the Swarthmore defense. Early in the game the Pennsylvania team pounded its way down the field and scored a touchdown.

With the game almost over in the final period, Howard Berry, the sensational half back, stepped back on to Swarthmore's 45-yard line and made the victory certain by a beautiful drop kick field goal.

Berry, Penn's temperamental full back, played a brilliant game, getting away for long runs in almost every period, but it was Alex Wray's alert playing that gave Penn her first touchdown. In the middle of the second period, after Berry had smashed through Swarthmore's lines for a 6-yard gain, he fumbled the ball about a yard back of the goal line. Here Alex Wray dropped on the ball, giving Penn a touchdown. Berry kicked the goal.

In the fourth period Berry kicked his field goal after Pennsylvania had made repeated attempts to smash through the Swarthmore line for a touchdown. Swarthmore, through the excellent playing of Cornog and Durbin, had two chances to score. On both occasions Cornog missed goals from the field by a few feet.

Coach Folwell introduced a new lineup in the Penn eleven, and in the main it worked with good results. Bunny Lerch played at quarter back for the first time after only three days with the 'Varsity team. He was a bit shaky on formations and signals, but his open field running and dashes from his position gained many yards. He also handled kicks faultlessly.

Hobey Light, the slender half back, played a sensational defensive game. But for his many flying tackles Swarthmore would have come through with a victory. On three occasions he cut down a flying Swarthmore man headed for the goal line after he had passed all opposition. Mainard, a new tackle, also played fine football, the best game shown by any of the line men. He added stiffness to the Red and Blue line, and whereas a week ago it was easy for Georgia Tech to penetrate today it could not be forced.

Penn, usually able in dispatching forward passes, failed to get a single pass off successfully. Swarthmore, on the other hand, made most of its gains on a well-executed forward pass which called for the crossing over on the end to the opposite side of the line at high speed as the ball was put into play.

Penn adopted the shift formation for most of its end and tackle plays, similar to that which Georgia worked so successfully a week ago, and it resulted in many big gains.

The Red and Blue team gained much ground early in the game on runs from a kick formation by Berry, and Lerch's quarter back runs. Swarthmore checked this play fairly successfully after the first half, and Penn would not have had another chance to score but for penalties that set Swarthmore back near its own goal line, which was followed by a short punt that gave Penn the ball within easy striking distance. Swarthmore had a couple of stars who with a better supported line would have turned a victory. Allis Conrow and Durbin in the back field and Conway on the end excelled for Swarthmore.

The team from the Marine Barracks, League Island, captained by Eddie Mahan, the former great Harvard full back, and containing many college stars, ran roughshod over the Penn freshmen in a preliminary game. Mahan played a brilliant game, and by his long runs and forward passes brought victory to his team, 34 to 7.

PANTHERS DEVOUR LEHIGH.

Heavy Pitt Eleven Beats Brown and White by 41 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Oct. 13.—Lehigh University was no match for Glenn Warner's University of Pittsburgh team, and was defeated, 41 to 0, at Forbes Field this afternoon. The visitors were outweighed by the Panther squad, and their offense was quickly broken up by the Pittsburgh forwards. Only once did the Bethlehem squad appear dangerous, and that was near the end of the second period.

McDonald recovered a fumbled punt on Pittsburgh's 12-yard line, and after three attempts to carry the ball forward, Quarter Back Herrington tried for a field goal, but his kick went wide, and Pitt carried the ball out of danger.

The home boys started their scoring in the first play. Miller at quarter back took Halsted's kickoff, and behind perfect interference ran 96 yards for the first score. A few minutes later the Pitt team had carried the ball over the line again. Straight plays coupled with a 25-yard dash by Goulger were employed in making the score. Goulger kicked a goal after each of these touchdowns and another after the single score made in the second period. Lehigh was unable to stop the Pitt rushes and but for the several costly fumbles the home team would have scored at least twice more.

POLY PREP BEATS COMMERCE

Christens New Field with Notable Football Victory.

The new gridiron of the Poly Prep School of Brooklyn at Fort Hamilton was officially christened yesterday when the Poly eleven went through the representatives of High School of Commerce for a 19-to-0 victory in what was easily the best game of the scholastic football season to date. Poly Prep's eleven truly "went through" the last year's runners-up for the championship, for it was in this way that Poly Prep scored its initial points.

The victorious combination employed a skin tackle offensive in the first quarter which completely baffled the New York team. The backs of Poly also did good work and frequently went through the Commerce line for material gains, which helped along the scoring of two touchdown bebfore the quarter was up. These were made by Schibler and Jelliffe, and to them were added later on in the game a touchdown by Schell and a goal from touchdown by Blumdell.

The Commerce aggegation's only opportunity for a score came in the second quarter, and then was forestalled by the whistle. After several ineffective plays Poly lost the ball on its rival's twenty-yard line, and taking advantage of the opportuuity, the Commerce team carried the pigskin to Poly's twenty-three-yard line on first downs. Then when Commerce was bracing for a touchdown the whistle ended the period.

Umpire—Mr. Farier of Dartmouth College. Head linesman—Dr. Aldridge of Syracuse. Time of periods—Two of 10 minutes each and two of 8 minutes each.

At Washington Park, Brooklyn, the Erasmus Hall High School eleven made a walkaway match of its game with the St. John's Prep School team, winning by the one-sided score of 46 to 0. The combined offensive of the victorious eleven swept away any defensive play by St. John's. Erasmus made good use of the forward pass. The big cogs in the Erasmus victory were Goebel, with three touchdowns and two goals from touchdown; McPhee, with two touchdowns and two goals from touchdown, and Meistrall and Mahr with one touchdown each.

The St. Paul's School football team and the Fordham Prep aggregation battled to a 6-to-6 tie at the St. Paul Field, Garden City, L. I., yesterday. Fordham Prep's score came in the second period when Kearns negotiated a touchdown. In the final quarter the St. Paul lads averted a shutout when, mainly through Straing's effective line plunging, a touchdown was scored.

Worth Knowing and Remembering

IT IS FAR easier to cater to the tastes of women who do not need to consider the cost of apparel they buy, because the market is always ready to supply rich and beautiful materials upon which there is no limit in the cost of manufacture. It requires, however, very close study of the market's production in order to assemble a stock of women's wear that will give the greatest variety and measure of satisfaction and service at reasonable cost.

We wish to call particular attention that the low prices at which we sell women's apparel doesn't mean that we either buy or sell inferior goods. As a matter of fact, the superiority of our merchandise is the best recommendation that we offer to the public and that our customers can convey to their friends.

We would like the women of New York and vicinity—grandmothers, mothers and daughters—to realize that we understand how to supply their needs in our line quite as well as any other store in the city. We know the prevailing styles in women's apparel, and our stocks are up to the minute in that respect.

OUR 3 UPSTAIRS stores at 11 West 34th Street, opposite the Waldorf, between 5th and 6th Avenues, are the largest of their kind in the city. Because of the very moderate rent we pay and the elimination of many overhead expenses, the saving enables us to sell at remarkably low prices.

$525,000,000 NOW FOR LIBERTY LOAN

fighting forces. Into this effort for humanity, as well as for our country, every one should throw their whole heart and soul. The sooner the war is over the better for the world.

"Let everyone, then, realize their duty in supporting the Government by the subscription to the Liberty bonds, that America may be the great power which will end this war and all its horrors."

LOAN SUBSCRIPTIONS HERE 22% OF TOTAL

New York District Has Taken Only $328,000,000 in First Half of Campaign.

Conservative estimates of subscriptions to the second Liberty Loan in the New York Federal Reserve District placed the total last night at $328,000,000. The gain for the day was only about $3,000,000. The exchanges and brokerage houses were closed yesterday and a great many concerns made Columbus Day a two-day holiday, and consequently the volume of applications reported was exceedingly light. The official figures of the Federal Reserve Bank showed an increase of $7,500,000, the total being brought up to $251,-[illegible].

With the close of business last night two weeks of the four weeks' campaign for $1,500,000,000 of subscriptions in this district came to an end. An analysis of the figures indicated that while in the first week the estimated total was $240,000,000, the second week saw an addition of only $88,000,000. On the basis of a daily average of $62,500,000 for the twenty-four weekdays of the campaign, this district is $422,000,000 behind the $750,000,000, which should have been received. In other words, the subscriptions have amounted to only about 43 per cent. of the expected results. Thus far the subscriptions of the New York district total less than 22 per cent. of the maximum allotment of a billion and a half.

While on the face the figures appear discouraging, bankers are confident that the energetic drive that will be made in the next fortnight will result in a marked improvement in the progress of the campaign. The efforts of the last two weeks are cumulative in their effect and widespread appeal made to all classes of people to come forward and help America to win the war by providing the necessary funds will meet with accelerated response as the necessity of subscribing to the Liberty Loan becomes more and more vigorously impressed on the general public.

A development which will no doubt aid considerably in the work of getting subscriptions was the announcement that the Federal Reserve Bank had received a preliminary shipment of the new 4 per cent. Liberty Loan coupon bonds, and would be in a position to sell them "over the counter," beginning tomorrow. The first shipment consists of 10,000 bonds, but it is expected that larger quantities will be received daily from Washington. The bonds just received will be available to cash purchasers in amounts up to $1,000. The bonds received are in denominations of $50, $100, $500, and $1,000. It is believed that a great many people who will be thus afforded an opportunity to get the actual Government bond upon the payment in full of their subscription will be the best advertisers for the loan, for they will show the engraved certificates to their friends and induce them to buy Liberty bonds.

Not Available for Exchange.

The bonds received by the Reserve Bank are not available for exchange of the 3½ per cent. bonds of the first Liberty Loan. The conversion privilege cannot be exercised until after Nov. 15, and the 4 per cent. bonds issued in exchange for the 3½s will have a maturity of thirty years, like the 3½s, while the 4 per cent. bonds of the second Liberty Loan have a maturity of twenty-five years.

The following subscriptions were announced yesterday:

|---|---|
| Harriman National Bank | $1,000,000 |
| Lincoln National Bank | 500,000 |
| Irving Savings Institution | 200,000 |

| Cranford Trust Co., Cranford, N. J. | 107,150 |
| Lincoln Safe Deposit Co. | 100,000 |
| Independent Order F. S. of I. | 100,000 |
| Julius Marcus | 100,000 |

| Hiram R. Mallinson | 25,000 |

The local Liberty Loan Committee received yesterday telegrams from the other Federal Reserve districts in reply to a request for information as to how the loan was going. "Unfortunately, our response to the Liberty Loan here so far is pleasing only to the Kaiser," wired the Chairman of one District Committee. Philadelphia sent the following:

"Unofficial reports place total subscriptions in the Third Federal Reserve District at approximately $75,000,000."

San Francisco reported an unofficial total of $139,000,000 for the Twelfth Reserve District, out of a quota of $235,000,000. In this district a detailed canvass is to be started this week, and the local committee added: "No one entertains any doubt of this district meeting its quota. A fair oversubscription is probable."

"We feel confident that the City of St. Louis will more than cover its minimum, and probably shoot the target squarely in the eye," was the message sent from the headquarters of the Eighth Federal Reserve District. The telegram continued: "The Mississippi Valley is alive to the importance of contributing its dollars out of its prosperity to finance its share in this great struggle for liberty."

Thousands of Workers Subscribe.

It was stated that further returns were coming in slowly, because many banks were waiting until they could turn in subscriptions for their customers in lump sums. Thousands of workers and all the banks in St. Louis have already taken subscriptions.

Unofficial subscriptions in the Cleveland district were placed at $60,500,000. The message from that centre read: "Prospects are improving. Yesterday was our best day."

Chicago already has subscribed $12,000,000, exclusive of large subscriptions informally made and not yet included in the totals. In the Seventh Federal Reserve District, outside of Chicago, $38,000,000 of the bonds already have been taken.

Optimistic telegrams were received from other districts, but these were unable to report total subscriptions, chiefly on account of the slowness in returns from the country districts.

At the Women's "Liberty Bank," in Madison Square, there have been sold since its opening day last Monday $100,000 worth of bonds. As Richard Purdy of the Hudson Trust Company was urging people to buy bonds yesterday, Stephen Charles Emerson, 14 years old, of Brooklyn, came forward and put down a dollar for a fifty-dollar bond, saying that he could make the rest of the money selling magazines. Governor Whitman is to be the speaker at the bank tomorrow at 12:15 P. M. The Governor will be escorted to and from the bank from the Hotel Astor by the young woman motor squad of the National League for Women's Service.

A man of 65 was one of the most interesting purchasers at the stand of the Stage Women's War Relief Committee at Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue. Miss Jean Patrican was making an appeal for bond buyers, when an old man, shabbily dressed, waving an envelope in his hand, came up the Library steps to where she was speaking. The envelope was his pay envelope containing $9. He put down $1 for a fifty-dollar bond. He had been waiting all the week to get the money, he said, and after this he would give $1 each week.

Patriotic Reception at Hotel.

To aid in arousing the interest of guests in New York hotels in the Liberty bond sale, Copeland Townsend, proprietor of the Hotel Majestic, held a patriotic reception in the ballroom of the Majestic last night, which began with speaking and ended with supper and dancing. The speakers were Captain J. M. de Beaufort, author, and Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company. After the speaking a young woman costumed as Miss Liberty presented application blanks for Liberty bonds. It was also announced that the entire proceeds of the café and restaurants of the Majestic for last week had been applied to purchasing Liberty bonds. The Park Avenue and Hargrave, in which Mr. Townsend has a proprietary interest, also devoted their restaurant receipts to the Liberty bond issue.

Mrs. Courtlandt D. Barnes, Chairman of the New York State Woman's Liberty Loan Committee, has decided to go after the babies in her energetic campaign for subscriptions. She has had her staff look over the birth records at the Health Department, or the birth advertisements in the newspapers, and to every proud parent she has sent the following letter, signed "Katherine Barnes":

"The Woman's Liberty Loan Committee wants to congratulate you on the birth of your child and to suggest that you could give your baby no more fitting birthday gift at this time than a Liberty Loan bond. By so doing you will help both your country and your child. A subscription blank is enclosed for your convenience."

It was announced yesterday that the women assisting the Small Leather Goods Trade Committee have been promised prizes ranging up to $85 for Liberty Loan subscriptions sent in by them.

Soldiers Raise $80,000.

About $80,000 has been raised by the twenty-six men from Camp Upton, who have been canvassing the dress and waist trade in the last two days. C. de B. Greene, Chairman of the Advisory Trades Committee, said yesterday that he was anxious to obtain permission from Major Gen. Bell at Yaphank to have 250 "soldier" bond salesmen placed at his disposal.

The Special Committee of the New York Cotton Exchange sent out letters yesterday to all members, requesting them to subscribe to the Liberty Loan, and to canvass their customers with the view of inducing them to aid in the flotation of the loan.

Congressman John J. Fitzgerald of New York, who is Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, in a statement issued yesterday, declared that every dollar of expenditure in the $21,390,000,000 of appropriations made by Congress had been carefully scrutinized, and that "not a single dollar was appropriated that the information did not justify." Mr. Fitzgerald's statement follows:

"After the most memorable session in our history, the Congress adjourned on Oct. 6. Its work has been of a most stupendous character. The task was a big one, and it was done in a big way.

"With our participation in the world war, unusual and unprecedented problems pressed for solution. Questions vitally affecting fundamental rights, long-established customs, and time-honored privileges continuously arose from the outset, requiring legislation to adjust matters to new conditions. The country had no precedents for the situation. New paths had to be blazed and new methods had to be adopted. With characteristic promptness the problems were solved, the paths were opened, the methods were adopted.

"Speedily, with due regard for the necessity of care to safeguard the people in their fundamental rights, while imposing justifiable restrictions upon the conduct so far as essential for the welfare of the nation, legislation was enacted. It was comprehensive in character and effective in results. Means had to be provided to enable the Government to raise, equip, subsist, pay, and maintain an army of unprecedented numbers and to extend the activities of the navy by augmenting its strength in many directions. The necessity to conserve our food stuffs, and to husband our supplies of the raw materials essential to supply our needs added to the problems to be solved by legislation.

Says Figures Stagger Imagination.

"To enable all of the essential things to be done, the Congress appropriated the stupendous sum of $11,879,177,014.96 and authorized obligations to be incurred in the additional sum of $2,511,533,925.56. These sums do not include the seven billions of dollars to be loaned to the allied Governments engaged in the contest with the United States, totaling in all $21,390,000,000.

"These figures are practically incomprehensible. They stagger the imagination. Yet the appropriations were not made at haphazard or as a matter of guesswork in the dark. The most competent and experienced members in the House of Representatives conducted the investigations preliminary to recommending the appropriations. Practically the entire work was under my personal supervision. With an experience of thirteen years on the Committee on Appropriations, I am able to assert that in my service no requests were ever so thoroughly and so carefully investigated as those made during the session of Congress just ended. Not a single dollar was appropriated that the information did not justify. Careful inquiry was made as to the methods of expenditure and the arrangements adopted to safeguard them.

"To prosecute this war the Government has been empowered to take men and property, to curtail the exercise of cherished rights, and to restrict the enjoyment of many valued privileges. It needs the money to enable the obligations being incurred to be met. Much of it will be obtained by taxation, more must be had in the form of loans from the people. Not every citizens can serve his country by active military service in the field. Many will be called upon to make the supreme sacrifice. Under the circumstances none should hesitate to make necessary sacrifices in order to participate in the loan now sought by the Government. Every American should do his duty to the limit. A high test of real patriotism is participation to as great an extent as possible in the present Liberty Loan."

Guy Emerson, Director of Publicity of the Liberty Loan Committee, in a statement calling attention to the need of speeding up subscriptions to the loan, said: "Let us give our men the most wonderfully complete protection that the genius and power of United America can devise. Guns and shells save lives. Liberty bonds provide the guns and shells. Is there anywhere in this great young nation a man or woman or child with heart so cold as to hesitate? Where the choice is clear between lending our money to our Government and permitting one unnecessary drop of blood to be shed by our boys in France—when it is bonds or blood—who will deny we will take three, five, yes, fifty billions of bonds if necessary?"

Mr. Emerson has sent a letter to Isaac Gimbel, President of Gimbel Brothers, congratulating the company on its subscription of $1,000,000 for Liberty bonds.

A mass meeting and rally will be held at Cooper Union tomorrow night under the auspices of the Jewish Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee for the purpose of reporting the amounts subscribed by the various nationalities.

Airplanes to Drop "Bombs."

Through the aviation section of the Signal Corps it has been arranged to have airplanes from a number of training camps fly over the larger cities next Saturday in celebration of "Aviation Day," set apart to stimulate interest in the Liberty Loan campaign. These machines are to be supplemented by a number of war balloons. Each will carry a load of small red, white, and blue paper bombs bearing urgent messages to the people to support the Government financially.

In addition each machine will carry one large "bomb" tightly sealed and bearing a message from some Washington official high in the service of the Government. Attached to the "bomb" will be long colored streamers which will make its flight through the air easy to follow. Whoever finds this coveted prize is to take it immediately to the Mayor of his town to whom it is addressed, who will break the seal and read the message. No intimation of what these messages will be will be given out in advance.

The cities which it is expected the army aviators will visit include Omaha, Neb.; Des Moines, Iowa Linda Vista, Cal.; Los Angeles, Cal.; Pasadena, Cal.; Austin, Texas; Waco, Texas; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Detroit, Battle Creek, Mich.; Chicago, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Ill.; Springfield, Ill.; Dayton, Ohio; Columbus, Ohio; Cincinnati, Indianapolis, New York City, Governors Island, Jersey City, Yaphank, N. Some of the trades, like the tobacco, have already exceeded their allotment, and are continuing their work for more subscriptions. ## ARMY MEN SUBSCRIBE $6,700,000 FOR LOAN

Great Rivalry Develops Among Cantonments, Regiments, and Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Reports to the Adjutant General of the army indicate that officers, enlisted men and permanent civilian employes of the army have subscribed approximately $6,700,000 to the second Liberty Loan. Keen competition has developed among the cantonment camps, regiments and companies. The Commanding General of Camp Shelby reports that in each of six companies at that camp every officer and man had subscribed for a bond. The 149th Infantry, at this camp, has taken $128,450. The 343d Infantry, at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., leads all regiments of the army, with a regimental subscription of $222,850.

The First Colorado Infantry reports $75,750 from 714 subscribers, or an average of $106.09 per subscriber. Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., subscribes $160,000 from 1,660 subscribers, averaging $96.45 per subscriber. The base hospital at Fort MacPherson, Ga., with a total strength of 271, has subscribed $13,800, or an average of $50.18 per man. The 309th Infantry at Camp Dix, Wrightstown, has subscribed $87,400. The Second Florida Infantry, at Camp Wheeler, Macon, $49,950. Within forty-eight hours after the campaign had started, Fort Myer, Va., had raised $97,050. The First Battery, Sixth Artillery Training Battalion, subscribed $14,000, and the First Infantry Training Company, $12,000.

Including Oct. 11, the personnel of the War Department had subscribed $222,300. With reference to the second Liberty Loan, Major Gen. William P. Duvall, commanding the Southeastern Department, with headquarters at Charleston, S. C., has this to say:

"That it is the patriotic duty of all good citizens to assist the Government in every possible way, in the successful prosecution of the present war, is, of course, recognized by all officers and enlisted men in the department. They have already proved this by giving themselves to their country.

"But aside from this paramount reason for subscribing to the second Liberty Loan, there is the lesser personal reason that an investment in these bonds is an excellent and convenient way for the soldier to invest his savings, or to provide for the future of those dependent upon him. At the present rate of pay any soldier, unless he assists in the support of some one at home, can easily save a considerable part of his pay each month, and there is no better way for him to care for these savings than by investing them in Liberty bonds."

| | |
|---|---|
| NATIONAL ARMY. | |
| Camp Funston, Fort Riley, Kan. | $566,200 |
| Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill. | 483,350 |
| Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N. J. | 403,850 |
| Camp Meade, Admiral, Md. | 348,650 |
| NATIONAL GUARD. | |
| Camp Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss. | $768,500 |
| Camp Sevier, Greenville, S. C. | 485,000 |
| Camp Kearny, Lindavista, Cal. | 290,150 |
| Camp Bowie, Fort Worth, Texas | 178,800 |

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., Oct. 13.—The men at Camp Dix, who are ready to offer their lives, if need be, on the altar of the world's liberty, today added $176,700 in Liberty bond subscriptions. This amount brings their total subscription for the first two days of the "Liberty bond" campaign up to $579,850, an average of $27 per man, said to be the highest per capita yet reached by any cantonment.

The majority of the new subscriptions were in $50 bonds. Major C. W. Cocheu, in charge of the campaign, is confident the camp will pass the million-dollar mark. He praises the response of the soldiers as the finest brand of patriotism the world has ever witnessed and a striking lesson for civilians. It was significant today that in many of the Y. M. C. A. huts the boys were scanning the home papers or file there for news of how their communities were "backing the front" with bond buying.

The fact that yesterday was pay day increased the applications for week-end leave today, and in crowds of thousands the men left shortly after noon mess. Fully half the men in camp went out, many to their homes, others to spend Sunday in nearby cities, which will have their first big experience with entertaining the men from the cantonment.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, Yaphank, L. I., Oct. 13.—The Liberty Loan clock on Hill 77 registered $360,000 as the total subscriptions received up to this noon. The Camp Liberty Loan Committee expects the heaviest subscriptions next week, when the big drive begins. Although today's figures place Camp Upton among the leaders of military camps subscribing to the loan, no effort has been made to force the men to buy bonds, and this principle will be rigidly adhered to.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The Liberty Loan campaign in camp today advanced from $291,000 to $306,750 subscribed by 1,163 men. New York furnished 640 subscribers, aggregating $226,150, and New England 523 men with a total of $80,600. One member of the New York Regiment subscribed for $25,000, and every one of the 133 candidates and two reserve officers of the Fifteenth Company, New York Regiment, took one or more of the bonds.

RAISE $20,400,000 AT RALLY.

Baltimore Subscriptions Range from $50 to $3,500,000.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—A total of $20,400,000 was subscribed at a monster rally here last night in the interest of the Liberty Loan. The subscriptions ranged from $50 to $3,500,000. The meeting was spectacular. At the close of a speech urging every one of the 22,000 persons present to buy a Liberty Loan bond, United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, called on those present to come up and subscribe. Two hundred bond salesmen of Baltimore and an auctioneer had been pressed into service, and as fast as the audience called out the amount to be subscribed the salesmen jotted it down.

The Mercantile Trust and Deposit Company led off with $3,500,000, and was followed by the Fidelity Trust Company with $3,000,000. There were probably 3,000 subscriptions in amounts between $50 and $500.

Major Gen. Joseph E. Kuhn, U. S. A., Commander at Camp Meade, and Rear Admiral Walter McLean, Commandant of the Fifth Naval District, spoke at the night meeting and also at a rally of 20,000 school children in the afternoon. At both meetings, Lieutenant John Philip Sousa, U. S. N., and his naval band of 250 were the star attraction.

SCHOOLS PUSH LOAN CAMPAIGN

New York Pupils in Essay Contest—Yell Helps the Cause.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The $50 Liberty bond offered by the National Committee of Patriotic Societies to the high school student who writes the best essay on "Why There Should be a Liberty Bond in Every Home" is stimulating much interest among educational institutions throughout the United States.

The committee announced tonight that already the De Witt Clinton High School of New York, the Boys' High School of Brooklyn, St. Francis College of Brooklyn, several schools in Washington, and numerous other schools have reported that they have large groups of students working for the prize. The conditions of the contest are that the essay must not exceed 600 words, that at least ten students must compete in each school, and that no school shall be eligible to compete which does not conduct some sort of a campaign to stimulate the sale of Liberty bonds to the students and their parents.

This "Liberty Loan yell" will be used by students in the competing schools:

Every miser helps the Kaiser;
Every buyer rouses his ire;
Do your share, make him swear.
Bond! Bond! Bond!

The National Committee of Patriotic Societies believes that this school campaign will greatly increase the sale of Liberty bonds and teach the youth of the country patriotism and thrift. The committee has asked the two million members of its represented societies to use the greeting, "Have you bought a bond?" instead of "Good morning" during October.

LOAN CAMPAIGN IN CAMP.

$313,750 Subscribed on First Day by Men at Wadsworth.

Special to The New York Times.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 13.—Speeding up the work of reorganization, headquarters at Camp Wadsworth today transferred the 1,375 men of the Seventy-first slated to go into the 105th and directed Colonel Foster of the Twelfth, to have his command ready on Monday for assignment to the eight units to which the Twelfth has been detailed. Following the example set by the old Seventh a week ago, Colonel Foster paraded his organization in farewell review.

Major Edward Olmsted, in charge of the Liberty Loan campaign, started the drive vigorously in every regiment today. Up to this evening total contributions of $313,750 had been reported. The Seventy-fourth Infantry of Buffalo, led with purchases amounting to $110,000. The runner-up for the first day's drive was the Fourteenth Infantry of Brooklyn, which took $104,550 worth of the bonds. The best man-for-man record was established by the eighteen members of the Fifty-third Infantry Brigade Headquarters, who invested $34,950. Next in the individual record were the 158 men attached to the base hospital. They put in $229 a man.

Two battalions of the Forty-seventh Infantry went into camp today, and the Third Battalion and the First Field Artillery, Colonel Merritt H. Smith, should arrive late tomorrow. By Wednesday the Tenth Infantry should get into camp, completing the mobilizing, with 40,000 soldiers ready to start training. Until all the troops get here and the reorganization is finished, the new drilling cannot be started, and this holdup is not meeting with the favor of the men already on the ground, who contend that this additional delay is hurting their chances of "getting some real action right away."

The last assignments of reserve officers for temporary duty with the division were made today. The men affected were all artillerymen and were detailed to the Fifty-second Artillery Brigade, temporarily commanded by Colonel George A. Wingate. The officers are: Second Lieutenants Stewart A. Chambers, Archibald B. Clark, R. Raymond Cox, E. J. Devlin, Jr., Richard Wellis, Nathan F. George, Everest Haight, Jesse Hoyt, Edward C. Joseph, W. S. Kemp, F. C. Kingsland, Oswald W. Nnauth, Reginald Knox, James W. Lillie, George W. Martin, John C. Orr, Embre C. Rogers, L. O. Thompson, and George F. Usher.

Private W. T. Stedman, Second Field Hospital, was transferred to the Overseas Repair Section No. 1, Gas Defense Service. Private Stewart F. Hunter, Company M, 108th Infantry, has been ordered to San Antonio, Texas, for aviation instructions.

Extends Passport Requirements.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Secretary Lansing announced today that on and after Oct. 15 American citizens, as well as citizens and subjects of all co-belligerent and neutral powers, who propose to travel to China must carry passports, to each of which must be attached a photograph of the bearer. These passports must be viséd by Diplomatic or Consular representatives of China in this country. Travelers from the United States for Norway, Sweden, and Denmark, it was also announced officially, must likewise bear passports viséd by the Norwegian, Swedish, or Danish representatives in this country.

THEATRES WILL PAY WAR TAX MONTHLY

Government Officials and Managers Agree Upon Sworn Statements.

PASSES TAXED 10 PER CENT.

Holders of Season Boxes, Such as Opera, Must Pay Tax Whether or Not Box Is Occupied.

Formal announcement of the impending war tax on theatre tickets, together with instructions as to the manner of its collection, was sent out to theatre managers all over the country yesterday by the United Managers' Protective Association. The method of collection was decided upon Friday in Washington at a conference participated in by the Secretary of the Treasury, the Solicitor for the Treasury Department, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and Ligon Johnson, counsel for the managers.

At this conference it was agreed that the most practical method of collecting the tax in the circumstances was to demand from each theatre monthly sworn statements of its business during the preceding month. When a theatre ticket is sold the theatre will collect the 10 per cent. tax, and will then be responsible to the Government. It had been originally planned to employ stamps, but the fact that the tax goes into effect on Nov. 1 renders the time too short to effect the necessary arrangements.

The manager of the theatre, and not the manager of attractions appearing therein, will be responsible for the tax. After Nov. 1 he will be compelled to keep daily box office statements, signed by himself and the company manager, and these must be preserved for inspection by the Government if desired. The monthly returns to the Government will be on forms to be provided by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Although the law provides that the tax must be paid by the patron, the theatre may pay it if it so desires, but it must differentiate to the public, between the admission charge and the tax. It is suggested, but not required, that there be printed on all tickets an announcement reading: "This theatre is required by law to collect from purchaser of this ticket United States tax of 10 per cent. on admission paid."

The announcement of the association also clears up several points regarding the tax about which there has been some confusion. All passes will be taxed 10 per cent. of their ostensible value, the only persons being exempt from this assessment being bona fide employes of the theatre or company, municipal officers on official business, (such as firemen and policemen,) and children under 12 years of age. The last named will in all cases be taxed 1 cent, no matter what the price of the tickets they have purchased.

The tax does not apply to admissions where the entire proceeds are devoted to religious, educational, or charitable institutions, but does apply to benefits for individuals. Persons holding season boxes, such as Metropolitan Opera subscribers, will be required to pay the tax, whether or not the box is occupied.

The 10 per cent. tax also applies to seats at tables, reserved or otherwise, at roof gardens or similar performances. All admissions above 5 cents at amusement places of every character are subjected to the tax.

The penalties for failure on the part of theatre managers to observe the collector's regulations will be noted on the Treasury Department's collection forms, which will be sent out just as soon as they can be printed.

MISS RENARD PLAYS.

A Young Chilean Pianist Reappears in Aeolian Hall.

Miss Rosita Renard is a young Chilean pianist, educated in Paris, who played here for the first time last Spring. She gave another recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall, when she greatly deepened the favorable impression left by her first performance. At the present time she is still best in music that needs grace, vivacity, rythmic pulse, tenderness, delicacy. In such music she has a compelling charm that is manifested in many guises, and in all of them is irresistible. Thus in two mazurkas by Chopin, Op. 30, No. 4; Op. 59, No. 3, and the Nocturne, Op. 9, No. 3, and in five pieces by Debussy her playing was a delight to hear, so spontaneous was it, so truly felt and assimilated, so crisp and sparkling in delivery, so delicately colored and so filled with a gracious and varied fancy. Of weightier matters she does not yet penetrate to the heart. Chopin's étude, Op. 25, No. 11, is a more stirring and incendiary thing than it appeared under her fingers. So, too, in the finale theme and variations of Beethoven's sonata, Op. 109, there is a profounder appeal than she sounded, and perhaps something more in the other movements, too, though her playing of them was full of imaginative detail.

She began with Mr. Ferruccio Busoni's Chaconne in D Minor, laboriously compiled from Bach's piece of the same name for violin, in which she made a valiant effort to compass Mr. Busoni's massive pianoforte effects, and a still more valiant one in Balakireff's "Islamey." But these things are hardly as yet her affair. Whether they ever are or not, Miss Renard will undoubtedly reach higher and penetrate deeper than she does just yet. She is young, and very talented.

CUT GERMAN OPERAS FROM FREE LECTURES

Board of Education Heeds Protests and Substitutes Allies' Works at History Museum.

Just as an audience at the Museum of Natural History last evening was settling down to the regular Saturday night lecture in the Board of Education Series, this one being by Earl Barnes, on "France," a representative of the board came forward and announced that many protests had been received against another of the free lecture courses, beginning Tuesday next, when W. H. L. Hubbard had been scheduled to talk and Claude Gotthelf to sing and play in illustration of a German opera. Four such subjects, indeed, were printed in the prospectus, according to which Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" was to be followed on Oct. 20 by Wagner's "Parsifal," and later by his "Lohengrin" and "Meistersinger."

The Board of Education, the speaker said, had decided to bow to public opinion and to give, instead of the German operas this season, a group of works from nations among this country's European allies. Accordingly, the subjects for Mr. Hubbard and his assisting musicians would be Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" and "La Boheme," Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," coupled with Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci," and in conclusion, Bizet's "Carmen."

It was remarked that the German operas, however, had been retained in the Metropolitan Opera House repertory for the coming season, and they had even been sung in English translation in London during the war.

CAPT. PHELPS PUNISHED.

Loses Ten Numbers for Louisiana Accident—Other Naval Sentences.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Captain William W. Phelps, recently tried before a naval court on charges of inattention and negligence in connection with the running of the battleship Louisiana upon a submerged wreck last month, has been sentenced by the naval court to a reduction of ten numbers in his grade in the navy. Captain Phelps was also charged with "culpable inefficiency in the performance of duty." The verdict of the court was: "Proved, but without culpability." Secretary Daniels refused to accept this verdict as anything less than acquittal from the charge, saying that it was in his opinion virtually a form of acquittal, "being a determination that the accused is not guilty in law."

Lieut. Commander Harry A. Stuart, who was on duty on the Louisiana at the time of the accident, was found guilty of "culpable inefficiency" and neglect of duty and was sentenced to lose 20 numbers in grade.

Another naval court martial sentence just made public is that in the case of Paymaster Reginald Spear, who was tried at the Washington Navy Yard on charges of embezzlement, disobedience or regulations, neglect of duty and scandalous conduct. He was sentenced to be dismissed from the naval service.

HENRY W. POLHEMUS DEAD.

His Service on The Evening Post Extended More Than 55 Years.

Henry W. Polhemus, who had been in the employ of The Evening Post in various capacities longer than any other person connected with the newspaper, died suddenly on Friday at his home, 441 Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn, in his seventieth year. He would have completed his fifty-sixth year of service with The Evening Post next April. He served later in the financial, news, and real estate departments, under William Cullen Bryant, Parke Godwin, and E. L. Godkin.

He had been employed in the mailing and pressroom departments and later the delivery department of The Evening Post. After fifteen years he was taken into the city department and assigned to cover the Real Estate Exchange and collect quotations of stocks before the days of the ticker. In later years his energies were devoted entirely to the real estate department. Five years ago, on the occasion of the completion of his fiftieth year of service, the trustees of the newspaper entertained Mr. Polhemus at dinner, and at the same time many of the most prominent men in the real estate field invited him to the rooms of the Real Estate Board, where they begged him to accept a substantial purse as a slight token of the appreciation he had won among them.
